BELGIAN GIVEN A LIFE SENTENCE.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

BOLOGNE-SUR-MUR (France) Sept. 25 (11:55 p.m.)—Pierre Theisen, a Belgian newspaperman from Brussels, accused of having furnished the German General Staff with information of extreme importance and which was detrimental to the entente allies, was condemned by a court-martial today to perpetual deportation to a fortified place.

Theisen was arrested in 1891 and sentenced to five years' imprisonment, after which he resumed relations with the German army. He was arrested a second time on August 5, 1914, at Brussels and turned over to the French authorities. He made a confession, but protested that, as his offense was not committed in French territory, the French had no right to judge the case.

COMMENT ON THE SITUATION.

The long-heralded offensive of the Anglo-French allies is under way, according to a Berlin dispatch, and in the very first dash of the French and English troops after an incessant bombardment of the German lines for over fifty hours the allies were repulsed by the Germans. The Bulgar-Greek mobilization is now explained as a measure of "armed neutrality" like that of Holland and Switzerland. But the conduct of the Rumanians seems to be causing exceptional displeasure to the German press. The Rumanians made one or two casual moves, without losing a man, that sealed the issues of the last Balkan war. Theirs is the "fine Italian hand," and it may be in the range of possibility that they will repeat the Balkan coup in the present "unpleasantness."

Carranza is entirely affable. He says so himself. He wants Americans and other foreigners to come to Mexico, if Carranza subjugates Mexico, and help the Mexicans along. But he doesn't want them coming there in quest of "special privileges." He probably aims to give them a peon's wage.

GEN. CARRANZA TALKS TO LOS ANGELES "TIMES"

Wants Americans and Other Foreigners to Help Develop Mexico.

"But They Must not Come in Quest of Special Privileges," Declares the First Chief of the Constitutional Cause — Details the Motives of the Insurrection He is Leading.

BY BERNARD GALLANT.

[BY MEXICAN CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

VERA CRUZ, Sept. 25.—In the following striking interview with Gen. Carranza, the Constitutionalist leader sets forth for the first time his full views toward the United States and the Latin American powers, discusses frankly just what the Americans and all other foreigners may expect from him, what his views are on the various problems confronting Mexico and what he intends to do to establish peace and his purpose in doing so.

Carranza is not a picturesque individual. There is no romance and glamour about him. He is essentially a man of letters, a schemer and a student. He does not seem to possess the exuberance and vivacity so common among Latins. He is rather reticent, slow and meditative. But he waxes enthusiastic as he talks about the revolution in Mexico.

THE INTERVIEW.

"My ambition from the beginning," Gen. Carranza said to me in a slow, hard voice, "was peace for Mexico. For that very reason I took up the banner of revolution against the dictator Huerta, because I knew that we could not have peace so long as injustices were committed in the name of liberty.

"When Huerta was eliminated and the cause of Constitutionalism triumphed I begged Gen. Villa to forget all personal differences, meet me in Havana and there come to an understanding. But at that time Gen. Villa seemed the stronger and he was not seeking peace. He became a traitor, and plunged his country into an unnecessary civil war, but now when he has been vanquished he is pleading for peace conferences. The same thing happened with Gen. Zapata. I sent special envoys to him, begged him in the name of the welfare of Mexico to forget all differences and promised to carry out his agrarian plan, but the personal ambitions of his secretaries were greater than the needs of their country. They were seduced by the sweet words of Gen. Villa and now they, too, are eager for peace conferences. Have they forgotten that I sought peace many months ago before unnecessary blood was shed, long before they were defeated? But then none of these men would listen to me.

"In a few months, both Gen. Villa and Gen. Zapata will be eliminated. For that very reason I find it unnecessary to parley with them in peace conferences, much as I respect the kind offers of the United States and the Latin republics. I am convinced that the United States and the representatives of the Latin republics have nothing but the welfare of Mexico at heart. I am sure they are seeking to establish peace in our strife-torn country and nothing else. But I disagree with their methods of procedure, not with their ideas. I feel that our enemies must be vanquished completely or there will be no lasting peace in Mexico. Francisco I. Madero paid with his life by compromising with his enemies. Had he eliminated them Mexico would perhaps, by now, be enjoying peace and the respect of the nations of the world. The Constitutionalists are not going to make the same mistakes. We are going to benefit by the experiences of the past."

ATTITUDE TOWARD FOREIGNERS.

From the windows of the lighthouse, where Gen. Carranza and I sat, could be seen the harbor of Vera Cruz and the gunboats of the United States. When he stopped and saw me gazing at them, with the muzzles of their guns pointed toward the city, I looked at him and asked him his attitude toward foreigners in general, and the people of the United States in particular. I asked him what were the chances of American investors in Mexico. I told him that in the United States reports were current that the Constitutionalists believed in confiscation and were imbued with ideas of Socialism and anarchism. He looked at me seriously and said:

"Are you acquainted with the causes of the revolution? Let me give you a brief review of what is actually transpiring in our country.

"The revolution in Mexico is not of a political nature. It is an economic revolution. It means the industrial awakening of Mexico.

"During the days of Diaz the natural resources of the country were exploited by a few rich friends of Diaz who were given special concessions. Only those few developed the country. Others—Mexicans as well as foreigners—had no opportunity whatever. Mexico was a land of special privileges. This could not last forever and the result was the present revolution.

"Mexico is a country rich in natural resources, but all its wealth is merely potential. Money, and a great deal of it, has to be invested before we can utilize the riches of our country. We know this very well, and for that reason we want foreigners to come and exploit our resources, but they will come in the future under different conditions.

"Mexico will no longer be a land of special privileges, but a land of a million opportunities. It will be a country where all will be given an equal chance. Yes, indeed, we want foreigners, but we expect them to come to Mexico under different conditions than they did in the days of Diaz.

"They accuse us of being confiscators. A little reasoning will immediately show the fallacy of such a thought. Of what value could all the foreign property be to us even if we did confiscate it? Mines, oil fields and other property are of no value if they are not exploited. To confiscate them would mean nothing more than getting a white elephant on our hands. But when they are operated

EUROPEAN WAR AS A PICNIC.

Civil War Veterans Declare They Endured Worse Hardships.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CHICAGO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Sept. 25.—Life in the war trenches of Europe is like the comforts of a parlor compared with the hardships endured during the Civil War. This was the unanimous verdict today of sturdy veterans of the Civil War who met at the forty-fourth annual convention of the Illinois Cavalry Association. Robert Commons of Company B, Fourth Illinois Cavalry, one of three men who escaped from the Andersonville Confederate prison, spoke of the hardships of Civil War campaigns. "European trenches of the present war are like parlor homes," he said. "In the Civil War we often lived all day on a single corn pone, cooked without lard or yeast and washed down with tepid water full of animal life and southern mud. On Sundays we got four ears of raw corn if we were lucky."

FARRALONES HEAR AN S.O.S. SIGNAL.

PASSENGER STEAMER BELIEVED IN DISTRESS OFF COAST OF CALIFORNIA.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 25.—An S.O.S. call from an unknown ship at sea was picked up tonight at 10:35 o'clock by the wireless operator on the Farralone Islands. A few minuates later the call was repeated. The operator was unable to ascertain the name of the ship in distress or to get into communication with it.

Later in the night a futile concerted effort was made by all the wireless stations on the Pacific Coast to locate the vessel in distress. All the operators were ordered to discontinue sending, while the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Company's radios swept the clear field. No answer was forthcoming, however.

SIGNAL PICKED UP.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SEATTLE (Wash.) Sept. 25.—A passenger steamer, not one of the big liners, however, late tonight sent out S.O.S. signals, which were picked up by various wireless stations. It is believed the ship in distress is off the California coast.

VILLA EXPECTED SOON IN SONORA.

EL PASO (Tex.) Sept. 25.—Gen. Villa will follow his troops to Sonora as soon as his troops now en route westward are mobilized in that State, according to an official announcement today. It is expected Gen. Villa will reach Juarez on Monday. Gen. Juan Banderas, Zapata leader now with Villa, has been appointed military commander and Governor of Sinaloa State. He is expected at Juarez within a few days to join the Villa troops on their western migration.

Friends of Gen. Raoul Madero, the Villa leader, held prisoner by the Thirteenth Cavalry at Marfa, Tex., today were advised by Gen. Hugh L. Scott, Chief of Staff, that Madero and his companions would be brought to Tl Paso and released as soon as their identity was established.

Madero and several of his officers were captured by the border patrol Friday when they attempted to cross the line in the vicinity of Ojinaga. Madero's credentials as a peace commissioner representing the Villa government before the pan-American conference have already been presented to the State and War departments by Gen. Roque Gonzales Garza, who reached Washington several days ago.

COLLINS MAY BE FREED.

Appellate Justice Burnett of San Francisco Signs Application for Pardon of Lawyer Perjurer.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 25.—Appellate Justice Albert G. Burnett today signed the application of Attorney George D. Collins of San Francisco for pardon from San Quentin Prison, where he is serving a term of fourteen years for perjury. Justice Burnett was judge of the Superior Court of Sonoma county and tried and sentenced Collins in San Francisco in 1906. Collins has served more than half his term in San Quentin and has been a model prisoner. Previous to his conviction Collins spent three years in the San Francisco Jail.

Originally Collins was charged with bigamy. Collins was married and had two children. After a trip to the East, he returned with a second wife. It was learned after he was arrested on the bigamy charge that the children were not those of his first wife, but of her sister, whom he declared was his true wife. He was then arrested upon a charge of perjury, upon which he was tried and convicted. He once evaded the courts of California and escaped to Canada. He was, however, returned to California for trial.

It is said Judge Lennon of the First District Court of Appeal and Judge W. H. Langdon of Stanislaus county, former District Attorney of San Francisco, will also sign the petition.

MODERN BATTLE SEEN BY A LOS ANGELES MAN.

More Science than Spectacle in the Engagements in Russia.

Even the Captain Who Directs the Men Handling the Guns Sees Probably Even Less than the War Correspondents — More Thrills in Watching a Man Shingle the Roof of a Bungalow.

BY HARRY CARR.

[SPECIAL FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

WARSAW, Aug. 18.—All my life I have dreamed of seeing a battle. Well, I have seen the battle. The next time I want a real thrill I will go watch a man shingling a roof. I fear that modern war correspondence is mostly bunk. We started early this morning in a big automobile bus. On the front seat with the chauffeur sat an armed guard. We began to feel as though we were near a war.

Before leaving the city, the Russians dynamited all the magnificent bridges that spanned the Vistula. As far as you could see, looking up and down the river, the great steel arches were lying like drowned monsters, in the mud and water. At the Czar Nicholas Bridge, the German pioneer troops had constructed a military bridge of planks and piling. All day and all night refugees and troops were pouring over this.

For half a mile at both ends of the bridge the traffic waited for a chance to cross. The German sentries at the ends of the bridge managed it like traffic policemen. They let the stream run in one direction until it piled up too high; then they stopped and let it cross the other way. We took our place in the procession and waited for our turn. In front of us was a farm wagon in which a Polish peasant was taking his motherless little girl back to a pile of demolished brick that had once been their house. Behind us was a German army wagon with supplies for the front. The pleading, sorrowful eyes of that little girl still trouble me. We got across at last and drove for a while along a well-kept Polish military road that connected Warsaw with the fortress of Novogeorgievak, which was the real defense of the capital. I remember passing a railroad depot in whose yards were acres upon acres of freight and passenger cars burned by the retreating Russians into iron scrap. We went through several villages in which the German military police were stopping and examining all the refugees and issuing permits. At last the villages ceased and we came to the open country.

EXPLODING SHRAPNEL.

The road dove into the depths of a forest. As we got in among the trees there came a sound that brought the auto to a stop so abruptly that the wheels skidded. It was the crack of exploding shrapnel. It came bump, bump, bump, bump, with the regular crash of a giant walking down stairs. It had a very peculiar tight sound like a firecracker exploding in a barrel. It stopped for a moment; then it came again, this time in a titanic splutter. The Russian captain had ordered a tremendous "fire by battery" and the four guns were all speaking at once.

This time, you could hear the whine of the shells and off in the fields beyond the forest you could see puffs of white smoke against the green. The Russian artillery was feeling around a little.

The little artillery captain ordered us out of the car and off the road while he went forward to reconnoiter. Directly ahead and across the road was a bulwark of tree boughs. No one knew what was behind it and I didn't envy the captain his job as he went forward to investigate. We found out afterward it had been abandoned by the Russians a few hours before. They had begun to give ground.

After a long time, the captain returned and we were allowed to move forward to a line of trenches that had been abandoned by the Germans that morning as they moved forward. Pocket-knives and cartridges were lying around as though they had moved forward on a hurry order. Just beyond were the Russian trenches, which were also deserted. The captain wouldn't let us go any further. We skirted around the edge of a wood. A little grass-grown road ran in among the trees. Here we found a goulash cannon, as the soldiers call the field kitchens. It was an enormous soup kettle on wheels drawn by four horses. Behind it was a funny little Russian carriage, something like a victoria, which had no doubt been the elegant equipage of some Polish belle. The army had commandeered it to hold the big cans of coffee.

We were at the temporary base of a battalion of infantry. Two companies were resting in the woods behind us and two companies were in the trenches over a little hill in front of us. While we were having lunch at the soup kitchen a detail of men came in with small metal pails to carry the noonday meal out to the men in the trenches. As a steady job, carrying soup to the trenches must be about as healthy as jumping off ten-story buildings. I was interested to see the mental attitude of the men as they started out on this mission of peril. As a dramatic incident I will have to confess it was disappointing. They all picked up the pails and started off as though they were to deliver the evening's milk.

THE GERMAN PRIVATE.

The German private soldier, as we saw him, is a gentle soul. I can understand now the stories I have heard of soldiers who returned weeping from a bayonet charge. One of the men carrying this soup to the advance trenches heard me mention coffee. He dropped his whole collection of soup and ran at least an eighth of a mile to get me something to drink coffee in, coming back beaming. If I were about to take my life in my hands as he did, I wouldn't care a damn whether anybody ever had coffee.

Half way up the little hill just beyond the edge of the woods was a small cave that had been dug into the slope. In this cave Expenditure.

OVER MILLION FOR BELGIANS.

Rockefeller Foundation Fund is Well Expended.

Dr. Alexis Carrel Attached to the French Corps.

Commission of Three Visits All Countries at War.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—The expenditure of nearly $1,000,000 for relief work in Belgium, the appropriation of funds for medical work and research and investigation of conditions in Belgium, Holland, Poland and Servia, was the work done by the War Relief Commission of the Rockefeller Foundation in Europe up to January 1, 1915. A review of the Foundation's activities after the outbreak of the war and up to January 1 was made public today as the second part of its annual report.

The commission expended for Belgian relief $1,185,146.46 and later received refunds for expenses of ships and for the cargo of the steamer Massapequa from the commission for relief in Belgium of $199,107.52, making the net amount expended by the Foundation in this phase of its work $986,038.94. This sum purchased more than 2,000,000 pounds of rice, more than 27,000,000 pounds of flour, 2,000,000 pounds of beans, peans and lentils, 250,000 pounds of bacon and large amounts of coffee, lard, salt, sugar, milk and new and old clothing. In addition to purchasing food, the Foundation acted for several months as the receiver for clothing for Belgium, having a temporary office in New York for that purpose.

Within two weeks after the outbreak of war the Foundation appropriated money to enable Dr. Alexis Carrel of the Rockefeller Institute and attached to the French army medical corps to purchase antimeningitis serum and antidysentery serum, as well as setting aside funds for the use of the American Red Cross in sending physicians and nurses to Europe.

In addition to its work for the Belgians, the Foundation sent a commission of three to Europe to inquire into relief measures needed in all the countries affected by the war. This commission was composed of Wickliffe Rose, director-general of the International Health Commission; Ernest H. Bicknell, national director of the American Red Cross, and Henry James, Jr., manager of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research.

The commissioners visited Belgium and Holland and made a survey of conditions for relief in those countries. The commissioners later went to Poland and Servia and by aJnuary 1 their recommendations as to relief measures by the foundation had been presented to the trustees for consideration.

Another feature of the foundation's work was an appointment for those professors of scientific subjects in the University of Louvain, who had been obliged to abandon their laboratories and who had been provided with opportunities for pursuing their labor in England.

most points between Champagne and the Argonne, their retreating columns losing very heavily from artillery fire.

SOFIA (via London) Sept. 26, 1:54 a.m.—It is semi-officially stated that Bulgaria has merely declared an armed neutrality like Holland and Switzerland at the beginning of the war and will continue conversations with the two belligerent groups.

LONDON, Sept. 25, 11:25 p.m.—The development of events in the Balkans and on the Belgian coast now monopolize attention, the Russian front being for the movement overshadowed.

So far as the Balkans are concerned, the present crisis is considered more suited to military than diplomatic action, one minister stating that great developments are imminent.

Since Monday last there has been a more or less continuous bombardment of Ostend, Zeebrugge and other points on the Belgian coast, and, according to rumor, an enterprise is being attempted which may change the whole aspect of the war on the western front.

Dispatches from Holland say heavy firing has been heard on many occasions during the week to the north of Ameland, which would indicate that if the Germans have not actually undertaken to oppose the British ships, part of the German fleet ventured out to learn what was happening.

The Russians are believed to be more than holding their own at various points along their line.

In the west the artillery is the only arm that could be considered at all active while in the Dardanelles and on the Italian frontier the heavy gun fire has been occasionally interrupted to give local detachments of infantry an opportunity to attack.

THE BELGIAN REPORT.

PARIS, Sept. 25, 10:47 p.m.—The Belgian official communication issued today says:

"During the day of September 25 the enemy's artillery displayed great activity on the entire front."

OFFICIAL VIENNA REVIEW.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

VIENNA, Sept. 25 (via London, 9:30 p.m.)—The following Austrian official statement was given out here today:

"Russian war theater: Against our Volhynian front the enemy began several attacks, leading at some points to our trenches, but all were repulsed, the Russians suffering great losses. The number of prisoners captured on the Ikwa line Thursday and Friday amounted to twenty officers and about 4000 men.

"Austro-Hungarian cavalry advancing through the forest and marshy district of the lower Styr again captured some villages which were stubbornly defended by the Russians.

"In Lithuania, our troops advanced into the district of Kraszyn.

"Italian war theater: On the west front of the Tyrol our artillery opened fire in the Ortler district. East of the upper Doane Valley our troops cleared Cima Latola of the enemy.

"On the front of the Dolomites an attack against our position at Col del Pois failed, as a result of which the Alpine troops who volunteered for the attack suffered great losses.

"West of Roniki an Italian captive balloon exploded.

"Southeastern war theater: Our artillery successfully bombarded Servian convoys in the Belgrade district and enemy infantry on Topcider Height."

GAS EMPLOYED IN RIGA BATTLE.

Fierce Battle Being Fought on the Dvinsk Front.

Forty-first Corps of German Army Loses Heavily.

Teutons Also are Repulsed in Fight Near Dubno.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PETROGRAD, Sept. 25 (via London, Sept. 26.)—The following Russian official war statement was given out here tonight:

"The cannonade in the Riga region has become much more intense in places, the Germans using asphyxiating shells.

"A fierce battle has been fought along the whole front of the Dvinsk position between Dvina and Lake Drisviaty, where the Germans, supported by the hurricane fire of their artillery, delivered repeated desperate attacks, all of which were repulsed. Certain trenches changed hands frequently.

During an attack along the Dvinsk road in the district of Lake Lavkez near Novo Alexandrovsk, the enemy first succeeded in entering our trenches, but afterwards was ejected by a counter attack. Gathering themselves together, the Germans again rushed in compact columns upon our trenches, but were forced to retire in disorder. Twice attacks of the same nature subsequently were repeated in the same direction.

"The artillery fire here was extreme in its intensity but all attacks were repulsed. The enemy losses were enormous. The heaviness of our losses, due to the desperate fighting, is the best proof of the valor of our troops. During one counter attack a Russian detachment in the heat of the fight was surrounded by Germans but cut its way out and joined the other troops.

"Isolated actions have occurred in the districts of Novogrodek and Baranovichi. According to later reports, during the engagement near Logischin the Forty-first German Corps suffered severe losses and during its retreat we made prisoners of seven officers and 500 unwounded men and captured a cannon and seven machine guns. We also captured many German wounded, but the number is not yet established.

"In a hot engagement near Dubno for the villages of Khorupagne and Golovtechna, our troops by a frontal attack captured thirty officers, about 1600 men and a machine gun. This attack was delivered under the enemy's hurricane artillery fire, which subsequently forced our troops to retreat towards the River Ikwa.

"In the region adjoining Galicia the enemy launched a series of attacks near the villages of New Alexinetz, but our troops, by a counter attack, overthrew him and took more than 3000 prisoners and captured four machine guns.

"Near the village of Dobrapole, Galicia, southwest of Trembowin, our cavalry charged the enemy, who fled. Our cavalry, pursuing the enemy horse, sabred a great many and captured about 500, with several officers."

BUDGET FIGHT ON FREE TRADE.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Sept. 25.—The new budget has brought up the free trade issue once more. Certain of the uncompromising free-traders in the House of Commons are organizing a fight against the new import duties proposed by Chancellor McKenna, basing their opposition on "the violation of the principles of free trade" and "the infinitesimal returns which the taxes will bring into the exchequer."

Sir Alfred Mond, chairman of the Free Trade Union, is heading the movement. He has called a meeting of radical members of the House to take action against what he characterizes as protestation.

FOOD SHORTAGE IN PETROGRAD.

[BY WIRELESS AND A. P.]

BERLIN, Sept. 25 (by wireless to Tuckerton, N. J.)—The Overseas News Agency says:

"Information has been received from Petrograd picturing conditions there as serious. Facilities for taking food supplies to the capital are inadequate and only 153 cars of wheat and flour reached the city in August, as compared with 2132 in May. The bakeries are shutting down and, as the supplies of food on hand are sufficient for only one week, a famine threatens. Sugar, salt, tobacco and petroleum are unobtainable. There is only enough fuel for military hospitals, and private families have to do without it."

DISMISSES BURKE CASE.

Courts of Panama to Deal with American Alleged to be in Conspiracy to Defraud.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 25. — On motion of the United States District Attorney Frank C. Dailey, the cases of Rickardo Bermudese of Colon, Panama, and John Burke of Indianapolis, indicted last June for alleged conspiracy to defraud the United States government, were dismissed in Federal Court here today. Dailey announced that the government has been assured the men will be dealt with by the courts of Panama.

Bermudese and Jacob L. Salaz sold supplies to John Burke, manager of the commissary department of the railroad. It was charged that Bermudese paid Burke about $20,000 for the contracts to supply the government with certain merchandise.

Burke, whose home is in Indianapolis, is said to have cashed drafts received from Bermudese at local banks.

He sat here, in one of the chairs, with a field telephone fastened to his head like a hello girl and told the troops out in the trenches what to do next. Unless he walked up the crest to a little ditch dug into the top of the hill, he did not see his men. They allowed us to go up to this observation trench, two by two. We squatted down in the freshly-dug earth and peeked cautiously down upon the first battle I have seen. Strict candor compels me to state that it wasn't worth the climb. A battle henceforth will be my idea of nothing to see. If the Waterloo of Napoleon had been like the Waterloo of the Czar of Russia, I fear there would have been hard times in the Victor Hugo family. I think one can fairly say the battle we saw was the Waterloo of Russia in Poland and this is exactly what it looked like: From the hill over which we peeked there stretched a pleasant pasture land sprinkled with wild flowers. Half way up a gentle slope was a long yellow gash of fresh turned earth. That was the German trench from which the soldiers of the Kaiser were driving the Czar out of a great empire. At the top of the slope, at the edge of a little wood was another gash of earth: there the Russians were fighting. We could hear guns firing and once in a while we could see puffs of white smoke; that was all. Not a soldier was to be seen. Yet, I dare say it was one of the great battles of history. Literally it was the great Czar of the white Russias defending his last ditch in Poland.

We really got a better idea of what it was all about a little alter when they took us to see two Russian forts that had fallen within the week. A modern fort is no longer a ring around a city. A fort is a series of earthworks situated for the most part several miles from the place they are defending. Thus the principal defense of Warsaw was the fortress of Novogeorgievsk and the principal defense of Novogeorgievsk was a wide circle of forts each of which was a series of trenches, barbed wire entanglements and gun implacements. Two o fthese forts had fallen within eight days and three had fallen that morning. Novogeorgievsk was suffering destruction by the ling chee process.

The first fortress we visited was Zegrze. This defended an important passage of the Narew and had been built originally in the time of Napoleon. It had an ancient citadel with great iron gates, drawbridges, bastions and stone walls. Outside of these it had modern earthworks. It was typical of everything else we saw of the Russians' defenses in that it was given up without a struggle.

The Russians made no attempt to defend it.

When the Germans advanced to attack by a wide flank movement, they found the fortress deserted; the Russians had pulled out without a fight. The next fort we visited explained very clearly why the Slavs did not tarry in Zegrze. This other fort was Dembe, one of the strongholds of Poland. It was an immense earthwork with implacements for heavy guns. Beyond its outer rim was a huge ditch built of solid concrete and beyond the ditch were the infantry trenches and the wire entanglements. About half an acre of this concrete structure lay down in the bottom of the ditch, a mass of debris. Down the middle of the fort was a row of craters; they looked like smallpox marks on a giant. They told the whole story. The 42 centimeters had spoken. There were just ten craters, neatly distributed through the fort. Ten shots had been enough for Dembe and what happened to Dembe was enough for Zegrze. Zegrze didn't wait to try any of it.

Darkness came over the battlefield as we motored back toward Warsaw. As we were trundling along at the edge of a little wood, we saw lanterns flashing and bobbing and we stopped to investigate. Dark shapes were crawling out from the wood to the road. By the light of the lanterns we could see heavy traction engines drawing something covered with canvas. Big Betsy, one of the Austrian 30.5-centimeter howitzers was moving in a little closer. It looked exactly like a circus moving out of town. Men in rough, dirty clothes were moving about among the wagons, packing in the canvas by the flickering light of lanterns. We were almost prepared to believe that the big thing under the tarpaulin was the cage of the hippopotamus until the young Austrian captain tore off the canvas and proudly showed us the monster cannon. He told us a lot of things about Betsy that we are not permitted to repeat. He said he would have Betsy set up by daylight in the new position and he added grimly that he didn't think that Novogeorgievsk would hold out very long after she got there.

That young Austrian captain interested me a lot. He had a curious job. He was like the stoker on a battleship. He wielded the thunder bolts of destruction, but he never saw any battles. He was always stationed somewhere in the woods four or five miles from the thing he was battering. The battle never lasted very long after he got Betsy into working order; but not a man of his battery had been killed since the war began a year ago. His battery was just an unromantic old foundry where death was manufactured. The last we saw of him he was moving into the darkness trudging along behind old Betsy, who was groaning and grunting along behind a traction engine. The forts of Novogeorgievsk surrendered shortly after dawn the next morning.

The bombardment was in progress as we took the long night ride back to Warsaw. We could hear the somber roll of the guns and see the light in the sky. It was something like the northern lights that you see sometimes in New England. Occasionally there would come a brighter flash that told of the explosion of one of the big shells. Once the whole sky lit up as though a magazine had exploded. It was a strange panorama.

During the day we had visited Gen. Baseler, the hero of Antwerp, to whom had been given the job of battering down Novogeorgievsk. His headquarters were in an old villa belonging to one of the Polish nobility. It was in a little park adorned by much statuary. The stairway, down which he came to meet us, was flanked by six Grecian goddesses in a rather dilapidated condition, who smiled primly out of faces that were sometimes half missing. Gen. Baseler was a gentleman who told us to tell our people if we would keep our ammunition at home the relations of our respective nations would be better. He was directing the battle from a room in which there were maps and a telephone switch board.

As we rode home that night watching the flash and glare of that shell storm, it seemed an irony that it should be governed by a war god sitting in somebody's front parlor with a map and that the lightning bolts should be hurled by young men, who had never seen a man killed, but whose work was to fuss over a giant mass of steel machinery. It began to dawn upon me that the dramatic part of modern war is its utter lack of drama.

BASE HOPES ON X-RAYS.

Doctors Predict Tuberculosis will be Non-fatal.

Rest Faith on Discovery of Dr. Gibson of Denver.

Prevents Disease from Reaching Advanced Stage.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 25. — Physicians, who have spent years in the study of tuberculosis, declared today at the closing session of the seventh annual meeting of the American Association of Clinical Research at the Hahnemann Medical College that the cure evolved by Dr. Jefferson D. Gibson of Denver, Colo., retiring president of the association, is one that in ten years ought to place tuberculosis among the relatively nonfatal diseases.

Dr. Gibson mentioned the cure in his address opening the meeting on Thursday and described it in detail in a paper at today's session. It provides a cure by adding X-rays, ozone and static electricity to the climatic and dietetic treatment now common in tuberculosis hospitals. By this method, he claims, the presence of the disease can be detected in healthy, robust persons, even before the well-known symptoms begin to form and cures can be effected in advanced cases in remarkably short time.

In his paper today Dr. Gibson said: "It might seem that I have allowed my enthusiasm to run away with me in studying this cure, but I think a feeling of gratification, at least, is justified when I say that out of 757 cases thus treated there have been only 61 deaths. I wish to state now with emphasis that the X-ray will finally bring about the emancipation of the human race from this dreadful scourge. In a few years when the method is better developed, it will be a disgrace for a physician to allow a case of tuberculosis of any kind to progress to an advanced stage because the X-rays even now find the incipient tendencies, even before the symptoms form."

LONGSHOREMEN GO ON STRIKE.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—Four hundred longshoremen working on piers in the North River struck today for more pay.

The walk-out increases the number of longshoremen on strike to about 800, which together with 2100 men who have been on strike for a week or more at the railroad terminals on the New Jersey side of the Hudson, makes a total of nearly 3000 idle freight handlers in the metropolitan district.

The walk-out today was coincident with the posting of placards along the water front calling on river boats, boatmen, deckhands, firemen, etc., "to organize to get our share of the extra profits owners are gaining on our labor since the European war began."

NEW SUBWAY CAVES IN; ONE DEAD, THREE INJURED.

Theater District of Broadway, New York, the Scene of an Accident and Great Excitement Among the Saturday Night Crowds — Near-by Amusement Houses are Ordered Closed by the Police.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—One death and the injury of three other persons resulted from the caving in of the street over the new subway in Broadway near Thirty-eighth street tonight. An unidentified woman was caught in the falling debris and died later in a hospital. The others injured were men. The police and firemen continued their search for several workmen reported missing.

The accident occurred a few blocks from the heart of the theater district shortly before 8 o'clock. Broadway was crowded with people.

The weakening of supports in the subway, due to weight of traffic, is believed to have caused the superstructure of beams and planking to collapse making a hole about fifty feet long, running north from the west side of Broadway at Thirty-eighth street and extending about half way across Broadway. The pit was about thirty feet deep.

Two of the injured were a man and a woman, passengers in an automobile that was carried into the hole. The other person injured is believed to be a workman.

A crowded street car was approaching the spot just prior to the cave-in when the motorman saw the car tracks ahead sag. He applied the brakes in time to prevent the car from being carried down. At least a score of persons were carried down with the mass of twisted timbers. Police reserves and firemen were called out and nearly a dozen ambulances soon were at the scene.

The majority of persons were pulled out of the pit without difficulty. Gas and water mains were broken in the cave-in, but the flow was quickly shut off.

After the police had roped off the scene of the accident the fire department ordered two theaters across the street closed for the night.

Travis S. Whitney, secretary of the Public Service Commission, after a preliminary examination, said the accident was caused by a cave-in of earth outside the work of construction. Secretary Whitney said the timber construction was inspected yesterday and pronounced in good condition.

Tonight's accident occurred less than a mile from that of Wednesday, when the superstructure of the new subway at Seventh avenue and Twenty-fifth street collapsed, causing seven deaths.

ZEEBRUGGE BOMBARDED BY A BRITISH FLEET.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Sept. 26, 1:20 a.m.—The Amsterdam correspondent of Reuter's Telegram Company says the Handelsblad's correspondent on the Island of Cadzand, province of Zeeland, Holland, sends the following account of the bombardment of Zeebrugge, Belgium, by a British squadron:

"An English squadron consisting of five large warships and twenty-five smaller vessels opened fire on Zeebrugge at 6:30 o'clock in the morning. Only two of the big ships fired, from what apparently were 28-centimeter guns. The German batteries replied with lighter guns, but not until 10 o'clock.

"A big column of smoke at 7 o'clock arose above Zeebrugge, apparently caused by shell fire from an English vessel, in order to establish a better target. The English also employed light guns but the shots did not reach the coast and probably were directed against submarines.

"From time to time a German aeroplane flew from the coast to the fleet, while a captive balloon also ascended from Zeebrugge.

"The fleet departed at 10:30 o'clock."

WILSON WANTS HIGHER TARIFF.

President Confesses Colossal Blunder of His Party.

Restoration of Duty on Wool and Sugar is Promised.

Protection for Infant Chemical Industries Assured.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Sept. 25.—President Wilson has decided to propose a revision of the existing Democratic tariff law by the Sixty-fourth Congress, which assembles on December 6, next.

Mr. Wilson concedes the advisability of revising the tariff upward, as demanded by the Republicans ever since the country began to feel the grip of the "hard times" following the enactment of the Underwood-Simmons law embodying the Democratic conception of downward revision. The President, however, does not intend to permit revision so far upward as his opponents desire.

THE PROGRAMME.

Mr. Wilson is not committed at present to a complete revision of the tariff. He contemplates proposing changes in only a few schedules. It is not unlikely that the principal amendments recommended will be the following:

Retention of a duty on sugar, which under the existing law goes on the free list on May 1, next.

Restoration of a duty on raw wool, which under the existing law is admitted free.

Increase of duties on dyestuffs, chemicals and other products of infant American industries created by the blockade of German exports.

Increase of the revenue from the income tax either by raising the rate or reducing the exemption.

Mr. Wilson also has been giving his attention to the question of the establishment of a tariff commission which is being urged anew by Republicans and "Progressives" as a means of removing the tariff from politics.

It transpired during the day that the President expressed his views on this matter in a letter to former Gov. Cox of Ohio, who wrote to Mr. Wilson proposing the creation of a tariff commission. Mr. Cox is a Democrat and in his letter he expressed the views of a vast number of Ohio Democrats whose advocacy of a tariff commission was a conspicuous feature of the political developments of the last Congress.

WILSON'S LETTER.

President Wilson's reply to Mr. Cox, hitherto unpublished, follows:

THE WHITE HOUSE,
Washington, Aug. 27, 1915.

My Dear Governor: I sincerely appreciate your letter of August [illegible]. The matter of which it speaks has been very much in my mind and my thought is this: The full powers of a tariff commission are already lodged in existing organs of the government; most of them, and really more than the former commission had, in the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce of the Department of Commerce and others (powers of investigation chiefly) in the hands of the new Federal Trade Commission.

Perhaps it would be better if these various powers were assembled in the hands of one bureau or department, but aside from that I think the machinery exists for a thorough scientific treatment of tariff questions. If anything is lacking to give these powers efficiency, I am, of course, heartily in favor of doing it.

Please accept my warmest thanks and much sincere appreciation of your interesting letter.

Cordially and sincerely yours,
[Signed] WOODROW WILSON.

Some of the President's advisers are opposed to any tinkering with the tariff at a session which will adjourn upon the eve of the Presidential election. They fear that the animosities invariably engendered by the overhauling of the tariff would spell the ruin of the Democratic party at the polls.

BIG SPERM WHALE CHARGES STEAMER.

VESSEL ALMOST SWAMPED AS RESULT OF BATTLE OFF CRUZOF ISLAND.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SEATTLE, Sept. 25.—Showing the effects of a desperate battle with a huge sperm whale while [illegible] south of Mount Edgecumbe, Cruzof Island, near the entrance [illegible] Sound, on June 15, the steam whaling steamer Star III of the United States Whaling Company, Capt. [illegible] Halls, Gunner G. Earling, reached Eagle Harbor this afternoon.

While taking one of the big mammals, which members of the crew described as "just like an ocean liner," the big fellow charged the steamer, damaging the gunwale and the second towing chock on the [illegible] side and bending and crumpling a plate in the bulwarks for a distance of several feet. The great weight of the whale, combined with a strong westerly wind and sea, swamped the little steamer.

The total catch of the fleet of [illegible] vessels was 170 whales.

CAPT. MUELLER MURDERED.

Brother of Slain Man in Wisconsin on Puckaway Lake Has a Winter Home in Pasadena.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

MILWAUKEE (Wis.) Sept. 25.—Capt. Robert W. Mueller, whose only living relative is his brother Carl, well-known San Francisco banker, and whose own winter home is in Pasadena, was murdered with his wife some time last night at their summer home on Puckaway Lake, 100 miles from here, in the hunting section of Wisconsin.

Capt. Mueller was murdered by robbers seeking a large sum of money he was reported to carry with him or by poachers whom he had been forced to drive off his property at the point of a gun. Capt. Mueller was for forty years a Milwaukee banker, succeeding his brother Carl as paying teller of the First [illegible] Bank when Carl retired [illegible].

He was a member of [illegible] governor's staff and for [illegible] was a member of the [illegible] Guard cavalry organization [illegible] State.

REPULSE OF THE ALLIES DETAILED BY GERMANS.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

BERLIN (via London) Sept. 25.—Following is the full text of the official German report of operations in the west in which it is stated the French and English have been repulsed:

"Along the entire front, from the sea to the Vosges, the enemy fire has increased. It was especially violent east of Ypres between La Bassee Canal and Arras and also in Champagne from Prosnes to the Argonne.

"After severe artillery preparation, which at some points lasted fifty hours, the expected attack began.

"Between the railways of Ypres, Roulers and Comines, the British attacked early this morning. Their attack on the northern wing already has been repulsed, after hand-to-hand fighting before and in our positions.

"They are further attacking to the northeast and the southeast of Armentiers and north of La Bassee Canal.

"On Thursday evening, as has only now become known, the French penetrated our battered-down trenches near Souchez. We ejected them yesterday. The French again were repulsed yesterday near Souchez and on both sides of Neuville.

"In Champagne from Prosnes to the Argonne the French attacked, but at a majority of points were repulsed. This was due in part to our strong artillery fire. In part also the attacks collapsed a few steps in front of our obstructions under the first of our infantry and machine guns.

"The retreating enemy columns suffered considerable losses, owing to the very severe artillery and machine gun fire.

"At some points on the front hand-to-hand fighting is proceeding.

"Weak French attacks against Bezange-Legrand, north of Luneville, were unsuccessful.

"Eastern war theater, army group of Field Marshal Von Hindenburg: Russian attacks southwest of Lennewaden and near Vileka and Rabun were repulsed. Our attack on the front south of Soly is proceeding. The Russians still are resisting our advance on the line of Smorgon-Weischnew, west of Saberesina and Djeljatitschi. Near Friedrichstadt a German airman shot down a Russian aeroplane.

"Army group of Prince Leopold of Bavaria: North of Korelitschi, the Russians are offering stubborn resistance. Our troops stormed the town of Negniewitschi northeast of Nowogrodek and repulsed several strong counter-attacks. East and southeast of Baranovichi our attack on the west bank of the Sczara is progressing. We have captured several hundred prisoners west of Wedwjedikschi and south, near Lipsk, we reached the Szczara.

"Army group of Field Marshal Von Mackensen, and southeast war theater: The situation is unchanged."

Half a Billion.

BANKERS SUBMIT TERMS FOR THE CREDIT LOAN.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—Negotiations towards establishing a half-billion-dollar credit loan to Great Britain and France made little apparent progress today.

No one in close touch with the situation could be found who would deny a generally-credited report that the commission had submitted to the British and French governments the rough draft of terms satisfactory to American bankers, and was awaiting word from Paris and London before proceeding further with negotiations. The general belief was that a reply would be received here by Monday.

One report definitely denied was that the commission intended to depart for Europe next Saturday.

There appeared to be no change tonight in the reported tentative terms of the loan—the maximum to be $500,000,000 to be covered by an issue of joint Anglo-French five-year notes, bearing interest at the rate of 5 per cent. and to be sold to the investors at less than par. This figure, as yet undetermined, was said to be such as to yield the investor approximately 5½ per cent.

G.A.R. TO GIVE GRAND REVIEW.

Remnant of Veterans Plan to March Before Wilson.

Many Were in Big Event of Fifty Years Ago.

National Capital to Witness an Impressive Sight.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—Thousands of veterans of the Union Army are here on the eve of the forty-ninth annual encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic.

Fifty years after the last shot was fired survivors of the Union host, which marched from the Capitol to the White House, are to retrace their steps next Wednesday.

In the court of honor where President Johnson stood September 29, 1865, President Wilson will stand to greet the remnant of the victorious armies of Grant and Sherman. Elaborate plans have been made to assure the success of the encampment, and the city is in holiday array. Pennsylvania avenue, through which the military pageant will pass, is walled with the national colors, and flags flutter from windows and house tops.

By tomorrow it is expected 30,000 veterans, many of them survivors of the 160,000 who participated in the grand review of 1865, will have reached the city. Preparations for entertaining 100,000 visitors have been made. On the opening day of the encampment various informal receptions will be held and much of the time given over to registration under a system whereby veterans can easily find old comrades.

RECEPTION TO WILSON.

President Wilson will attend the first formal reception in a huge auditorium adapted for the purpose in the old Census Building near the Capitol, which also will contain headquarters of the various departments and army court of the Grand Army and allied organizations during the encampment. The following day the military review will be held.

Gen. Nelson A. Miles, who will act as marshal of the review, taking the place occupied by Gen. Sherman in 1865, and David J. Palmer, Commander-in-Chief of the G.A.R., already have arived. Among others, who are here or expected by tomorrow, are the following noted veterans:

Gen. James H. Wilson of Wilmington, Del., and Gen. Granville M. Dodge of Council Bluffs, Iowa, the only two living corps commanders of the Union Army; division commanders Gen. Adelbert Ames, of Mississippi, Gen. D. McM. Gregg of Pennsylvania; Gen. Lewis A. Grant, Minnesota; Gen. J. Warren Keifer of Ohio, and Brig.-Gen. John T. Wilder of Knoxville, Tenn. Nearly all the veterans who marched with Sherman and Grant who are enrolled for the line of march on Wednesday, have passed 70 years of age and it is probable that another commemoration of the event never will be held.

LINE OF MARCH.

The line of march for the parade will be from Peace Monument at the eastern entrance of the Capitol grounds, up Pennsylvania avenue and through a court of honor erected in front of the White House. With the President when he reviews the procession will be members of the Cabinet, other distinguished officers of the United States, justices of the Supreme Court and members of Congress. Behind the veterans in line there will be Sons of Veterans, various citizens' military organizations, troops of the regular army, marine corps and sailors from the fleet.

The parade, it is estimated, will require about three hours in passing. Gen. Miles, as honorary grand marshal of the parade, will have army and navy officers as his aides. Col. Holsey, Chief of Staff to the Commander-in-Chief of the G.A.R., will be the active marshal. As special guard to Commander-in-Chief Palmer will be the U. S. Grant Post of Brooklyn, N. Y. Veterans will march in their respective Grand Army departments, the line being headed by the Department of Illinois, which was the first to be organized after the war.

THE ENCAMPMENT.

On Thursday and Friday business sessions of the encampment, with sessions of allied organizations, will be held. After the election of grand officers Friday the veterans will proceed to Arlington National Cemetery, where President Wilson will lay the corner stone of a new national ampitheatre. Another feature will be a public reception in the Capitol Thursday evening, under the auspices of the Woman's Relief Corps. This organization, cooperating with the women of the G.A.R., will plant two trees, one on each side of the boulevard leading to the Lincoln Memorial in Potomac Park. The first spadeful of earth in planting the first tree will be turned by Commander-in-Chief David J. Palmer, while Mrs. Sarah E. Fulton, president of the Women's Relief Corps, will have that honor in planting the second tree.

One of the events for tomorrow will be the wig-wagging of a message of greeting and good-will to visiting veterans from President Wilson. The message will be signalled by men familiar with the old Meyer code, which was sent from station to station about Washington by survivors of the signal corps of fifty years ago.

SIGNALING FEATURES.

Signaling features of the encampment will continue throughout the week under charge of Lieut. George W. Round, president of the United States Veterans' Signal Corps Association. The main station of the veteran signal corps will be on the heights of Georgetown in the extreme western section of Washington and upon the spot where the government had its Signal Instruction Camps during the war. Mt. Tabor Methodist Church, which stands there will be the headquarters. From that point welcomes will be wig-wagged and messages of greeting and good-will to the world are to be sent. Other stations are established at Fort Stevens, Fort De Russy, the National Soldiers' Home, Fort Myer and the dome of the Capitol.

Secretary Garrison and Secretary Daniels have co-operated with the committees to entertain the veterans. Cavalry troops from Fort Myer are to give daily drill exhibitions on the Washington Monument grounds while submarines, torpedo boats and other naval craft unknown to civil war times are to be on exhibition in Washington harbor in the Potomac.

Mingling in the throngs of wearers of the blue who have reached here are wearers of the Confederate gray who were specially invited to attend the encampment. The invitations were extended as a result of the union of the Blue and the Gray at Gettysburg two years ago.

BANKS WAIT UNTIL MARCH.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—National banks wishing to sell their 2 per cent. government bonds in the way provided by the Federal Reserve Act will not have an opportunity to do so until after March 31, 1916, according to an announcement today by the Federal Reserve Board. Applications for the sale of such bonds, however, may be filed with the Treasurer of the United States at will. The board has received letters from several banks indicating a desire to dispose of their bonds which involves retiring national notes, which probably will be replaced when needed by Federal reserve notes.

Sept. 25.—Maneuvers trying out the coast defenses at New York, New London and Boston will be carried out next month between the forts and four divisions of destroyers, it was learned today. Why You Should Use Peruna

Because it has been in use in thousands of homes for over forty years.

Because it has come to be regarded as a standard remedy for coughs, colds and catarrhal diseases.

Because the manufacturers are reliable and enterprising citizens, and stand behind every claim made for the virtues of Peruna.

Because Peruna is to be found in nearly every drug store in the land, and is therefore convenient.

Because their free medical correspondence department is attended to by regular physicians, thus conveying valuable information.

Mrs. Bertha Sandmyer, Liberty, Ky., writes: "I thank you for your splendid advice and medicine. My seven-year-old son had catarrh of the head when I wrote you. Upon receiving your advice I sent for Peruna at once, and gave it to him according to directions. He is entirely cured."

AUTO HOLD-UP IN DAYLIGHT.

DARING EXPLOIT IN NEW YORK; BANDITS EASILY MAKE THEIR ESCAPE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—One of the most daring of the numerous hold-ups by automobile bandits that have taken place in this city in the last year occurred today when three men sprang from an automobile to a crowded sidewalk, blackjacked Charles Fried, a cashier, until he was unconscious, robbed him of a satchel containing $2000 in cash, jumped back into the automobile and sped away before an alarm could be given.

The robbery occurred on First avenue, between Seventy-eighth and Seventy-ninth streets. The hold-up was carried out with so much daring and speed that no attempt was made to intercept the bandits. Fried was taking the money from the Fleishmann bakery to the Germania Bank.

NEW YORK MILITIA SHOW EFFICIENCY.

TEN THOUSAND LOCAL TROOPS ENGAGE IN MANEUVERS IN THE CITY PARK.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—What the soldiers of New York City are capable of in time of war was demonstrated in Van Cortlandt Park today when 10,000 local troops of the New York National Guard engaged in maneuvers before many thousands of spectators.

Gov. Whitman and Gov. Walsh of Massachusetts watched the citizen-soldiers prove their efficiency. The two Governors were received with a salute of seventeen guns from parked artillery and joined with the spectators in the eager interest displayed in seeing for the first time within the city limits the game of war played with all the paraphernalia of the modern army.

The construction of a pontoon bridge across the park lake, of a trestle bridge on the field, the explosion of ground mines, the operation of a field wireless outfit, the establishment of a field hospital and cavalry and machine gun maneuvers were among the maneuvers which evoked applause. A sham battle was on the programme this afternoon.

ROCKEFELLER FOR MEDIATION.

Substitute for Recognition of Union is Favored.

Descends a Deep Mine Shaft, Drives Many Miles.

Will Outline Future Policy at Denver Conference.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PUEBLO (Colo.) Sept. 25.—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., tonight completed the first week of his inspection of Colorado properties of the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company. He reached Pueblo after a day spent at the mines of Fremont county and immediately boarded a Denver train. Monday, according to plans, he will begin a series of conferences with company officials in Denver, at which whatever policies are to result from his inspection trip will be formulated.

Since Mr. Rockefeller reached Trinidad last Monday, he has driven some hundreds of miles over mountains and plains in motor cars, dug coal in the Frederick mine and descended a 400-foot shaft at Coal Creek; eaten beefsteak and beans at miners' boarding-houses and danced with miners' wives and daughters in a little schoolhouse after an amateur entertainment.

THE INVESTIGATION.

Beneath the surface of these "stunts" there was a steady undercurrent of serious investigation. Mr. Rockefeller came to Colorado with the avowed intention of studying at first hand labor conditions following the tragic strike of 1913-14. From the day he entered Berwind camp—the first visited—until he departed in a drizzling rain from the Fremont mine late today, his time has been taken largely with meeting and talking with miners and inspecting the places where they live and toil.

Prominently to the fore has been the system of direct mediation inaugurated recently by the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company. Mr. Rockefeller at each camp has sought out the miners' grievance representatives and talked with them directly about the practical working out of the plan. This mediation system—which John R. Lawson, a labor leader in jail at Trinidad, designated a substitute for recognition of the union—is under direct supervision of David Griffiths, official mediator for the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company, and former State coal mine inspector.

INCLINED TOWARD UNIONS.

As the week passed by, Mr. Rockefeller displayed a decreasing reluctance to discuss unionism. At Rouse on Thursday he declared flatly that the company did not care whether its miners belonged to the United Mine Workers' Union or not. At Rockvale today he held a conference with a grievance representative who avowed himself a former striker and present member of the union. Confronted with a prospective invitation to confer with a committee representing the mine workers' international board, he said he had not refused to meet anyone and would not refuse to meet anyone in the future.

DESCENDS A MINE.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

COAL CREEK (Colo.) Sept. 25.—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., descended the 400-foot shaft of the Coal Creek mine here today. With several of the party he was locked in a cage which had just unloaded a car of coal and dropped swiftly to the bottom of the shaft. Mr. Rockefeller then walked through the workings, talking with several miners. This was the first shaft mine inspected.

The party left the train which had brought them Pueblo, at Florence, and motored four miles to Coal Creek through a drizzling rain.

Rockefeller planned to visit the Rockvale and Fremont mines before returning to Pueblo.

SEES A STRIKER.

ROCKVALE (Colo.) Sept. 25.—A conference on working conditions between John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and a grievance representative, who avowed himself a former striker and still a member of the United Mine Workers of America, was an incident of Rockefeller's visit to this camp. Rockvale is said by officials of the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company to be a strong union camp and a center of Socialism among employees.

As soon as Mr. Rockefeller reached Rockvale he hunted up the two miners' representatives. Louis Carutti was the first located. Some one asked Carutti if he was a member of the United Mine Workers of America.

"You bet I am," Carutti replied, adding that he went out on strike in September, 1913, but went to farming and received no benefits from the union.

When Rockefeller's attention was called to a Denver dispatch stating that a committee, representing the International Executive Committee of the United Mine Workers of America would invite him to a conference with a view to entering into a contract with the union, he said:

"I have received no invitation yet and cannot very well accept or decline until it is received. However, I have not yet refused to meet anyone and do not intend to refuse to meet anyone in the future. You may consider that as my reply."

Mr. Rockefeller refused to comment on the charges of discrimination contained in the committee's statement.

Garment Workers Strike.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO Sept. 25—Chief of Police Healey late today ordered all police furloughs canceled and summoned his chief assistants to lay plans for emergencies in anticipation of a strike of 40,000 garment workers on Monday.

TWO YEARS JAIL FOR OLEO MEN.

COLUMBUS CAPITALIST AND HIS TWO ASSOCIATES ARE SENTENCED.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

COLUMBUS (O.) Sept. 25.—Dennis Kelly, Columbus capitalist, and three business associates, who last June were convicted of defrauding the government of more than $1,000,000 in revenue tax on artificially-colored oleomargarine, were sentenced to serve two years each in the penitentiary at Moundsville, W. Va., and fined $1000 each by Federal District Judge J. E. Sater here today.

Notice of appeal was immediately filed and a stay of execution until December 6 was allowed to permit them to complete their bill of exceptions.

CONTINUE SAN DIEGO FAIR.

Possibility of Keeping Southern Exposition Open Another Year is Now Being Considered.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

STOCKTON, Sept. 25.—J. E. Hall, official representative of San Joaquin and superintendent of the San Joaquin Counties Building at the Panama-California Exposition, San Diego, is in Stockton today collecting new exhibits for the San Diego and San Francisco fairs. He says there is a great possibility of the southern exposition running through another year without interruption. "The movement is under way and finances are being pledged. I expect President Davidson or some other of the executive officers will make an official announcement within ten days to the effect that the exposition will keep open throughout 1916," said Hall.

MORE ARSON CONFESSIONS.

WOMAN ALLEGED TO BE MEMBER OF THE "SYNDICATE."

Husband and Wife Reveal Certain Alleged Secrets to the San Francisco Police—Five Persons Under Indictment in Portland—Overinsured Houses Fired, is Stated.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

OAKLAND, Sept. 25.—A confession involving several people, including a woman, said to be members of an arson syndicate which has been operating in Pacific Coast cities, according to the police, for the past two years, was obtained today by Captain of Inspectors Peterson from Charles Lester Burright and his wife, Jeane Burright, who are being held on a charge of arson in default of $8000 bail each. Petersen declared that he had obtained a complete confession from the two, but that he could not disclose the information he had received, as it would interfere with further operations against the gang. Attorney H. J. Wildbrube of Richmond, who represents the Burrights, has threatened damage suits and habeas corpus proceedings because he was denied admission to the City Jail during the time the Burrights were being put on the grill to obtain their confession. They will be examined before Judge Smith, September 29, and before that time Petersen says he will give out the confession. The confession definitely connects the Burrights with Richard Currier, now under indictment at Portland, Or., on an arson charge, as members of the same gang, according to Petersen.

FIVE INDICTMENTS.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

PORTLAND (Or.) Sept. 25.—Five alleged members of an arson ring have been indicted here by the county grand jury within the last month and are being held in jail or under bond.

Sanford W. Currier, alleged head of the organization, is said by the District Attorney's office to have confessed to operations in numerous Pacific Coast cities. Houses were purchased or constructed, according to the confession, and were destroyed by fire after they had been overinsured. Currier was arrested a month ago.

Four other men were indicted on September 22 and three were arrested. They are Mordie Keeney, formerly a lieutenant in the Portland fire department; George W. Woolette and William Stewart. Pending his arrest the name of the fourth man indicted was not made public. Burright, who is under arrest in Oakland, is not the man who was indicted here, but he was implicated by the confessions obtained here, according to the District Attorney's office.

CAPT. VON PAPEN LEAVES TUESDAY.

OBJECT OF VISIT TO MEXICO IS STILL UNEXPLAINED AT WASHINGTON.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 25.—Capt. Franz von Papen, military attache of the German Embassy at Washington, D. C., and Prince von Hatzfeldt, who are visiting this city, will leave next Tuesday for Mexico, it was announced today. Both men maintain silence as to their exact destination and the object of their visit to the southern republic.

Capt. Von Papen, in a statement issued yesterday, denied that he referred in a private letter to Americans as "idiotic Yankees." He said the phrase was used in connection with reference to a certain eastern newspaper.

ERRAND IS UNEXPLAINED.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—There are no officials of the German Embassy in the city to explain why Capt. Von Papen and Prince Hatzfeldt are going to Mexico. Ever since Capt. Von Papen became involved in the incident which led to President Wilson's request for the recall of Dr. Dumba, the Austrian Ambassador, it has been intimated in official quarters that the captain's offense was no less serious than the Ambassador's and that some similar action might be taken in his case.

Von Papen is also assigned by the German government as military attache to its legation in Mexico, and he might with propriety pay a visit to Mexico City. Prince Hatzfeldt has no connection with the Mexican legation, but is a close personal friend of Capt. Von Papen.

Officials learned of the military attache's impending departure without comment, but with some interest. It was not made clear whether they regarded it as a move to clear the situation or whether they expected the captain would return to the United States.

SAN FRANCISCO LAWYERS HELD.

Oregon Attorneys Include in Federal Action.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 25.—Three San Francisco attorneys we arrested today under a blanket Fe eral indictment charging eigh California and Oregon attorneys an land agents with using the mails t forward a fraudulent scheme. The are charged with fraudulently indu ing persons to file on alternate se tions of land along the Southern P cific Railroad from the southern Sta line of Oregon to Eugene, Or.

The men arrested are Frankli Bull, Norman B. Cook and W. A. Nicholson, all San Francisco at neys. Bail bonds were fixed at $ each.

The indictments alleged that ents were induced to file on the by means of statements that claims would be recognized within months, no matter what course ing litigation took.

GRANTS TO RAILWAY.

The land in question consisted government grants to the builders the railroad, acquired with the road by the Southern Pacific. The grant required that it be sold to tlers at $2.50 an acre. The Southern Pacific withdrew the land from and litigation followed.

Several months ago the United States Supreme Court held that Southern Pacific had an interest the land to the extent of $2.50 an but that the government had an terest in increased values above amount. No method of disposing the land was provided and the cision was made inoperative for time to afford Congress an oppor nity to settle matters by legislation.

The transactions mentioned in indictments were conducted by Oregon Realty Company and firms during 1912 and 1913.

EXTRADITION REFUSED.

Indictments were returned some of the men in Oregon more than a year ago, Federal cers said, but extradition from fornia was refused. J. W. Logan D. J. Connors were convicted Portland, on similar offenses a ago and given short jail sentences.

Nicholson, when arrested said his indictment was due to sonal hostility on the part of A. Reams, United States District Attorney at Portland, who furnished Federal grand jury here with of the evidence.

D. J. Connors, a land agent, ously convicted at Portland, Or., a similar offense, also was arrested. All four men were released on bail bonds each.

BELIEF IN PORTLAND.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PORTLAND (Or.) Sept. 25.—Federal officials in Portland claim a clique of California operators whose arrest under a secret blanket indictment began today, have taken in approximately $400,000 as a of the alleged frauds.

The present prosecution is the growth of what is known as Minard and Logan cases involving Oregon men. The two men whom convictions were obtained were sent to McNeil's Island Prison.

Most of the Californians involved are residents of San Francisco Los Angeles. No Portland men included in the blanket indictment it is understood.

The method of the clique, according to the United States District torney's office, involved a so-called option to buy timber on the land $3000 to $4000 a claim filed. The operators generally gave the pression that they represented railroad and explained that used this method to obtain possession of the timber on the grant lands. A fee of $150 was charged for locating. In some instances, it is alleged, or five persons were located upon same section.

W GREEKS MAKE LAWS.

OF PARLIAMENT IS A CTURESQUE SCENE.

for the First Time Balkan War, the New and Country that has Grown Given for Smoking by Men and Women.

P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

(Greece) Aug. 31.—The Parliament, which is meet- to consider some of the most problems in the country's is in many respects a novelty. It represents, for the first time, the new and greater Greece created as a result of the Balkan wars. Its membership, for example, is 316, as against the previous Parliament's 186, and the numbers represent sections of the Hellenic world as far apart as Crete and Kavalla, Mitylene and Macedonia. One of the new members comes from Tenedos, which is within sight and hearing of the greater part of the Dardanelles fighting.

No legislative assembly in the world is more picturesque in its variety of costume than this new Greek Parliament. There are the Cretans, in ample blue raiment; the Turco-Greek members from Macedonia, wearing the fez; the black-garbed Hodjahs with turbans; the officers of the Athens garrison in white uniforms; and finally the head of the Orthodox Church, in robes of purple and gold.

Strikingly American in feature and bearing is M. Boulos, one of the new Macedonian delegates, who a year or two ago as a Turkish subject was the chief opponent of Enver Pasha in the Turkish Parliament. He is an orator of great ability, speaks the language of his new country with entire facility, and is eager to make a name for himself as a Greek patriot.

Nineteen seats in the Parliament are occupied by delegates from Southern Albania, Texedos, Imbros and Castelloriso. The national status of these places is not yet decided, and the delegates therefore cannot be officially recognized or allowed to vote, but they are given seats and their advice is eagerly sought on all matters connected with branches of legislative activity with which they are familiar. The President of the Chamber, at the opening session, gave them a graceful welcome, remarking that he hoped it would soon be possible to hold legal elections in their districts and give them the full privileges of the House.

The most pleased of the new members are the Cretans, who now for the first time have reached the goal of their political ambitions. Their first appearance in the chamber was the occasion for a great demonstration, led by Venizelos, the former Cretan chief who has risen to be the popular idol of Greece.

An interesting feature of the sessions of Parliament is the occasional interval given for the inevitable cigarette, which is lit by practically every member, as well as by all the men and women in the galleries.

KING OF SPAIN VISITS AUTHOR.

TALKS WITH WRITER ON THE PROGRESS OF THE EUROPEAN WAR.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTANDER, Spain, Aug. 31.—The King of Spain has just paid a visit to the aged Spanish author, Don Benito Perez Galdos, in this city, spending the day with the dean of Spanish novelists. Senor Perez Galdos has recently gone blind, though he continues his work, dictating his articles and novels to a secretary.

It appears that the King spent most of the time of his visit talking with the venerable author about the European war. Upon this subject they agree cordially, Alfonso XIII, being in open sympathy with the allies and Senor Perez Galdos being one of the signers of the pro-ally manifesto of the Spanish intellectuals which appeared recently, as well as the author of a number of Francophile and Anglophile articles in the Spanish newspapers.

The novelist, at the King's request, developed at some length the reasons for his sympathies in the present conflict. The internal politics of Spain also came in for serious discussion, Senor Perez Galdos having in his youth been active in politics and a deputy of the Liberal party to the Cortes. He has, however, long since retired from active participation in political life, though he still writes political articles for the newspapers.

His principal fame is based on a series of patriotic works called "National Episodes," dealing with the wars of 1873-74 and other historic periods in Spain's modern development, but he is best known in the United States as the author of "Dona Perfecta."

"PAHVANT VALLEY is the best Sugar Beet Country in the West"

Chas. A. McLain

Western Securities Co.,
711 Hollingsworth Bldg.,
Los Angeles, Calif.

Gentlemen:

I have been operating 160 acres of excellent farm land in Pahvant Valley for four years. I have 60 acres in alfalfa and produced four tons to the acre from three cuttings the first year. My fourth crop produced excellent pasturage. I am convinced that this is a thoroughly good fruit country, if confined to certain varieties. Better alfalfa seed land does not exist anywhere in the United States. I have known alfalfa seed here to run as high as 20 bushels to the acre. Seed has brought here as high as $9 and $10 per bushel.

This is a better country for general farming than California or any State in the Middle West. A farmer can make money here with less effort than in any country I have ever seen. Hog-raising produces better results here than in any other Western State—on account of the dry climate, pure lithia water, abundant forage and the cheap feed raised.

For dairying this country cannot be surpassed. I have proved to my entire satisfaction that this is the best sugar beet country in the West. This land should eventually go to $250 an acre when our sugar beet factory is completed.

Pahvant Valley is on the main line of the Salt Lake Railroad in Southwestern Utah—under $1,000,000 irrigation system. Estimated annual cost of maintenance from 40 to 50 cents per acre.

$70 Per Acre for Land and Perpetual (Gravity) Water Right. $25 An Acre Down. Balance in 10 Years.

Here's land and perpetual water right that you can buy for less money than it actually costs for irrigation by pumping in California. Don't confuse Pahvant Valley with isolated farm land. This is a settled, thoroughly proven district.

Are you tired of high water maintenance cost? Would 40 to 50 cents per acre per annum suit you better? Wouldn't a $1,000,000 gravity irrigation system built under contract with and approved by the State of Utah be the kind of perpetual water insurance you would like? Farm journals and big Southwest newspapers have sent their best agricultural writers to Pahvant Valley to get the facts. As a result, glowing tributes have been written about this new empire. Copies of these articles, together with our booklet, will be mailed upon request. But, better still, go up and get the facts for yourself. Be your own judge and jury. Gen. Carranza Talks.

by their owners the government derives a revenue from such properties, and that is what we are after. A close inspection will convince you that we need foreign capital and in return we offer great opportunities, but the days of special privileges have gone never to return. From the investor we expect nothing more than an equitable revenue and for this he will be given the fullest protection of the laws of the country.

"As in all revolutions and upheavals, a great deal of foreign property has been destroyed in Mexico. Whether this was done intentionally or not is hard to establish. But from the outset of the revolution it was the intention, the honest desire of the Constitutionalists, to reimburse all those who had suffered through loss of property and valuables. This phase of the reconstructive work of the Constitutionalists is, I think, of greater importance to foreigners than the proposed A.B.C. peace conference. And it is this phase of the question, I hope, that the Washington government and the representatives of the Latin republics will take up as I suggested."

FOREIGN CLAIMS.

According to the ideas of Gen. Carranza, the question of foreign claims is to be passed upon by a tribunal composed of members from various foreign countries and of as many Mexicans. Before this body all claims will be presented, evidence carefully investigated and if the claims are found just they will be adjudged to be paid by the government. Moreover, the Constitutionalists' government is to create a special reserve fund out of the government revenue which is to be used for no other purpose than making good the losses sustained by foreigners during the revolution. This, Gen. Carranza claims, is one of the most important problems of the whole reconstructive programme of Mexico and he deems it far more important than parley with defeated enemies in peace conferences.

Gen. Carranza thinks Mexico so wealthy and its income under normal peaceful conditions so large that it will be able to pay off its internal and external debt in a comparatively short time.

"A great deal of the misunderstanding between the foreign investors and the Constitutionalists is due to the desire on the part of the former to cling to the ideas of the old regime," continued Gen. Carranza. "The Constitutionalists believe in an equitable taxation of all products imported into or exported from Mexico. This is not to be done with the idea of burdening business men, but as one of the fundamental principles of all government.

"In the days of Diaz many of his special concessionaires were exempt from taxation. Those days are past. It is to this phase of the reconstructive programme that many foreigners object. In reality, we are doing exactly what all properly-organized governments are doing, and nothing else. We place no burdens upon foreigners. Like many other nations we, in our bitter struggle to free ourselves from the yoke of centuries of oppression, have undoubtedly made many mistakes. We have blundered much and to the eyes of the world our errors must have looked amazing. But it is not to be forgotten that we are just getting our first lessons in democracy and it is very likely that we shall make many mistakes more. Our errors have led many people to believe that what Mexico needed was a strong man to rule it with blood and iron. Nothing is further from the truth than this. What Mexico needs is not a 'man on horseback' but an honest, energetic man of experience, a man who understands the needs of the country and the people, one who can rule wisely and sympathetically. That is Mexico's need."

CARRANZA'S CLAIMS.

If Gen. Carranza is to be taken at his word, the Constitutionalists control nearly seven-eighths of the Mexican republic. He claims to have achieved that which nearly all Mexican chieftains have failed to achieve—the gathering of a strong army whose leaders are loyal to him and to the cause. The replies of his generals, including the most important of all, Gens. Alvaro Obregon and Pablo Gonzales, to the note of the A.B.C. conference seem to bear out his contention. More than once rumors had it that Gen. Obregon had deserted Carranza and, in real Villa fashion, turned against the first chief, but all those rumors vanished before investigation.

With Gen. Villa slowly being driven northward, Gen. Carranza claims that Zapata is no problem whatever. Zapata, he declared, was made possible only through the dishonesty and graft of the Federal soldiers, otherwise he would have been eliminated during the days of Huerta. The Zapata soldiers were the first to use the ammunition bought by Gen. Huerta in Japan—the very cartridges which were to be used against them by the Federal army. What happened was merely that the Federal officers sold their ammunition to Zapata and reported to their superiors that they had been defeated. This is not likely to happen with the Constitutionalist soldiers. Now the Zapatistas are practically cut off from all opportunities of receiving ammunition and their elimination is but a question of a few months.

Gen. Carranza believes that in a spirit of revenge and in his desire to aid the reactionaries, Gen. Villa will stop at nothing. He will even go so far as to provoke the intervention of the United States in Mexico. He will have his men fire across the border and do everything possible to hinder the true cause of the revolution. But Carranza has implicit faith in the powers of Gen. Obregon and harbors the hope that the United States will not be deceived by the deeds of Gen. Villa.

TERRAZAS, JR., ESCAPES; ON WAY TO THE BORDER.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

EL PASO (Tex.) Sept. 25.—After being held hostage for about eighteen months, Luis Terrazas, Jr., son of Gen. Luis Terrazas, together with his son, Guillermo Terrazas, has escaped from Chihuahua City and are en route to the border overland, according to official Villa advices today. Three guards at the Chihuahua jail are reported to have been shot on suspicion of complicity in the escape.

After the migration of the Terrazas family to the United States, abandoning their ranch, which included vast areas in the State of Chihuahua, Luis Terrazas, Jr., was caught and held hostage for the political inactivity of the family in the United States and incidentally for a ransom of $500,000 demanded of Gen. Luis Terrazas on a threat to kill his son.

It is understood that part of the ransom was paid, but the prisoner was not released. Subsequent ransoms were demanded and compromised, but the prisoner was given only the liberty of the city, under guard. It is said that nearly $1,000,000 was paid for the promised release of Luis without moving him nearer the border.

Guillermo Terrazas was held merely as a member of the Terrazas family.

VILLA SOLDIERS SURRENDERING.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

LAREDO (Tex.) Sept. 25.—Many detached bands of Villa soldiers are surrendering to the Carranza forces marching against Torreon, it was reported today by Gen. Alvaro Obregon to Carranza military authorities in Nuevo Laredo.

Other military advices indicated that the Carranza forces, advancing from three sides against Torreon, would encounter resistance there instead of finding the city evacuated by the Villa troops as previously reported.

MEXICAN PLOT IN SAN ANTONIO.

PIETRO GARCIAS IS ARRESTED ON A CHARGE OF INCITING INSURRECTION.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN ANTONIO (Tex.) Sept. 25.—Acting upon information contained in a letter said to have been written by a Mexican, Federal authorities today arrested Pietro Garcias on a charge of inciting insurrection against the United States. Warrants have been issued for five more men and the department of justice officials say the plot involves a large number of other Mexicans.

The letter, written in this city and addressed to a man in Hidalgo county, was found on the addressee and through him traced to the alleged author. Among other things the communication contains the following:

"We now have 200 rifles and 4000 rounds of ammunition."

Continuing, the communication says in part:

"Be prepared for the day as the recruiting is progressing and they continue to come in. We are assured of support. And say, get the dynamite, but keep it secret and destroy this letter as soon as you have read it. Let us not lose hope. This land soon will be ours."

LAST REFUGEES FROM TORREON.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

EL PASO (Tex.) Sept. 25.—The last of the foreign refugees from around Torreon arrived today. With them came Consul Coen of Durango and Consular Agent Williams of Torreon. According to their reports Gen. Villa is superintending the destruction of the railroad north of Torreon. A number of foreigners were reported as refusing to obey the advice of the State Department and are remaining in Mexico.

FIRST WIFE OF BATH-TUB MURDERER LOSES BUT LITTLE TIME.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, Aug. 31.—Caroline Beatrice Love, first wife of George Smith, the bath-tub murderer, was married on the day following Smith's execution to Sapper Thomas Davies of New Westminster, British Columbia, now of the Royal Engineers.

The bride's father and mother were present, with a crowd of friends and spectators that filled Christ Church, Leicester, to overflowing. The bride wore a gown of embroidered white lace, with bridal veil and orange blossoms. Her brother, an artilleryman, was best man.

Smith married as his first wife—so far as known—Miss Caroline Thornhill, seventeen years ago, at the same church in Leicester. He used the name George Love at that time, as one of his many aliases. After a year he deserted her, and she went to Canada, where she made the acquaintance of her present husband. She was summoned from Canada to give evidence at the trial.

MEXICANS DENY RESPONSIBILITY.

Try to Shift the Blame for Fighting at Progreso.

Report Angeles has Deserted is Declared False.

Will Represent Gen. Villa at the Peace Conference.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—Maj. Gen. Funston, commanding United States troops on the border, and Gen. Nafaratte, the Carranza commander, both disclaim for their men responsibility for the fighting yesterday near Progreso, Tex., in which one American trooper was killed and an officer was wounded.

Reporting to the War Department today, Gen. Funston said his men had repelled the raiding party which fled across the border under the protection of soldiers "in uniform" intrenched on the other side. The Carranza agency gave out a telegram from Gen. Nafaratte asserting there were no Carranza troops in the vicinity.

REPORT ON FIGHTING.

A full report on recent fighting along the border was made to the State Department today by the War Department. It states that in no case have American soldiers begun the firing, but it is admitted that civilians and deputy sheriffs in Texas have provoked some attacks. In yesterday's fight it is asserted an armed force invaded American territory and that this party was repulsed.

Officials here are puzzled over the border situation. Gen. Carranza has directed Gen. Jacinto Trevino to make a thorough investigation. Until authentic information is obtained as to the cause of the raids the policy of the American government will be unchanged and while raiders will be driven off, American troops will not be permitted to cross over into Mexico in pursuit.

VILLA STATEMENT.

In explaining the visit of Gen. Felipe Angeles to Washington, the Villa agency issued this statement tonight:

"Gen. Felipe Angeles wishes to state that he has arrived in Washington is a member of the delegation appointed by the military chief of the provisional government to represent it in the peace conference planned in accordance with the invitation of the pan-American conference on August 2.

"Published reports that Gen. Angeles has deserted from the Convention army are false.

"Gen. Raoul Madero, another member of the delegation, will proceed to Washington as soon as he is liberated by the American military authorities who detained him on the border while he was en route to discharge his mission."

CARRANZA ARMY ENTERS TORREON.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

LAREDO (Tex.) Sept. 25.—Villa troops are evacuating Torreon and Carranza forces are entering that city tonight, according to a telegram received at Carranza headquarters in Nuevo Laredo. Details were withheld.

Reports today indicated the Villa forces would offer stubborn resistance to the Carranza troops who were said to be approaching Torreon from three directions. Unconfirmed reports here stated Villa was destroying the railway lines behind him as he retreated.

AMERICAN SINGLE-HANDED ROUTS MEXICAN BANDITS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

HOUSTON (Tex.) Sept. 25.—Details of an attack by Mexicans on his 7000-acre ranch in Hidalgo county, thirty miles north of Mission, at noon yesterday, were given out today by J. B. McAllen, millionaire and pioneer, who, single-handed beat off the Mexicans after killing two of their number and wounding three more.

The fight on the McAllen ranch continued for twenty minutes during which time the bandits fired not fewer than 500 shots, while McAllen did not fire more than twenty.

"With the exception of my cook, a Mexican woman, I was alone," said Mr. McAllen. "I had just sat down to dinner when I saw a Mexican peering through a blind and I knew I was surrounded.

"The bandit leader was mounted on a gray horse. He called my cook to the door and asked my whereabouts. The remainder of the band had dismounted and taken up positions behind a pile of rocks and a small stone outhouse.

"My cook answered that I was ill in bed, whereupon the leader demanded my presence before him. I picked up my shotgun, stepped into the doorway and fired. The leader tumbled off his horse at the first shot. His horse fell at the second. I then turned my attention to another man bolder than the rest, and had the satisfaction of seeing part of his [illegible] go off. Three others who had failed to conceal their legs behind the rock pile received my further attention. Finally they dragged themselves to the brush and made their escape. The others followed them. Shots fairly rained about me during the encounter, but both my cook and I escaped injury. The house was riddled with bullets.

"My cook, though frightened, remained steadfast, reloading my shotgun and rifle as fast as I emptied them."

From the leader of the band was taken a paper containing the names of fifteen Mexicans, many of whom are well-known around Mission.

CABINET SPLIT AVERTED.

BERLIN, Sept. 23 (via Sayville, N. Y.) A dispatch from Sofia, as given out today by the Overseas News Agency, says the danger of a split in the Cabinet has been averted. Opposition leaders who were opposed to the military measures of the government are said to have declared their intention to support the policy of Premier Radoslavoff.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 25, 1 p.m. (via London, 3:55 p.m.)—The most important operations now in progress along the Russian front are centering about three points—Paranovichi, Molodechne and Dvinsk. The struggle brought on by the new German movement against Dvinsk has been under way for several days. The Germans are making a determined attack in the Dvina River region and have pushed their lines to within a day's march of Dvinsk.

FORESHADOWS STATE PLAN TO INCREASE TAXATION.

Clamor Coming from All Parts of California to Learn Scope of Amendment No. 9 to be Voted Upon Shortly. Experts Believe More Property is to be Withdrawn from Cities and Counties for Pay-roll Brigade.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 24.—From all parts of the State a clamor is coming to Sacramento for more formation concerning Constitutional ndment No. 38, relating to revenue taxation. This amendment was d along to the people by the last gislature only after a bitter fight the Assembly.

s most important provision is one t abolishes the present constitu- l limitation relating to State tax- n and confers on the State Legis- ure power to levy tax in whatever ner and in whatever amounts it es. It appears on the October t as proposal No. 9.

nder the present law there is a ion of property between the ties and the State. Public service rations, including railroad, tele- ph, telephone, light and power panies, express companies, insur- companies and banks, are now ved by the State as sources of revenue and are in a general removed from city and county rolls. There are some restric- in regard to banks and to non- tive property of transportation panies, but these corporations fur- the bulk of the State tax reve- and are practically exempt from and county taxation.

SCOPE OF AMENDMENT.

oposition No. 9 on the October t proposes to amend the pres- constitutional provision relating to on as follows:

"All taxes shall be levied and col- d under general laws and shall uniform upon the same class of cts within the territorial limits he authority levying the tax. The islature shall define and classify subjects of taxation and prescribe manner and method of assessing ing, equalizing and collecting taxes State, county, city and county, cipal and district revenues. In the rcise of this power the Legislature designate certain classes of sub- s as taxable in whole or in part this revenue; and certain classes xable in whole or in part for ty, city and county, municipal district revenue; and may pro- that any tax shall be in lieu of r all other taxes or licenses or . The Legislature shall provide he administration of such laws State Tax Commission, subject he limitations contained in sec- 11 and 13 of Article XI of this stitution."

e amendment was handicapped at the outset by reason of the ionable tactics pursued to secure mission to the people by the lature. The administration forces greedy for its submission r the passage of the anti-party whose operation is now suspended he referendum. At the time for option by the Legislature a tax mission was created and a $75,000 d made available for its use. This mission was supposed to submit r plan for taxation to a special n of the Legislature next Jan- taking for granted that the pres- amendment would be adopted by people. The objection to the mission was that it would spend 75,000 before the election was and that it was taking a long at throwing that money into political sewer.

FIRST OPPOSITION.

the first definite opposition to w tax amendment came from nual meeting of the county as- of the State. At their conven- n August 18 they passed the ing resolution by a unanimous e people of this State will be upon to vote on Senate Con- nal Amendment No. 38, relat- revenue and taxation, at the g election, which amendment, ried, will change our entire rev- stem and place it in the hands Legislature.

ereas, It is doubtful in the al judgment of the assessors this should be done until after liberation and investigation as sound business principles and s of success. Because we be- n equality and uniformity, we inst this amendment. It has of elasticity, special rights, ts to classify, and if poorly tered would not give a fair assessment of value to all.

ction by the county assessors d a general inquiry both State papers and from Cham- Commerce and tax associa- cerning the real nature of posed new amendment. Prof. he administration tax expert, to explain it; but he ap- have only stirred its oppo- more strenuous opposition. xplanatory article he asserted only remaining new sources are the general body of n the cities and counties, very much like a frank that either more property withdrawn from city and taxation and reserved for purposes, or that a State prop- is to be levied in addition to sources of State income.

State government desires to new functions not heretofore . To do this requires new new sources of income."

E. J. Kay of the State of County Assessors says association is taking a part ting this amendment for the they are certain it means Prof. Plehn sets forth: That the State is going to expend still greater sums in its multifold activities and that it wants to take still more property off the county assessment rolls to provide the additional revenue. "After discussing this measure in our convention," says Mr. Kay, "we reached the unanimous conclusion that we should tell the people beforehand just what the result of this amendment will be. Then they cannot say to us later that we knew and kept our peace."

OBJECTIONS TO PLAN.

The objections to the measure seem to come under three heads.

1. Any tax measure passed by the Legislature under the new amendment is specifically exempted by the Constitution from the provisions of the referendum. There can be no recourse to the referendum to suspend the operation of a tax law. This places the subject of taxation wholly beyond the control of the people through direct action.

2. It permits taxation for State taxes only of property now subject to local tax. Under its provisions the Legislature would have power to withdraw any class of property from county tax rolls and assess it for State purposes only. All the oil property of the State, or the mining property—any class of property from orange groves to department stores—could be seized by the Legislature and received for State taxation only. As it removes all restriction as to the amount of tax that the Legislature may levy, it opens the way for legislative raids which will neither be barred by the Constitution nor subject to the attack in turn through the medium of the referendum.

3. It places the whole tax system of the State under the direct control of the Legislature and gives to that body a chance to try whatever tax experiment may appeal to its members, swayed by passion, fads or greed. One Legislature might foist on the State the single-tax fad, the next might abolish this and place the State under home rule; another might favor the income tax plan to the exclusion of all others; still another might favor an ad valorem system. In an yor all these the people would have no choice. It is this uncertainty and the unstability that must accompany it that has wakened much of the opposition.

EX-GOV. PARDEE'S FIGHT.

Ex-Gov. Pardee is making a vigorous fight against the measure in his Oakland Inquirer, which was formerly one of the stanchest supporters of the administration. His objection as editorially expressed is that it will result in forcing the corporations all back into State politics. That they will have to interest themselves in the selection of members of the Legislature in order to protect their own property from legislative raids. He says that it means a direct return to conditions even worse than those which existed before the present tax laws were adopted. He adds that anyone who has had experience with Legislatures in the past must know how unsafe it is to trust them with unlimited powers in the matter of raising and expending money.

SANTA ROSA PROTEST.

The Santa Rosa Republican has voiced the following vigorous protest, which has been copied by a number of other northern papers:

"The proposed new taxation law, amendment No. 9, will give the State power to withdraw any class of property it sees fit from local taxation in the counties and devote the revenue therefrom to the expense of running the State. There is no limit to the class of property affected by the law, and its sweeping provisions would allow every class of property being taken away from the County Supervisors and devoted to State use.

"A condition could be brought about under its provisions in which the counties would not have property of any class or character left upon which to levy taxes. It stands to reason that the more property withdrawn from county taxation, the more the remaining property will have to bear in order to pay for the running of the county government.

"Perhaps some sort of an explanation, for the eagerness to put this amendment over, may be gleaned from the fact that five years ago the cost of running the State government was $8,000,000, and that last year it was $18,000,000. This is an increase of 125 per cent. in that time, or an average increase of 25 per cent. a year.

"Voters would do well to think deeply over this amendment and doubly well to stamp 'No' in the square provided for that purpose."

THE MINING COUNTIES.

All the little mining counties along the mother lode are joining in their opposition to the new measure. They have discovered that, under its provisions, all the big mining properties in their districts could be withdrawn from local taxation, just as the railroads and other public service corporations were withdrawn. This would mean practical bankruptcy for the little counties; but they would have no recourse, as they would be outvoted ten to one in the Legislature.

There is a fourth objection that applies peculiarly to Los Angeles. The new amendment does not provide as at present for reimbursement of cities and counties for the redemption of bond issues that were outstanding when the present law went into effect in 1911. Under the terms of the law by which the big corporations were reserved for State taxation only the State returns to the counties the proportionate share that the corporations would have paid for the redemption of those bonds. Last year the State returned to Los Angeles $270,402 on this bond account. The new amendment repeals the section of the present Constitution under which that is collected and makes no provision for it elsewhere. This looks like a loss of $270,000 a year to Los Angeles alone.

DEMAND FOR BLUE BOOK.

Secretary of State Jordan says that there has been an unprecedented demand for copies of the State official "Blue Book" since this taxation question has been discussed. "The appropriation for the Blue Book was cut down this year so that there were little more than just enough to go round to the places they are required by law to be sent. I found myself with less than 1300 extra copies and more than 15,000 requests for them."

This year's Blue Book was very objectionable to the administration, for the reason that it has proved a striking exhibit of the extravagances of the last two Legislatures in the creation of new departments and of new general expense. It shows an increase in expense from $8,000,000 a year under Gillett to $18,000,000 a year under Johnson. Naturally, the administration supporters desire that just as few of them as possible shall be circulated through the State.

HOP HOUSE CONSPIRACY.

ORGANIZED MOVEMENT TO BURN BUILDINGS CHARGED IN OREGON.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

EUGENE (Or.) Sept. 25.—Further evidence of an organized movement to burn hop houses in Lane county was revealed today by W. T. de Franklin, foreman of the J. W. Seavey hop yards near this city, who stated that at about 3:30 o'clock this morning an apparent attempt was made by two men to fire the buildings under his care. Since the recent fires a guard has been maintained at the Seavey yard night and day, as is being done at many of the other yards in the county.

J. R. Collins was the watchman on duty last night. At about 3:30 o'clock he surprised two men near the hop house. He commanded them to stop and when both started to run he opened fire with a revolver, firing eight shots. Mr. Franklin, upon hearing the first shot, jumped from his bed and with Collins gave chase but the men disappeared in the timber on the hills above the yards.

Oakland Railways Hold that Case in Point Does Not Come Under Terms of Carmen's Agreement.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

OAKLAND (Cal.) Sept. 25.—Holding that the case of the two deck hands involved in the present controversy does not come under the terms of the agreement with the carmen's union, directors of the San Francisco-Oakland Terminal Railways today forwarded a letter to the Grievance Committee of that body, practically refusing the request of that organization for a conference. The letter suggests, however, that "the result is achieved by laying the full record before you," referring to the records on file in the corporation offices, detailing the previous cases which have been settled between the corporation and its employees. In other words the company practically refuses to recognize the deck hands in its employ as eligible to treatment under the rules of the agreement with the carmen's union. No action has yet been taken by the union on this letter.

Discovery Enables Any One to Have Curly Hair

Quite accidentally some one made the discovery that the application of ordinary liquid silmerine would actually turn straight hair curly and wavy in a few hours. She told her friend about it, who in turn told others and now thousands of women have profited by the information. The simplicity and harmlessness of this method, and the way the hair dries in such pretty curls and crinkles, will appeal to anyone who tries it.

The favorite way is to apply the silmerine with a clean tooth brush before retiring. The effect upon arising is quite surprising, the curliness having such a natural appearance and the hair being so bright and lustrous. Particularly will this be appreciated by the habitual user of the despoiling waving iron—which, happily, can now be discarded. The liquid silmerine, which can of course be obtained from any druggist, is neither sticky nor greasy. A few ounces will keep the hair curly for many weeks—Mirror of Fashion.

The day of the favorite son is once more upon us. Forlorn, indeed, is the State that cannot point with pride to the towering figure of a great leader and tell to the nation that of all men he is the one who should be selected to bear the party gonfalon in the 1916 steeplechase. This applies only to Republicans for the very good reason that New Jersey feels well satisfied with its first citizen and will do everything to make that first citizen a resident of Washington for another four years.

The business of exploiting favorite sons finds full play here on the Coast where we have two expositions and a countless swarm of men and women from all over the union. It is an ideal place in which to make a canvass, this California, for if one wants to get the real truth of a situation in a certain State one has only to find a leading politician from that State on a visit to California and get his views. At home he talks with blinders and a gag. Here in California, in the shade of exposition buildings and the beautiful bowers of roses we have built along our highways (bang) he talks with an unnatural freedom.

Charles A. Rawson, for instance, is chairman of the Republican State Central Committee in Iowa. He is here for a fortnight to visit the expositions and the first city of the State. Incidentally, he is combining curiosity with pleasure by sounding all the politicians who will stand for it. Frankly, Chairman Rawson is out in the open for Senator Cummins for President. And he would like to know how California Republicans would take to the Senator. He has canvassed a goodly part of the State and has discovered, so he says, that California Republicans look upon Senator Cummins with a great deal of favor. The Iowa State Society is a-flutter with the prospect of a favorite son running for President, and the society, if it stood together, would be a potent factor in determining elections, upsetting political white hopes or rearing new political dynasties.

The Middle West, says Chairman Rawson, is the scene of a lively discussion over the 1916 prospects and Senator Cummins, he tells me, stands on a high pedestal in the Mississippi Valley.

Then Evan Evans was in our midst. He pronounces the first E long and the second one short. He is Republican State chairman in Idaho. He is a very strong believer in William E. Borah, a native of Illinois and an adopted son of Idaho. Senator Borah, he argues, is the biggest man in public life today and the youngest aspirant to Presidential honors. Chairman Evans, like Chairman Rawson, bored into California sentiment like a drill into a bar of bullion. Both declare their candidates assayed well.

I hope those who are still patiently watching the experiment of [illegible] laws will not overlook the incident of the two-platoon movement in Los Angeles. The proponents of the initiative ordinance very carefully avoided any discussion of the cost of installation when they made their campaign, and when the people voted for it they had little idea of the effect of their action. Every candidate for office in the last city campaign indorsed the two-platoon movement on the stump. Candidates for the Council generally boosted the proposition. Even my good friend, Dad Whiffen, a financial expert and head of the Budget Committee, urged its adoption for fear of losing votes when he, with all the rest, knew not where the money was coming from to provide for the system should it be adopted.

Then, after the people voted for the ordinance, the Council began to hedge. It appeared that the two-platoon movement was popular when there were votes in sight, but unpopular when it came to raising the money. Then a movement was started to recall the initiative and pass another ordinance abolishing the two-platoon. The Municipal League, a meddling, fussy, unnecessary institution, raised some money to buy signatures to the recall petition. That is just like buying votes, but it is recognized by law. A third solicitor went into the field and paid a certain sum for signatures. Then the proponents of the two-platoon ordinance went out and paid a little higher price to the solicitors and bought up signatures they had gathered, thus keeping them from being filed.

Heigh ho! What a tragic appearance all that would have made under the old system of politics! And how regular and proper it appears under the new!

Ex-Mayor Alexander is mentioned as a candidate for Supervisor against R. H. Norton, who, no doubt, will seek re-election. There are a number of others who are after Norton's place.

Candidates for United States Senator are sought in Southern California, which, it is believed, will get the next one. It is likely that Gov. Johnson may run, but as the north now has one Senator it is hardly likely that even he can get by. Mr. Heney has come to Los Angeles to be a candidate from the south. The Progressives are badly split over the situation and there will be a fatal schism in the ranks when the hostilities open next year.

Those Republicans who expected to induce J. A. Graves to enter the race may as well look elsewhere, as the well-known banker told me the other day there isn't a chance to get him into the field.

The Democrats are casting around for a logical candidate and some of them have waited upon E. L. Doheny. Mr. Doheny has a pot of money, which is the first requisite under the new system of politics. A poor man cannot be elected. That may be one reason why Adam Dixon Warner has withdrawn from the race. Few knew he was in it, although he has campaigned for some months. Instead of joining the richest club in America "Silver Dick" has decided to join the ministry. He is studying to be a Billy Sunday.

The recent appointments of Justices Palmer and Hanby by the Board of Supervisors was a distinct shock to Supervisors Hamilton and Norton, who had an idea they were destined to dictate the political affairs of Los Angeles county. Mr. Hamilton wanted to put John Beardsley across and Mr. Norton championed F. G. [illegible]. Chairman Pridham unselfishly allowed Supervisors Hinshaw and Woodley to name their own candidates and gave them the odd vote that beat the Hamilton-Norton combination. All of which spanking caused great joy in the county service.

It is reported that Congressman Kettner may not attempt to succeed himself next year in the Eleventh District. He is the only Democrat in the district who has a chance of winning, and if he remains out of the race, there will be a merry fight. There is some talk of the Republicans running C. C. Chapman of Fullerton.

"Political parties do not exist for the purpose of giving offices to partisans."

That luscious morsel happens to appear in the Progressive State platform of 1914. It was one of the declarations that helped fool the people sufficiently to secure the re-election of Gov. Johnson. To show how the Progressives believe in their campaign pledge, and how they are keeping faith, find how many Republicans, Democrats, Socialists or Prohibitionists have been appointed to State jobs. That platform twaddle still fools a certain percentage of the voters who prefer being buncoed. Lately, in Southern California, the following Progressives have been appointed to jobs: Assemblyman Frank [illegible] to automobile inspector; Assemblyman Harry Encell, to examiner for the Railroad Commission; Myron [illegible], over, rank Progressive partisan, to a similar job; Kemper B. Campbell, campaign manager in 1914, to attorney for State Board of Health; [illegible] Dickson, political writer on Progressive papers, to member of Tax Investigation Commission—and all the jobs pay well. During the same period no appointments were made from any of the other parties.

PATRIOTIC PROVISIONS.

Freeholders' Board may Take Action Tomorrow Night on Demands of Veterans.

It is probable that the Board of Freeholders tomorrow night will finally dispose of the demands of the twenty or more patriotic organizations of this city that there be placed in the new city charter provisions for an appropriation of $500 per year for the proper observance of Memorial Day, and that a ten-point preference be given in civil service examinations to veterans of the Civil and Spanish-American wars.

The patriotic organizations do not urge this as payment for services rendered to the country, as it is contended that no amount can repay the voluntary offering of lives for the protection of citizens and property, but it is urged that this is a proper expression of gratitude and would be an incentive to the young men of today and of the future to enlist in case there is a demand for their services.

P. C. Mulqueeney, chairman of the committee of twenty-two organizations composed of the G.A.R. and United Spanish War Veterans, and all the corps and circles and auxiliaries affiliated, has requested a delegation of each to appear at the City Hall tomorrow evening at 7:30 p.m., as the freeholders may ask many questions to help them in reaching a decision.

SEES WAR AT CLOSE RANGE.

Los Angeles Woman Home from Hungary.

American Husband Pressed into Service.

Many of Her Relatives and Townsmen Killed.

A remarkable tale of a winter spent within ten miles of the fighting line in the Carpathians, fraught with terror of the invading Russians, and touched with sorrow for the brothers fighting and dying but a short distance from their home, was told yesterday afternoon by Mrs. Aaron Greenfield, who recently returned to her home in this city at No. 1130 Bellevue avenue following a year's visit with her mother in the little town of Bireg-[illegible] Som, in Hungary. And yet her story of experiences while returning to this country through the war zones of Germany and England is no less remarkable than the narrative of the winter spent with her mother.

"My husband, who has an auto [illegible] business at No. 1028 South [illegible] street, accompanied me to Hungary in June, 1914," Mrs. Greenfield said yesterday. "We arrived there a few weeks before war broke out. My little daughter Juliette was with me.

"When war was declared, every man was called to the front. There were [illegible] people in the little village where my mother lives. Of these 150 of the [illegible] men answered the call. Only [illegible] men under 17 years and over 50 [illegible] remained. Of the 150 who went, [illegible] are now dead, and half the rest wounded. One of my brothers, Jo[illegible] Kuhn, was killed within fifteen [illegible] of his home. Another brother, [illegible]manuel, we have not heard from for six months.

FORCED INTO ARMY.

"Although my husband is an American citizen, he was forced into the army, and was made to serve fifty days before he could prove his citizenship. He was then allowed to go, although he was forced to leave at once for America. I remained with my mother.

"All winter long the cannons roared incessantly, and we momentarily expected the Russians to invade our district. The village is just north of [illegible] Pass, where the hardest fighting occurred.

"Yet with all the horrible war, we did not suffer for want of food. Money is plentiful in Hungary, and although the food is not so plentiful, yet we are always well fed. And the people believe they are winning. It helps them bear the hardships.

"Despite the edicts of the Kaiser and Emperor Franz-Josef, the women wear mourning. There is scarcely a woman in either empire that is not in black for some relative. As you see, I am in mourning myself.

SEES SCHOONER BLOWN UP.

"Last August I left Hungary to come back, journeying through Germany and Holland. At Rotterdam I took the steamship Ryndam. While passing through the English Channel we passed a small schooner. We had scarcely traveled a hundred yards when this schooner struck a mine, blowing into atoms. We rescued two men struggling in the water, but the others were killed.

"For three days, as we sailed through the channel, we saw nothing but torpedo-boat destroyers. Thousands of them, French and English. It was the way England guarded her shores.

"Several times they stopped us. It was as careful an inspection as the Germans gave us when we entered Holland. And all the time our steamship just crawled along. We were passing through the mine fields."

Mrs. Greenfield declared she had seen all the war she wanted, and would not return to Hungary until peace is absolutely certain. According to her observations the Hungarians are just beginning to like the war, now that they believe they see [illegible] victory.

VOLUNTEERS DEPENDABLE.

SLURS ON NATION'S CITIZENS RESENTED BY CORRESPONDENT.

Points to Glorious Record of Previous Wars and Calls Attention to Work Now Being Done—Six Million Men Ready to Fight for Their Country.

LONG BEACH, Sept. 24 (To the Editor of The Times:) In the present nation-wide demand that the strength of our army and navy shall be increased, it is said that "but little dependence could be placed upon the citizen soldiers who volunteer in the event of war."

It must be remembered that in past wars—all of them successful—the volunteers have played a prominent part.

Some of the general officers of our army, now in active service, and others who commanded in both the Civil and Spanish wars, now in private life, were volunteers.

I believe that our regular army should be increased, but I do not like to hear our volunteers slandered. Our regular army should be increased to at least 250,000 men under a system that would give the country a reserve force of trained soldiers each year, as enlistments expire. That army, with the addition of the State Militia, would be our first line of defense. Our people would stand for that programme.

In the event of war with any foreign nation, the United States could put into service 6,000,000 of volunteers, with at least a half-million of them ready for active service in the field. The United States census of 1914 shows that there were then in the country more than 20,000,000 men, able and fit for service.

In 1914 there were ninety-seven United States army officers detailed as "Professors of Military Science and Tactics" at a like number of universities, colleges and military schools that were training a total of 36,872 enrolled in the military department. The reports of these officers to the War Department state "that forty of these are designated as distinguished colleges and honor schools where students have exhibited the greatest application and proficiency in military training and knowledge during the year."

Our volunteer armies are composed of fine and noble men, of men taught by loving mothers to love their country and their God before all else, ready to answer the country's call in time of need—trusting in our God for guidance and strength to meet and overcome every threatened danger to our country and our flag.

Big Opportunity.

MEXICAN TRADE GROWS AS COAST IS OPENED.

LOS ANGELES'S trade with the West Coast of Mexico in the past three weeks amounted to more than $100,000, according to a statement made yesterday by Traffic Manager Gregson of the Associated Jobbers.

"Our trade opportunities to the south are immense," said Mr. Gregson. "But we ned regular sailings to Mexican ports. There is an opportunity for our financiers to get behind a steamship line and offer such service and make money for themselves and the city.

"If we can do $100,000 worth of business with Mexico in three weeks," he continued, "without dependable modes of transportation, what could we do if we had frequent sailings from here? The West Coast of Mexico is now being opened up. Somebody will get the business. We want it."

From the ports of Sonora to Central America, things are "doing" in the business line, according to Mr. Gregson.

"There is a free zone down there," he said, "a zone untroubled by the revolutions that are raging in other portions of Mexico. Everybody knows how rich the West Coast of Mexico is. But the opening up of this rich trade territory has come so suddenly that the merchants were sort of taken unawares."

However, the merchants are making up for lost time. Last week, there was a meeting of thirty merchants interested in Mexican trade at the office of Mr. Gregson. The desirability of regular steamship service was emphasized by numerous speakers and several plans were talked over. No conclusion was reached.

But the meeting resulted in the Southwestern Steamship Company dispatching Frank M. Kolb to New Orleans and New York to interest moneyed men and merchants in a proposition to establish a steamship line between this city and New Orleans, via the canal and the West Coast ports of Mexico.

"If we can secure the financial backing, the boats will be put on," said P. Bayfield Gibson, the president of the company yesterday. "The business is assured, provided we can finance the line. Los Angeles is the predestined center for much of this Mexican trade."

GERMANS ARE PREPARED FOR ALLIED OFFENSIVE.

[BY WIRELESS AND A. P.]

BERLIN ((via wireless to Sayville, N. Y.) Sept. 25.—The Overseas News Agency sends out the following:

"The great offensive against the German west front has begun, according to the Berlin papers. It is expected the Germans are prepared for it.

"The Tageblatt publishes an interview with the Bulgarian Premier, M. Radoslovok, concerning that country's armed neutrality. M. Radoslavoff is quoted as saying that Bulgaria, until further developments, will employ this merely as a defensive measure and that mobilization is not directed against Greece or Rumania.

"The Tageblatt's correspondent further reports pro-German demonstrations at some places in Bulgaria.'"

FRENCH IN POSSESSION OF GERMAN POSITIONS.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PARIS, Sept. 25, 10:47 p.m.—The following official statement was issued by the War Office tonight:

"On the Belgian coast our batteries have co-operated in the bombardment by the British fleet of the German positions at Westende and Middlekerke.

"The British troops have attacked with success enemy positions to the west of Loos and Hulluch. Our troops, operating in conjunction with the British army, delivered to the north of Arras an energetic attack which permitted them to gain a foothold at several points in the enemies' lines.

"Between the Somme and the Aisne, fighting by means of torpedoes and bombs has been going on in the sector of Canny-Sur-Matz. Our artillery exploded a munitions depot in a fortified house at Beuvraignes.

"In Champagne, after a new and very violent bombardment of the trenches, shelters, blockhouses and batteries of the enemy, our troops began an assault of the German lines between the Suippes and the Aisne. The first advance positions have been occupied on almost the entire front attacked. Our progress continues.

"Artillery actions have occurred in the Woevre in Lorraine, and in the Vosges in the environs of Chapelotte and of Schratzmannelle."

NO SWEDISH SHIPS SOLD.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 25 (via London, 2:03 p.m.)—A semi-official statement has been issued here denying the report that Swedish ships are being sold abroad for the purpose of raising cash preparatory to Swedish participation in the war. It is declared that no such sales are contemplated.

EXPECT ANGELENO IN SAFETY TODAY.

BELIEVE RANSOM MONEY STILL ON WAY TO BANDITS IN CHIHUAHUA.

That E. P. Fuller, the Los Angeles man who has been held prisoner in Chihuahua by Mexican bandits since Monday, will arrive at El Paso some time today, is indicated by reports from the Texan city. Late last night dispatches stated that William McCabe, a foreman on Mr. Fuller's 500,000-acre ranch, about 120 miles from El Paso, in Mexico, was on his way to the outlaws' camp with ransom money.

Mrs. Fuller, who is at El Paso, at a late hour last night gave up hope of seeing her husband before today. She was confident, however, of a quick reunion, when the strain of the past week will be forgotten.

The bandits are said to be commanded by Miranda brothers and to include in their number one of he leaders who held Edward Ledwidge of the Pearson corporation for ransom recently. The band is said to be composed of followers of the late Gen. Orozco.

Repayment to the Carranza State government of Zacatecas, of taxes collected by the Villa government last July on foreign-owned mining property in Zacatecas is demanded by a circular issued to mine owners there, a copy of which reached the border yesterday.

Failure to repay the tax to the Carranza government would incur confiscation, it is said. The circular was signed by L. P. Lopez, Minister of Taxation of the Carranza State government of Zacatecas.

CHINA ADOPTS AN INCOME TAX.

YUAN SHI KAI ISSUES AN EDICT AFFECTING MANY MERCHANTS.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

PEKING, Aug. 15.—President Yuan Shi Kai has issued a mandate providing that Chinese merchants, government officials, bankers and professional men shall pay an income tax beginning the first of next January.

The generous response which the public made to the appeals for the patriotic defense fund evidently encouraged the President to enforce the income tax law promulgated last year, but not put into effect. His mandate says: "But in view of the fact that of late the patriotism of the people has been increasing daily, an opportune time has come to inaugurate the system."

Apparently the Chinese law is fashioned after the United States law in many particulars. As yet the minimum income upon which the tax will be levied has not been announced. Neither has the graduated scale of the tax been made public.

In explanation of the imposition of the tax upon only certain classes of persons, President Yuan Shi Kai says it is impossible immediately to make it general, but that it will be extended as soon as means are devised for determining the incomes of persons whose records are less clear than those of business and official people.

Collection of the tax is entrusted to the finance bureau of the government and its various branches. In the case of the public officials the tax is to be deducted monthly from their salaries.

Articles Valued at Over Two Thousand Dollars, Placed in Stocking for Safe Keeping, Disappear During Short Trip—Includes Several Large Diamonds.

A hole ripped in her hose, she believes by a splinter from a street car step, early last night caused Mrs. Maude E. Atkinson, No. 3033 Raymond avenue, a loss of jewelry valued by her at $2175.

According to Mrs. Raymond's report to the police, she placed her jewelry in her stocking before leaving home early in the evening. When she returned to her residence she discovered that all the jewelry had slipped through a tear and was lost. The articles include, as reported, a pendant set with seven diamonds, valued at $750; a ring set with twenty small diamonds, value $200; one large gold ring set with four large diamonds, $650; a gold ring set with two large diamonds, $400, and one ring set with five diamonds, $175.

BELGIAN AID DANSANT SCORES.

PRETTY GIRLS AND PLEASING NUMBERS MAKE AFFAIR A SUCCESS.

With an audience that filled Blanchard Hall to its capacity, the soiree dansant by the members of the Belgian War Relief Fund Association was successfully held last night. Every nation of the allied powers was represented, and each included among its number a half-dozen or more of the prettiest girls to be found. The entire affair was one of beauty.

A programme of unusual length and attractiveness was presented and although the official programmes announced in heavy black type that no encores would be given, several numbers had to be repeated to quiet the tumultuous demands of the audience. So well balanced was the programme that each number was a feature. Perhaps Petit Mario, with her wonderful dancing, received more applause than some of the other numbers. Then again, the handclapping may have been loudest when Miss Helen Deering danced the highland fling. It was hard to distinguish which number was enjoyed most.

During an intermission between the first and second sections of the programme Mme. Constantin Aperghis and Mme. F. S. Raymond told fortunes. The second part of the evening's entertainment was a grand ball. The many pretty girls present were easily the feature of this event. During the evening a few women of the Executive Committee sold ice cream, other refreshments and curios to swell the fund.

Although no accurate estimate could be made last night, it was said that a large amount of money was realized. The money will be forwarded at once to the central committee in New York and will be used to purchase materials and food to alleviate suffering in the distressed nation.

UNIQUE CELEBRATION.

Friends and neighbors of Samuel Goldstein, acquitted Friday of the charge of having murdered his partner, Joseph Cohen, will celebrate the successful outcome of the trial with a banquet tendered to Mr. Goldstein this afternoon at 2 o'clock. Tables will be spread on the vacant lot at No. 314 South Clarence street. The attorneys who defended Mr. Goldstein will be guests of honor.

BLUE AND GRAY MARCH TOGETHER IN PARADE.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDONDO BEACH, Sept. 25.—Former soldiers of the blue and the gray marched side by side today in the grand march at the annual picnic of the Redondo Beach Post No. 203, G.A.R. The occasion, aside from the outing, was a reunion of the veterans who fought for the Union in the Civil War and of members of the Woman's Relief Corps.

Participation in the events of the day was not limited, for among the white-haired soldiers were a few soldiers who fought in the war of '61, but with the Confederate army. Walking close to Commander Henry Harrison of the Robley D. Evans Post No. 200, Los Angeles, with head erect, was J. H. Afterdery, 78 years old, once a private in the First Missouri Artillery, Bledsoe's battery.

Coming here as guests of the Redondo Beach Post were members of the Robley D. Evans Post, Los Angeles, the Woman's Relief Corps, Robley D. Evans Post No. 126, Inglewood Post, Watts Post, Santa Monica Post and a few representatives from various other cities in Southern California.

Though the ranks of the various posts have been thinned, there was a goodly crowd for the presentation by Mrs. Jennie Reid Berry, president of the Robley D. Evans' Post Woman's Relief Corps, of a handsome silk flag to Mrs. Mary F. Growther, president of the Redondo Beach Woman's Relief Corps.

Commander W. J. Black of the Redondo Beach Post was chairman and introduced Commander Harrison of the Robley D. Evans Post and Col. Young of the Santa Monica Post. Following patriotic speeches and the flag presentation, the veterans were invited to partake of a free old-time army feed, consisting of beans, bread and butter, doughnuts and coffee.

HOTEL MEN OFFER AID TO CONTINUE THE FAIR.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN DIEGO, Sept. 25.—The California State Hotel Association, which closed its fourth annual meeting here tonight with a brilliant banquet at the Hotel del Coronado, went on record unanimously to assist financially and in every way possible for the continuance of the San Diego exposition another year.

Recently the Northern Hotel Men's Association passed a resolution to give their support for the continuance of the southern fair and again united with the southern hotel men in a similar resolution today passed by the State organization. Many of the members individually pledged large sums toward this end.

This morning the hotel men and their wives played the finals of the golf tournament at the Coronado Country Club links. S. F. MacFarlane of Los Angeles, attorney for the Southern Hotel Men's Association, won the first prize for the championship of the association. MacFarlane was scratch man and made it in 82. The other prize winners were Mrs. Walter Raymond of Pasadena, ladies' prize; H. W. Wills, best qualifying round; H. W. Wills, best gross score; H. H. Holmes, best net score; W. C. Brode, best net score with one hole out.

This afternoon the hotel men visited Tia Juana, and the banquet was the crowning event of the convention. William Clayton was toastmaster and addresses were delivered by former President Taft, Col. Edward Fletcher, representing Gov. Johnson, and George Burnham, representing President Davidson of the exposition.

Among the hotel men who gave speeches were H. W. Wills of San Francisco, the president-elect, who talked of legislation; H. Loomis, the outgoing president; John S. Mitchell of Los Angeles, ex-president of the National Hotel Men's Mutual Benefit Association, who talked of "Harmony Among Hotel Men;" Vernon Goodwin of the Alexandria Hotel, Los Angeles, who talked of "Trouble;" Edward T. Maples of San Francisco, whose subject was "Tomorrow," and Attorney S. F. MacFarlane, who told of legislation and other matters of interest to the hotel men.

MYSTERIOUS FATAL SHOT FIRED FROM MOUNTAINS.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

POMONA, Sept. 25.—Ira L. Neibel, prominent real estate dealer, died at the Pomona Valley Hospital this afternoon at 2 o'clock from injuries received when a stray bullet shattered his spine while he was hunting deer in the mountains six miles from Acton, Friday, as related in The Los Angeles Times today in an exclusive dispatch from Lancaster.

Mr. Neibel's business partner, E. G. Bangle, and Deputy Constable Christian Doutt of Lordsburg, were in the party. Friday morning Mr. Bangle started out on one trail and Mr. Doutt and Mr. Neibel followed another. As they journeyed along up the ridge they heard a rifle shot. Mr. Doutt was a dozen feet behind Mr. Neibel. He says the shot sounded like it came from a distance. Mr. Neibel suddenly pitched forward on his hands and knees, crying out that he was shot.

A soft-nosed bullet from a long-range rifle of large caliber had gone through a canteen of water on his back and passed clear through his body. The bullet mushroomed as it perforated the canteen. It entered his body almost squarely at the base of the spine, shattering the lower vertebrae, drilling almost straight through the body. It tore its way through the lower bowels, cut off the neck of the bladder, and fractured the right side of the pelvis, but stopped before passing through his trousers at the front.

Deputy Constable Doutt at once fired six signals for Mr. Bangle to come to his assistance, and he says that in doing so he discovered that his gun was loaded, hence he feels sure that the bullet which struck Mr. Neibel was a stray shot that came up the slope from behind them and not from his gun.

Failing to recall Mr. Bangle, Deputy Doutt tried to carry the wounded man back to camp, but saw it was a hopeless task, so he ran four miles and a half down the trail toward Acton. Finally he came upon a gang of men who were stringing telephone wires. The foreman tapped the line and called a doctor from Lancaster.

The doctor conveyed the injured man to the station at Acton, he was sent from there to Los Angeles by train, and conveyed from Los Angeles to the Pomona Valley Hospital in an ambulance. He arrived there at 9 o'clock Friday night. Doctors decided that he was too weak from shock to undergo an operation. He sank steadily until the end came at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Mr. Neibel was 41 years of age. He left a widow, two sons and a baby girl. He had been in business here fifteen years and was a member of the realty firm of Neibel & Bangle. He was a Prelate of the Knights of Pythias lodge.

After sending Mr. Neibel home by train Deputy Constable Doutt went back to camp, hunted Mr. Bangle, broke camp, and covered the six-mile trip to this city in the latter's automobile in four hours. They came by way of Mint Canyon.

An investigation is being made.

PENSIONS AND SUPPLIES FOR VETERANS OF HOME.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SOLDIERS' HOME, Sept. 25.—Pensions due veterans for the quarter ending September 4 have been paid here. The sum of $129,343.76 was disbursed from the treasurer's office, and checks for somewhat over $60,000 additional are being forwarded to veterans on furlough.

The event was attended by the usual exodus of men discharged or going on furlough. Thus far there are twenty-six discharges and 124 furloughs, with applications for each still coming into the office.

Contracts just awarded for subsistence for the quarter beginning October 1 total $30,521.85. Some idea of how well the government provides for the veterans' appetites may be gathered from the following excerpts from the schedule of supplies for which awards were made:

Fish, including boneless codfish, pickled salmon and fresh fish, totals 20,000 pounds; meats, consisting of fresh beef, mutton and pork loins, corned beef, salt pork, pork shoulders, breakfast bacon, sugar-cured bacon, together with 20,000 pounds of bologna, frankfurters and pork sausages, totals 151,000 pounds.

Besides 90,846 pounds of flour, cereals include graham flour, cornmeal, rolled oats, cracked wheat, farina, hominy and rice, amounting to 116,540 pounds. There are 178 dozen cans, comprising six varieties of fruits, and 11,700 pounds of dried and fresh fruits are named to be purchased, in addition to which, large quantities are constantly being furnished from the farm and orchard.

Other items are: 137,500 pounds of Irish potatoes and 3000 pounds of sweet potatoes, 17,000 pounds of coffee, 700 pounds of tea and 38,000 pounds of sugar must be absorbed by the veteran stomach during the next three months. A large number of minor items include extracts, condiments and articles needed in preparation of foods.

The following are among recent changes in places of prominence: Capt. W. T. Spilman who, several months ago, in order to enable him to pay a long visit to the "old home back East," resigned as commander of Home Co. I, returned in time for reappointment to that office, vice Capt. Frank Morell, whose sudden illness necessitated removal to the hospital for treatment. Sergt. Thomas A. Tiernan, also a former officer of Home Co. I, is reappointed sergeant of that company, vice Frederick Heuerman, resigned.

BELIEVES EATING HELPS EDUCATION.

POMONA COLLEGE GOES INTO THE BOARDING-HOUSE BUSINESS.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

CLAREMONT, Sept. 25.—Pomona College students eating at the college commons will buy their meals this winter from the college itself, instead of from the management of an inn, as formerly. By a new arrangement which has just gone into operation, the college authorities, in co-operation with the associated students, have taken over the financing of the big eating-room of the inn.

The basis on which Pomona has entered the restaurant business is simple. The inn management contracts to furnish as many meals as required during the semester at a flat rate per meal; the college in turn sells the eats to the undergraduates by the semester. The semester price as established at present is $86, payable in four installments, which makes the monthly rate approximately $20.

A committee consisting of six students, one member of the Pomona faculty, and Manager E. E. Jones of the associated students will meet at regular intervals to confer upon the food and service. It is anticipated that the system will give greater satisfaction than anything heretofore undertaken by the inn management.

The first assembly of the Pomona College year was given over to Prof. F. P. Brackett, acting dean of the college, who addressed the student body concerning the coming college year.

Repairs on the botany building, which was damaged by fire just before the opening of college, are being hurried to completion. The fire, which was probably the result of spontaneous combustion, totally destroyed a collection made during the summer by Prof. David Crawfore, as well as various biological equipment stored in the building pending the completion of the new adjacent structure, Harwood Hall.

Other preparation will be made for a lively season.

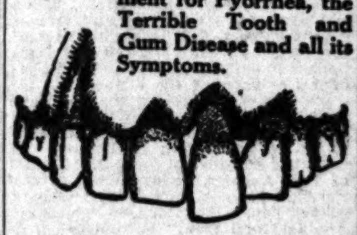
Loose Teeth Sore Gums
(PYORRHEA)

I am a Dentist of 25 years' Experience. I Have Perfected a Most Successful Home Treatment for Pyorrhea, the Terrible Tooth and Gum Disease and all its Symptoms.



I have found a very successful home treatment for that terrible disease called Pyorrhea or Riggs disease of the gums. Most dentists tell their patients there is no cure for it, that there is no cure for loose teeth, bleeding, spongy, shrinking gums and dropping out of teeth; but many who have used my home treatment say there is, AND PROVE IT.

Don't have those teeth pulled. You may save every one of them—make them good, firm, healthy, sound teeth again.

Hundreds of patients say Dr. Willard's home treatment stops the teeth from being loose or wobbly and that it has done so in cases where the patient could almost pull his teeth out with his fingers, where the gums were soft and spongy, bleeding and shrinking away from the teeth. You may make these conditions positively and absolutely disappear and end your Pyorrhea. There is no pain, no fussing, no waste of time.

The letters I will send you from people in all parts of the country will tell you that the torture and expense of dentist's work—all its grinding, whirring, jamming and nerve-touching agony are gone forever. No more plates and bridges. They enjoy good teeth, good chewing and a good stomach once more. If you have any of the symptoms mentioned, then Pyorrhea, sometimes called Riggs disease, is on the way—you are bound to lose your teeth and have to wear those awful false teeth, if you don't find a cure for it now. Simply send your name and address on coupon below and I will tell you all about this dreadful disease and why my simple home treatment may save your teeth, without pain or expense of the dental chair.

AMERICA'S greatest garden contest, that of Los Angeles city and county, will come to an end a week from Saturday with the awarding of $21,325 in prizes to 1000 of the 8388 competitors in the 1915 General Committee's school and home-garden contest. The awards will be made at 2 p.m., October 9 in Exposition Park. Started in the early summer of 1914, the garden contest early took over dimensions unparalleled by these of any similar competition in the history of the nation's schools. At one time there were 15,000 children and 388 schools entered on the rolls of the contestants, while the competition affected an estimated 150,000 homes.

So useful has the contest been in inculcating the love of the [illegible] of vocations in the hearts of the pink-cheeked misses and pugnacious little boys of the city schools, that the Board of Education has decided to make garden-culture more prominent in the curriculum.

The contest was instituted by the City and County Beautifying Committee of the large general committee, with the idea of making the city [illegible] beautiful for the hundreds of thousands of exposition-year visitors, and also to inspire a love of the beautiful and useful in the breasts of the [illegible] children.

Under the leadership of William M. [illegible], chairman of the City Beautifying Committee, with the able assistance of C. L. Schufeldt, director of garden work for the city schools, a co-operative arrangement was perfected whereby fifty-four experienced [illegible] teachers were assigned to the [illegible] garden work. These teachers [illegible] two hours extra each day instructing the home gardeners in how to handle their work.

Practically the same idea was carried out by the County Beautifying Committee, with J. L. Matthews of [illegible] at its head, though it was early found impracticable to include home [illegible] in the contest. However, 268 of the 388 schools entered in the contest are country schools.

TOO VAST A FIELD.

On the score of the impracticability of including country home gardens in the contest, Eugene Lahee con[illegible] a story of marked conclusiveness. As a member of the committee, Mr. Lahee went forth to judge country school gardens. He traveled by automobile for four days, concluded he had seen it all, and came home to find that he had traveled within the circumference of a 1-cent piece on a map in which the county was shown as six inches across.

Though the list of contestants is a finite thing, members of the City Beautifying Committee estimate that through the medium of school gardens and grounds, and home gardens and grounds, nearly 100,000 children were enlisted in the city beautiful campaign. This estimate is well within reason, for there are, according to the directory figures, 211,527 homes in this city, and seedsmen estimate that 120,000 of them have either flowers or vegetable gardens.

A large number of the small contestants dropped out, as the sun wheeled its way into the summer solstice, while others were disqualified or discouraged by such small deterrents as blight. The result was that the list of individual contestants was early cut nearly in half. All the schools originally entered in the contest remain, however.

STRONG FOR VEGETABLES.

The committee did not emphasize the economic viewpoint, except as a more beautiful city is a better city, and its property of more value, yet

Mme. Alys Larreyne

Famous European Prima Donna

Alys Larreyne, famous prima donna and member of the Paris Grand Opera, received an ovation when she appeared in concert before an audience of more than 8000 people at the Spreckels organ with Dr. H. J. Stewart as accompanist at the Panama-California Exposition, San Diego.

Few indeed are the artists visiting this country from abroad who have been so enthusiastically received as has Madame Larreyne. She will soon begin her American tour, which we predict will be a most successful one.

While here in Los Angeles she selected for her home the world renowned Chickering piano and in writing us about it a few days ago she said:

Gentlemen:

After using the different leading pianos of the world I give it as my judgment that the Chickering piano is today the foremost leader among all pianos.

I prefer the Chickering because it does not limit my demands for volume and beautiful quality of tone, and because its action is reliable and simply perfect.

Sincerely yours

WHO IS TO SUCCEED LATE BISHOP CONATY?

Creditable Rumor Says Departed Prelate a Year Ago Urged that Rector of St. Vibiana's be Next in Charge of Diocese — Growth of Work Adds to Importance of Choice of Successor.

WHO will succeed the well-loved Bishop Conaty as head of the Catholic diocese of Monterey and Los Angeles? Several names are whispered about, and there is much speculation. But to speculate in so august a case as the appointment of a bishop is to presume to know the minds of a score of men, even of the Pope himself, and to essay a forecast on events for which not even the motive force has yet been supplied.

Some time soon, presumably, Archbishop Hanna of the province of San Francisco will call a meeting in this city of the diocesan consultors and "irremovable" pastors of the same. These priests, six in number, will meet in secret. They will ballot in secret, and three names in relative order of preference, will be submitted to the archbishop as those of men whom the cleric of the diocese believe fitted to exercise the duties of the episcopus.

The list is immediately forwarded to the archbishop, who calls a meeting of the suffragan bishops of the province to consider them. But there is no obligation on the archbishop or suffragan bishops to confine their consideration to the names on the diocesan list. They may even disregard the list and compile one of their own, just as it is not obligatory, and in some cases not considered well, to elevate a priest of the diocese to the bishopric.

The list once compiled and approved by the archbishop and suffragan bishops, it is forwarded to the apostolic delegate at Washington, who is now Most Rev. John Bonzano, and by him to the Prefect of the Propaganda.

The final choice, which is not confined to the names received, rests with the Roman authorities, and is lastly confirmed by the Pope.

PREFERENCE INDICATED?

In connection with this alternate of choice, a story is whispered about, apparently with the authority of one close to the late bishop, that, while in Rome a year ago, feeling himself to be failing and with the welfare of the diocese at heart, he urged that Rt. Rev. Patrick Harnett, long rector of the Cathedral of St. Vibiana, be named his successor. That no man knows the affairs of the diocese better, that no man has them nearer to heart than Monsignor Harnett, is to say a thing the truth of which cannot be questioned.

But, before the confirmation of the Holy See is given to the candidate for the bishopric, he must submit to a double examination as to his fitness, first by a papal delegate at his place of residence, and afterwards by the Roman Congregation of Cardinals assigned for the purpose.

In event of both processes proving satisfactory, the bishop-elect is confirmed, preconized, and so far promoted that he is allowed to exercise the right of jurisdiction in his see. He cannot, however, exercise the functions proper to the episcopal order until his consecration, which ordinarily takes place within three months of his confirmation.

The bishop is consecrated, after taking the oath of fidelity to the Holy See and subscribing to the profession of faith, by a bishop appointed by the Pope for the purpose, assisted by at least two other bishops or prelates, the main features of the act being the laying on of hands, the anointing with oil, and the delivery of the pastoral staff and other symbols of office. After consecration the new bishop is solemnly enthroned in the cathedra, surmounted by a baldachin or canopy, on the gospel side of the choir in the cathedral church, and blesses the assembled congregation.

DIOCESE GROWS.

With the growth of the diocese of Monterey and Los Angeles under the twelve-year sway of the late bishop, a most solemn duty rests on the dio-

WINS FORTUNE IN IMPERIAL LAND.

COMMISSION CONFIRMS TITLE OF WOMAN WHO MADE DESERT ENTRY.

Miss Maggie E. Cox's right to 320 acres, within rifle shot of the townsite of Niland, Imperial Valley, was confirmed by a decision of the Commissioner of the General Land Office, received here yesterday. Miss Cox has a fortune in the holding.

Miss Cox made a desert entry on the land, the final proof being approved by the Department of the Interior, but on April 2, 1909, this land, with other large areas, was withdrawn from all forms of entry in aid of what is known as the Yuma reclamation project. On June 24, 1912, the land was restored to the public domain.

Dr. John W. Craig of Corona filed a contest against the entry, alleging that all the annual proofs had been fraudulently obtained; that the land had been abandoned, and that Miss Cox had taken no steps to irrigate her holdings and prepare it for cultivation.

It was shown that Miss Cox had purchased water stock to the value of $3710, and that there was nothing tangible supporting the charge of fraud in the matter of making proof.

The Cox family, consisting of the father of Miss Cox, and her brother, Walter Cox, now hold 960 acres in what is considered the heart of the famous Imperial Valley, each thus having a fortune. The father had no trouble in perfecting his patent, but the brother was compelled to defend his rights against an adverse claimant.

HORSE TRAMPLES DRIVER.

Frightened by Falling Article Animal Bolts, Dragging Owner by Rein—Unconscious when Rescued.

Wong Kee, driver of a vegetable wagon, was removed to the Receiving Hospital yesterday afternoon after he had been run over three times by his horse. The animal became frightened at Duane street and Apex avenue, when an electrician dropped a sack of carbons from an electric light pole, and started to run away.

The Chinese held fast to the reins and with the first leap of the horse was thrown under the animal's feet. He was dragged and twice more jerked beneath the hoofs. He was unconscious when rescued and has a score of cuts and abrasions about the head. Assistant Surgeon Hiller said the man will recover.

COST OF LIVING DROPS WELL BELOW YEAR AGO.

Gradual Decrease in Food Prices in Los Angeles and United States.

Consumer, and not the Democratic Administration, Brings About the Happier Situation—Many of the Staple Grocery Items Lower—House and Apartment Rents Down from Ten to Thirty Per Cent.

THE cost of living today is considerably lower than it was a year ago. Food prices in the United States reached the highest level in twenty-four years November 15, 1913, and since that time a gradual but perceptible decrease has set in. Of course one year ago today the war had been going on a little over a month, and in that first month there had been many fictitious advances. However, most of these came the first two weeks of the war and prices by September 21 had moved back to a normal basis.

The Democratic administration cannot be given credit for this lessening of the burden of the average citizen, as the consumer has brought about his own salvation by refraining from purchasing those staples when the same acquired too high a value, contenting himself with cheaper substitutes. Economy has been the watchword in almost all families during the past year.

Of the forty-seven staple grocery items used here for price comparison, twenty-one are lower than a year ago today, only five are higher and twenty-one are unchanged. Some of the declines are remarkable, such as 1 cent a pound on butter and cheese and 1 cent a dozen on eggs. Potatoes are 30 cents a sack cheaper than they were at this time in 1914, and the price of onions has almost been cut in two. The only commodities that are more expensive than they were twelve months ago are flour, rolled oats, crackers, baking powder and canned peas. A list of staples that are lower now than they were a year ago is decidedly formidable and comprises eggs, butter, cheese, coffee, chocolate, cocoa, potatoes, American sardines, tuna, corned beef, evaporated milk, lard, starch, sugar, canned tomatoes, cottolene, canned apricots, canned pineapple, onions, walnuts and olives. In the following tabulation of prices for the two periods only the smallest possible unit of purchase was used in each commodity and quotations represent prices to the consumer. Jobbing prices would show an even greater variance, as the retail merchant does not raise his prices until he has to, preferring to take a small loss rather than change his figures:

RENTS MUCH LOWER.

The item of rent, which plays an important part in the cost of living, has suffered a heavy decline in Los Angeles during the past year and all classes of dwellings can be secured today at figures from 10 to 30 per cent. lower than the same property brought in 1914. There is an over-supply of bungalows, flats and apartments in the city, and even with the great influx of tourists this year owners have been compelled to lower their rents in order to obtain tenants.

If gasoline can be considered as a necessary adjunct to the price of existence it should be included in this summary. The liquid fuel is exactly 1½ cents a gallon less than it was on September 21, 1914. Fuels such as coal, wood or gas have undergone little, if any, reduction and prices are the same today as they were last year.

STRIKING ACHIEVEMENT OF Y.W.C.A.

Unprecedented Success of their Work at the San Francisco Exposition—Friendly Arms Around Girl Workers. Help for Tired Mothers—The Zone Club.

EXPOSITION GROUNDS, SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 24.—I assure you that you can't appreciate all the beauties of the Panama-Pacific Exposition unless you have seen some of the wonders of the Y.W.C.A. activities on these grounds.

The Y.W.C.A. Building is the busiest spot at the fair and it radiates good temper and goodwill. And the Christian part of it is only fundamentally obvious. No one handed me a tract, when I went there yesterday, or asked me if I was saved; nobody inquired into my morals or my religion, although I attended a party, one of the most interesting to which I was ever invited, which was given for the girls working in the exposition grounds. And I was there as a working girl, labeled with my name and profession—for this occasion, a typist, although my editor will bear witness that I am a very indifferent operator. They accepted me amiably as one of them, never being allowed to feel a rank outsider, friendly arms were linked through mine by sweet unaffected maidens all of whom made a business of making the stranger welcome.

There is no limit to the kindliness of the Y.W.C.A. It doesn't matter who you are or where you come from, what your age, or how execrable your taste in dress, if you need them the Y.W.C.A. is there to help you. If you are an enterprising mamma who has had the temerity to bring the baby and little Ethel and Johnnie along, the Y.W.C.A. will see to it that the burden proves a light and happy one. They will mind any sort of a baby from a month old upwards at the modest sum of 25 cents per day and make them so happy that they show a disconcerting reluctance to rejoin the family.

If you are elderly and find that the exposition is a bit overwhelming after sixty years of age, the Y.W.C.A. has comfy chairs and rest places and ethereal cups of tea for you, and is prepared to extend all sorts of privileges to your tired person by passing you in beyond the waiting lines of hungry youth, amiably discarding all the rules for your benefit.

And if you are just an ordinary person with a yearning for a looking-glass, where you can adjust a dab of powder upon a shiny proboscis, behold them ready with the necessary accommodation and helpfulness.

THE DINNER LINE.

But perhaps the noblest thing they are doing is to provide cheap, good food at a dazzling cafeteria within the grounds, where one can appease the gnaws of hunger at a lower cost than one could cook it at home. That cafeteria line extends for a quarter of a mile at meal times and several thousand people eat at the Y.W.C.A. Building three times a day. A woman's organization, but the male is not excluded; indeed, it is rather a pride to them that more than half their dinner guests are the other sex. And the cooking is worthy the most exacting male palate, too. All of which makes it possible for the humblest pocket to enjoy the fair and its charms at a minimum of expense. It did one's heart good to see reveling in the exposition delights whole families who obviously could not have afforded the happiness unless some such amiable provision had been considered.

Then again the terrifying stories of inordinately expensive accommodations in San Francisco vanish if the Y.W.C.A. is consulted. They have lists of homes where one can live well and economically, homes personally known to them, and many thousand modest persons find it possible to spend several weeks in San Francisco for as low as $6 a week, including meals. I have met scores of people who have assured me that $10 a week covered their whole expense, including admission daily to the fair—the sort of people who inhabit the home towns and build up great communities.

Think what a wonderful thing this is. It enables many thousands of people to enjoy their vacation at our great international exposition as inexpensively as they could visit a seaside resort near home. Indeed, one came to the conclusion that it was easier and simpler for persons of modest income to come up and enjoy the fair than for people of more ambitious tastes; every detail is considered for them, every sympathetic arrangement made to avoid unnecessary expense. The rich and the rich only are exploited in San Francisco—and the rich rather like that and take it as a compliment.

Then there are the first-aid treatments, with competent trained nurses to meet every emergency. Indeed, after a peep into the first-aid department, one rather yearns to try a spell of sickness, they take care of one with such sympathetic sweetness.

FOR THE GIRLS.

And an employment bureau is another of their kindly considerations. They have placed thousands of girls in positions and keep friendly watch over them as long as they desire it. No longer. Never a hint of officious interference, just friendliness to your heart's content.

A highly interesting department is the club for the girls working on the Zone. The Zone is the frivolous locality where all the dime excitements are sequestered. Take the swimming and diving girls, for instance. I have met some of them and found them quite pleasing. But their profession is a hazardous one. There is a great open-air tank of warm water outside their show place in which they do a few stunts to attract the crowd. That means that on a chilly evening they come out of that warm tank and shiver with the cold and contract hideous chills. Two of them could scarcely speak and coughed miserably—at $12 a week. The Zone Club discovered that no provision whatever had been made for changing the water in the tanks and they interfered with maternal wisdom, to the great advantage of the performers. And they use every effort to cure those colds and to doctor the burst ear drums from which so many of the diving girls suffer owing to the long pressure under the water.

All this sort of work, the Zone Club, the first aid, the rest rooms and the information assistance is paid for out of the profits from that popular cafeteria. Selling good food at rock bottom prices, they can still make a profit, so well is the whole organization run. Four thousand meals a day is their average.

There are merry parties, when different classes of girls are entertained, and likewise visiting organizations from other States. The one I went to in my working girl capacity was quite fascinating. I made friends for life of some of the nicest girls I ever met. One dainty little maid of patrician aspect ran a postcard kiosk; another, a petite damsel with a delicious brogue, was in charge of the model miner's cottage (very realistic at the head of a miniature coal pit,) another explained the making of government shells for war, another ran the giant Underwood typewriter, another served tea and sandwiches in the food products building, another did typewriting for a revolving pump exhibit and so on. Bright, intelligent, pretty girls, modest and sweet, who could hold their own in any society, never a dull one among them. And it does one good to hear their eulogies of the Y.W.C.A., to which they are all frankly grateful.

FROM FAR AWAY.

Many of the girls come from faraway States, sent here by their respective firms. But there are many others who came with commendable enterprise to San Francisco and chanced getting work at the fair. When the exposition closes there will be a great deal of unemployment, but the kindly Y.W.C.A. is looking ahead and that employment bureau of theirs is not idle. The girls feel that their welfare is in good hands and they receive every possible encouragement to be self-respecting, self-supporting, independent young women. And those of them who are tired or sick know very well that rest homes await them where they can enjoy a kindly spell of recuperation. The Y.W.C.A. camp at Del Monte, nestled in a romantically ideal spot, is one of the proud possessions of the organization, where many a girl spent a joyous summer vacation at trifling cost, and of which they speak with affectionate reminiscence.

All this wonderful work means indefatigable organization. It is one of the inspiring things of the exposition. And the good women that are responsible for it all beg that one will not shout their names abroad, "for we all do it, no special one, you know, and if the girls themselves did not co-operate so cheerfully and generously, we could not succeed."

Still it is interesting to know that two Los Angeles women are among this galaxy of sweetness. Miss Thursie Brookman, for instance, who specializes in Zone maidens, is from Los Angeles. You can take a geographical pride in the affection in which she is held here. And Miss Constance Clark of Los Angeles, who formerly figured as a society maid in frivolous country club circles and addicted to golf, has now thrown herself heart and soul into this work and looks happier than you ever knew her.

Every day at the Y.W.C.A. building she stands to welcome the streams of hesitating strangers and make them feel at home. And oh, the funny questions she is called upon to answer.

"If I do the Fine Arts Building today and take all the time I want to, how long will it take me?" asked one lady.

But you can't exasperate a Y.W.C.A. fairy that way. Without a glimmer of a smile she will proceed to discuss this interesting problem—and reserve her laugh until later.

CLUB WOMAN'S INVENTION.

Mrs. Sallie S. Davis, a former member of the Wednesday Morning and Cosmos clubs and now residing at the Hotel Munford, has received letters patent on an adjustable window bed which she hopes will prove of value to tubercular patients too poor to leave the city for open-air treatment in the country. The device can be changed into an elevated platform, flower table and child's playhouse by manipulation of its parts.

TALL TOMATO STORY.

Veracious Loma Drive Resident Grows 'em in Form of Trees Over Fifteen Feet High.

Tomato vines growing fifteen feet high and carrying about a hundred pounds each of "love apples," some of them weighing a pound and a quarter apiece, is the contribution to California horticultural literature of A. D. Campbell, No. 169 Loma drive. Mr. Campbell has the tomatoes to prove it, not to mention photographs of his whole family backed up pyramid fashion against one of the "tomato trees" without reaching the top of it.

Mr. Campbell planted his tomatoes last March and began a system of trimming calculated to force the growth into the main stems of the plants. The soil is black dobe and the place where the vines are growing was formerly a chicken pen, which may account in a measure for the luxuriant growth. The vines are trained up on long poles and began to bear when about six feet high.

AGAINST ANTI-PARTY PLOT.

Appeal to California Republicans by the Republican State Central Committee, Through Chairman Keesling.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 17, 1915.
To Republicans of California:

At a special election there will be submitted to a vote of the people two bills passed at the recent session of the Legislature, intended to extend the system of nonpartisanship, now prevailing in municipalities and counties in this State, to all State elective offices. It is claimed that it will only add a few non-political officials to the long list already elected under the nonpartisan system, but those "few" in contradistinction to the "long list already elected" by the nonpartisan system, are State officials.

Convinced of the importance of retaining the partisan plan I earnestly advise your co-operation to defeat the nonpartisan plan.

You must thoroughly appreciate and emphasize the fact that there is only one issue involved, namely, Shall State officers be elected upon a partisan or upon a nonpartisan system?

Do not be confused by false issues. Befogging the real issue is frequently resorted to by the adroit advocate. You will be told that the opposition to this legislation is an old organization, Republican machine plot and that only the old organization standpatters oppose the nonpartisan system. This is not so, because patriotic independent thinkers among the Republicans and Democrats as well oppose it. However, that it is not an issue. When occasion demands unscrupulous party leaders will be "kicked out" as has been done heretofore. You will be told that, as all the nonpartisan bills have not been submitted, confusion will result. That confusion will be less injurious than the effect of the nonpartisan system. That is not an issue. Let that not stand in your way.

It is claimed for the nonpartisan system that it will result in "humane and enlightened administration and in efficient business management." Experience does not sustain the probability of continuous efficient service, much less improvement, by virtue of the nonpartisan plan. The present nonpartisan direct primary system of election of judges, due to the necessary personal solicitation of votes, has certainly not resulted in improving the character of applicants for judicial positions, but on the contrary has dissuaded many good men and it has been a disheartening handicap to those who have been conscientious enough to submit to the present-day method of campaigning. It has also lessened the dignity of and respect for the bench.

I believe that the proposed nonpartisan system could be successful only under conditions similar to the old town meeting system, where the attendance of every citizen was probable. Naturally under such a condition the qualifications of each were known to the others. It is improbable that the average citizen of a State so extensive as California will be possessed of facts sufficient to qualify himself to judge the qualifications of a candidate for State office.

Candidates should be selected by parties by some method more reasonable than the present one, but safeguarding the rights of electors. This would make the party a guarantor of its candidate and fix responsibility. It would afford the people of the State a selection from at least two, and probably more, party candidates.

Parties are dependent upon efficient administration for success and that insures on the average a better class of candidates from which a satisfactory choice may be made than will be afforded under the proposed system. The intelligent voter will not be confined within party lines if his party candidate is unsatisfactory, thereby disposing of the contention that parties inject false issues of Federal questions into State elections.

How would the person of ordinary means make a campaign under the proposed nonpartisan system? It would require the support of wealthy friends, or others of influence, and the candidate would be, owing to his human instincts, more or less under obligation to those who contributed to his campaign, and it would be a fruitful field of activity for those seeking domination of government for ulterior purposes. What guarantee would there be, the public having relieved itself of such dominated officials, that the succeeding officials would not be the same? And there may be still another result—selections of candidates for the primaries by parties organized without safeguards of the character intended to be insured by recent legislation directed against boss control. The nonpartisan system would annul every reform directed to correct that evil.

The natural result would be that incumbents, by reason of their Statewide acquaintance due to incumbency, would have a tremendous advantage over the non-office-holding candidate.

It is impossible in limited space to offer all or a complete argument against the nonpartisan system. The preservation of parties within States for the maintenance of the integrity of those parties nationally affords anothers weighty reason for opposing the nonpartisan plan.

Finally, with reference to the campaign. County committees, therefore, it without sufficient funds to carry on even a necessary educational campaign. County committees, therefore, are urged to co-operate with local State Committeemen and organize effort to maintain party government. No doubt some assistance will be afforded by the joint committee having the referendum campaign in charge.

Respectfully submitted,
F. V. KEESLING,
Chairman, Republican State Central Committee.

Contest Nears End.

the greater portion of the home gardens in the contest turned out to be vegetable gardens.

This was exceedingly desirable from the standpoint of the committee members, as they found it comparatively easy to force the esthetic upon the vegetable gardeners, whereas, everybody knows that vegetables are welcomed in the average flower garden with about the same alacrity that a porker is invited to occupy the Louis Quinze in the parlor.

Though the benefits of the contest have largely accrued to the participants in indefinable sums of knowledge of plant lore and culture and reddened cheeks, the monetary expenditures tell a worth-while tale of a campaign for beauty.

All told, the beautifying committee's expenditures have been $14,400, including $8000 for salaries of landscape gardeners and others; $5000 for seeds, trees and plants; $1000 for printed material, including supplying each contestant with a garden manual, and $400 for extra labor on school grounds.

These expenditures were all made by the beautifying committees as part of their work, and take no cognizance of the large expenditures by parents of contestants. A conservative estimate of this expenditure, according to committeemen, is not far short of $20,000.

MORE AND PRETTIER.

And what has been obtained through the movement? For one thing, there have been more home gardens this year than ever before, and a more alluring display of home grounds tastefully planted. School grounds have also been markedly benefited by the movement.

The Grant school in Hollywood is an instance. The grounds were bare and more or less unsightly a year ago. Then came the garden movement, and M. W. Chandler, the principal, himself an enthusiastic cultivator of flowers, seized upon the opportunity with such good effect that the school now has one of the prize-winning gardens.

What the Grant school has done has been duplicated by scores of other schools. Within the city there are 120 schools in the contest. It is violating no secrets to state that the awarding of prizes has, in many cases, been by but a hair-breadth of superiority over some other school. No one who saw the school pageant can have been other than convinced that the lesson of the flowers sank in. The rising generation has come to see that Southern California sunshine and showers make flowers as well as real estate values.

The awarding of the prizes at Exposition Park will be a gala event. That about all the contestants will be present is looked upon as certain. That each school in the contest will have a representative present, perhaps several, is equally certain. The prizes are all by vouchers for cash.

The awards include prizes of $2.50 to $35 to 816 home gardens, total $8825; awards of $7400 to county schools, $4400 to city elementary schools in eight divisions, and $700 to high and intermediate schools.

DEPORT BAD MEN.

Detectives Round up Seven in Campaign to Rid City of Bunco Artists—All Started East.

In the campaign of the police to rid the city of bunco men seven questionable characters were arrested during the past week and given sentences of six months in jail, with the alternative of leaving town. They all chose the latter and yesterday morning Detectives Carroll and Boyd accompanied them to the Southern Pacific depot, where they obtained tickets for eastern points.

The men, who are said to be unfavorably known in every large city in the country, are Frank Norris, Thomas Farrell, J. B. Campbell, Frank Clarkson, M. L. Jackson, E. T. Coburn and Ray West. The last named is said to be a pickpocket and was nabbed by the officers while in a crowd at the Pacific Electric depot.

Detectives Carroll and Boyd declared yesterday that these men are of the worst type that has ever visited Los Angeles. The officers believe that in arresting them within a day or so after they arrived, many intended victims have been protected.

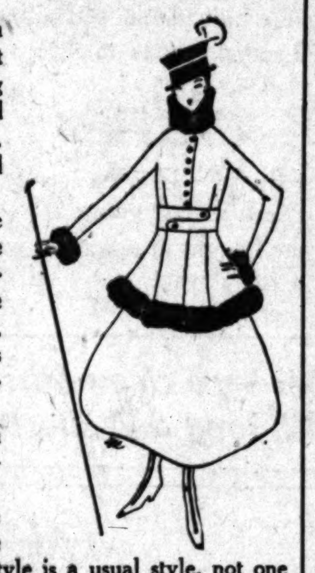
Women's $25 Suits



You'll not likely find another such variety of suits at $25—Variety at $25 means work—it means hunting cloths; it means putting higher priced styles into lower priced suits; figuring, adapting designing over weeks and weeks of time.

It stands for idealism. Only the desire to do the impossible would make it worth while to work on and on, discarding the less beautiful for the more beautiful, till, at last, besides quality, besides tailoring, besides cloth there is also variety—a variety of only beautiful styles.

This variety—these dozens upon dozens of styles at $25 we are backing like a brick wall.

We know the style—we know the cloth, we know the tailoring and we know what they stand for—not one style is a usual style, not one can be repeated over and over again. It is ours.

So when you pay us $25 for a suit you will know that there's nothing better in New York or between New York and here, for $25.

Wonderful Brassieres 58c

Victoria Regia.

RARE LILY IS FOOT ACROSS.

Only Three Specimens, One at Eastlake Park.

Leaf Strong Enough to Support Man's Weight.

Many Beautiful Flowers at City Conservatory.

BY NEETA MARQUIS.

The Victoria regia, a rare South American water lily, is in bloom these September days at the Eastlake Park conservatories. It is a remarkable plant, furnished to the park by E. D. Sturtevant of Hollywood, a specialist in water plants, who supplied the Jackson and Lincoln Park conservatories of Chicago with all their finest specimens some years ago, and who is also responsible for the choice display of Egyptian lotuses and water lilies at the San Diego exposition.

This Victoria lily is the largest of the only three plants in California, one of the others being at Mr. Sturtevant's place in Hollywood, the other at Golden Gate Park, San Francisco. The Victoria regia will be included in the water lily exhibit to be made by Mr. Sturtevant next month at the Broadway Automobile and Flower Show. The seed was planted in a very warm hothouse last January, and nurtured there until the weather grew mild enough for the lily to be transplanted to one of the pretty formal lakes between two wings of the new conservatory, where it is already overcrowding its space.

The leaves, which are from two to four feet in diameter, lie flat on the water with edges turned up sharply two or three inches. With long, straight stems as big as ropes connecting them with the center, they resemble small rafts tied to a stake. They look like trays of hammered metal, green with age. Their shape gives the plant its common name of "water platter." The under side of each is cupped, like a series of arches supporting a bridge, so that a man may lay a board across the top of a large leaf and rest his weight upon it.

QUEEN OF WATER BLOOMS.

I telephoned to the conservatory the other morning and learned that a flower had opened just the night before. Hastening over to gaze upon this queen of water lilies, I found the royal bloom already beginning to close its creamy petals until evening, when it would open once more, having turned a faint pink in the meantime, then pass into the oblivion of faded flowers.

It was a foot across when opened full, for the blossoms in their native state measure from one to two feet. Several buds were floating beside it, each like a dull red cannon ball in appearance. The covering of the bud cracks at midday, and by 8 o'clock at night the exquisite flower, giving off a most wonderful fragrance, unveils her face to the stars. The South American Indians call the plant the "water maize," roasting and eating the seeds of it.

But the Victoria regia, rare and lovely as it is, is not the only attraction at the conservatory. How many Angelenos realize that this new conservatory, finished only last August, but for which plants had been in process of preparation for two years previous, contains a finer botanical collection than that shown at either of the two expositions now inviting the world? It is idle merely to hear the scientific names of all the lovely things there, even though they be pronounced, and even spelled, by the hearty Scotch tongue of the head gardener, but it is worth much to have a glimpse at the beauty of them.

SOUTH AMERICAN SEEDLINGS.

If by special favor one is conducted through the propagating rooms, he will see many South American seedlings at the nursing-bottle stage, but he will have to remove his glasses at the door in order to do it, for the nursery is like a Turkish bath. Here are the soft, woolly-leafed Gesneria, with their freckled bells in rich purple-red, and Mimosa, which at a touch folds up its tiny hands and shrinks away, also seedlings of royal palms and Poinciana ferns, the latter named for a governor of the Antilles. The Anthurium is here, with dark velvet leaves marked in geometrical patterns as if with gold, and the Ixora, a cluster of bright orange flowers whose name was derived from that of an East Indian divinity.

Most interesting, perhaps, is the pitcher plant, called Nepenthes, because a drug, nepenthe, is distilled from its juices. This is a marvelously queer creation, the pitchers hanging on green strings a foot long from the branches, each pitcher as beautifully-shaped as an oriental vase, with a lid like the lid of a syrup stand hinged at the top. This plant dreads the cold and does not do well even in the outer showrooms.

Great quantities of terrestrial orchids are here—stiff, uncompromising, graceless stems from which it is hard to realize such ethereal blossoms can burst. They are from Brazil, Colombia, Panama, Africa and India, each getting ready to flower and be set forth for the world to see.

There are three varieties of ornamental rubber trees, some with white and green variegated leaves; potted specimens of the "Jerusalem cherry," in three colors on the same plant—yellow, purple and red—which interesting and familiar little plant is nothing but a solanum, like the pepper, tomato and potato, its little red "cherries" merely dwarf red peppers.

A WALL OF FERNS.

Out in the large showrooms, where the atmosphere is only semi-tropical, it is delightful to see the luxuriant growths in flower, some in rich, damp earth surrounded by fern-grown rocks, some in pools, and some up in the air. One wall is a bank of ferns from floor to ceiling, the moss in which they grow being held by wire mesh.

Intermingled with their delicate loveliness are bright-hued flowers—the Impatiens, of a clear cerise color, belonging to the lady-slipper connection, and a variety of Anthurium too exquisite to imagine—a pale pink saucer-like leaf with a pistil like that of a calla lily. In front of the mossy wall stand huge Caladium, or elephants' ears, measuring from three to four feet in length, on thick stems which gleam like silver. At the edge of the bed is a little South African plant called Torenia, the flowers like tiny faces, lavender in color, spotted with purple and yellow.

On the opposite side stands a slender Abutilon, or flowering maple, its pendant blossoms a shower of pale gold bells. In clusters like holly berries, and even more vividly scarlet, is another Solanium, the Ravinia humilis, 547 pairs of imported scissors that were made to sell for a great deal more than 35c. Some few for a little less than double—and the others ranging on up to three times this price.

There are 17 different styles—5 of them are shown in the accompanying illustration. There are staple styles with both pointed and with rounded end. There are buttonhole scissors, embroidery scissors, and the popular "Stork" scissors.

They're all made of a fine quality steel that will hold an edge longer than the ordinary kind of scissors.

Fur trimmed hats at $7.50!

One is so apt to let price influence them in forming a mind picture of hats that it will be almost impossible for the readers of The Times this morning to imagine these hats as smart and as attractive as they really are.

After you've finished reading this advertisement just close your eyes and picture hats—both turbans and large shapes—of fine silk velvet with trimmings of skunk, beaver, opossum, kolinsky and ermine. Then picture others with novelty feathtrs. Forget all about the fact that they're priced but $7.50, for they have little or nothing in common with hats that usually bear this price. Would you ever dream of buying garments like those in the picture at 39c, 79c and $1.09?

The opportunity is yours only because Jacoby's has become in Los Angeles headquarters for Marcella undermuslins. Yours because the Marcella factory has made a great price concession for the further popularizing of their undermuslins.

The material in Marcella garments, you know, is cut on the bias—they fit on the hips, give a flare to the skirt and fit perfectly.

New Undermuslins!

The Undermuslin store on the 2nd floor has just received some new flesh colored gowns of batiste with yoke finished with smocking in white, pink or a light blue combined with embroidering. Then, too, there are some very pretty gowns of crepe in flesh color with blue patternings and finished with hemstitching and a neat Picot edging.

We're making an unusual showing of envelope chemise and gowns of crepe de chine in flesh and white at $1.95 to $5. 2nd floor—Jacoby's.

Lily is Foot Across.

which makes a frequent little border plant.

A tree fern lifts its fronds over one like a canopy of rare lace, a golden-brown wool growing upon its trunk like the velvet on a deer's horns. A bird's nest fern uncurls fronds which are smooth and shining as banana blades, and maidenhair fern of rare luxuriance adds its delicate, dripping green embroidery.

Along one entire side of the main exhibit room is the display of orchids in bloom, some giving off a peculiarly delicate and penetrating fragrance. The India orchids bloom with their small golden-brown flowers strung on long strings of stem. The Mexican, nearby, hangs like white and pale-gold spiders with curling legs and arms. The Brazilian orchids are most lovely and large, of clear, transparent lavender with tongues of purple touched with gold. This variety retails at a dollar and a half a flower, and a single plant bears as many as six blooms.

AFRICAN CANDLE PLANT.

Another hanging plant is the odd candleplant, which comes from South Africa. Its slender stems are two yards in length, with small, velvety, leaves set in twos along them at intervals of three inches. At the end is the blossom, like a tiny white candle with a blackened wick.

The Croton is here, a stiff shrub with long, green leaves ribbed with yellow or crimson. The coffee tree and the rarer varieties of pineapple plant are also to be seen. Among the tall ferns stands the Strelitzia, the bird of paradise, or bird's tongue, flower, on a tall brown stalk—a brilliant thing in orange and deep blue, like the crest of a tropical bird.

One of the loveliest of the climbing plants is the Clerodendron, which, in all its many varieties, is known as the glory-tree. Its leafage is thick and beautiful, the blossoms appearing in abundant clusters, not unlike hop flowers in shape, the white sepals just opening to reveal scarlet velvet blossoms like drops of blood.

There are many Gloxinias, with their velvety bells of purple edged with lavender and white, and many of the small Caladium, or elephants' ears, with exquisite variegations — white with red veins, red with green veins, green with white veins, all as lovely as flowers. Then there are gladioli of pinkish-orange tint, begonias of white, pink, canary, tango, maroon and saffron, fringed and plain, hydrangeas, and beautiful Japanese lilies of pink or lavender with crimson velvet dots on their curving petals. There are tropical, night-blooming water lilies of bright, rich pink color and rare fragrance, which a cloudy morning induces to remain open, and tall begonias with flower clusters in pink or scarlet heavy as bunches of grapes.

Outside this glass-enclosed fairyland more and hardier flowers are massed. Gorgeous fuchsias are here, and asters of every shade—blue, pinks, lavender and white—banked against the greenhouses, while in the lakes between bloom, the water lilies in yellow, pink, white and blue, the rarer tropical ones standing up on stems a foot and a half high, the commoner varieties floating on the surface of the warm, sunlit water. In all, our botanical garden in Eastlake Park is a just occasion of pride as well as pleasure.

RECKLESS SPEED CAUSES ACCIDENT.

DRIVER OF NEW CAR SERIOUSLY INJURED AND OTHERS THROWN TO STREET.

One person was severely injured and a limousine and a high-powered automobile wrecked, at Vernon and Vermont avenues early yesterday afternoon when the machines collided. George T. Benkert, who was cut about the head and badly bruised on the body, was removed to his home, No. 1803 West Fiftieth street.

Mr. and Mrs. William Craig, No. 529 Pacific avenue, Long Beach, came to the city to visit the automobile show and were driving east on Vernon avenue in their limousine when Mr. Benkert, according to the police report, approached, at an estimated speed of forty miles an hour, south on Vermont avenue. Mr. Craig attempted to cross in time to avert the collision, but Mr. Benkert, in a new Cadillac, crashed into them.

The machines were wrecked and the occupants of both cars hurled into the street. Mr. Benkert was semiconscious when spectators reached his side, but Mr. and Mrs. Craig, aside from a few abrasions, were unhurt. Mr. Benkert was removed in another automobile and Mr. and Mrs. Craig returned to Long Beach in the car of a friend.

Patrolman Cost of the University Police Station, after an investigation, reported that Mr. Benkert was responsible for the accident. He said the man, according to spectators, was driving at reckless speed. Mr. Benkert's car was tagged with a license number issued to him for another machine several years ago, according to the police. He had owned the new automobile less than a week.

TODAY'S PARK CONCERTS.

In Exposition Park the following programme will be given this afternoon, beginning at 2 o'clock: (1) "Exposition March" (Marsales,) (2) "Ange d'Amour Valse" (Waldteufel,) (3) Jung Werner's parting song (Nessler,) cornet solo by B. J. Teazle; (4) second Hungarian rhapsody (Liszt,) (5) "Coronation March" (Meyerbeer,) (6) "Cocoanut Dance" (Herrman, (7) "Merry Wives of Windsor Overture" (Nicolai,) (8) "International Congress" (grand fantasie on airs of all nations) (Sousa.)

Two recitals will be given at Westlake today by a vocal and instrumental quartette of southern negroes. Ragtime songs, standard classics and old plantation favorites will be rendered. The first recital will begin at 2:30 o'clock p.m., on the large lawn before the pavilion; the second at 7:45 p.m., on the lake, with a setting of Chinese lanterns on the boats.

Gregory's Royal Marine Band will give a concert in Eastlake Park this afternoon. The programme will include the overture from "William Tell," selections from "Rigoletto," Till's serenade and a vocal solo by Mme. Nordi.

There will be a band concert at Hollenbeck Park this afternoon at 2:45, and Prof. Perkins will give an exhibition high dive from an elevation of 100 feet during the afternoon with fire dive in the evening.

PIONEER GONE BEFORE.

Michael Sanders, highly esteemed and long a resident of this city, passed away last Thursday after a lingering illness at his home, No. 2628 North Sichel street. He was 73 years old. He was formerly actively engaged in the mercantile business here and was the owner of valuable business property. He was closely identified with religious work. He built and was one of the principal supporters of the Church of Christ, Sichel and Altura streets, where funeral services will be conducted tomorrow.

IN GOOD STANDING.
Vice-President Marshall got his name in the paper the other day. He called on the President and told Mr. Wilson that the people approve his administration of foreign affairs. Which do you think Mr. Wilson likes best—Mr. Marshall or W. J. Bryan?

SPECIAL PRIVILEGES.
A member of the State Assembly and the wife of a special policeman have both been arrested at Berkeley for tearing down notices of the health department which placed their houses in quarantine. Open violation of the law is a mighty bad example for a public office-holder to set.

PUBLIC TASTE TO BLAME?
We notice that some attention is being paid to the freedom of a few local cafes, and it is stated that the city is determined not to permit improprieties merely because there are thousands of tourists in Los Angeles who might be glad to find entertainment here that was less modest than they could enjoy at home. Officials should be careful about going too far with this. Some of the purity squad might drop in on a Main street theater and receive a genuine shock. Of course, the patrons of such things must be getting what they want or they wouldn't go after it.

IRREGULARITIES COUNT.
A professor of philosophy at the University of Virginia has decided that a man's religion depends on his ancest.. and surroundings. There are two reasons why we do not care about this view. One of them is that it is the business of philosophy to arrange evidence without drawing conclusions and, if it takes any initiative on its own responsibility, its work must be so purely creative as to afford new evidence. Merely drawing a conclusion closes the case and limits the office of philosophy, which is to preserve an open mind. Our second objection is that religious leaders are the ones who break completely from their mental set to take a new and an untried road which thousands follow after them.

LEAVE IT TO WILLIE.
A momentous question is still waiting for the owner to answer, and on that answer rests, perhaps, the fate of the civilized world. The ears of all nations are pressed to the ground to catch the first faint vibration that will indicate which way the cat is going to jump out of the frying pan into the fire, or from the edge of the pit back to a place of safety. And the question, the answer to which still trembles in the balance, is this: Will W. J. Bryan cross the pond and at one masterly stroke end the disastrous war in Europe? Is not Willie noted for his masterly strokes? If you doubt it you may go to Mexico. You will soon be convinced. And why shouldn't he be just as successful in Europe? All statesmen have had to work up from small beginnings.

NO CHINESE WALL.
J. P. Morgan lives in New York when he is not in England, and his business is to make money by lending it. Sometimes Mr. Morgan makes money by having other people lend it. He is at present enjoying a fit of unbounded generosity and is greatly pained that the story has gone forth that none but Morgan banks would be allowed to participate in the solicited half-billion-dollar loan to the allies. On the contrary, Mr. Morgan is anxious that the largest number of banks possible shall share this glory and privilege. When it comes to sending this much money abroad, there is nothing unselfish in Mr. Morgan's make-up. He wouldn't even care if widows and orphans brought in their contribution boxes. We imagine, however, that Mr. Morgan and his people will reserve the right to make all the conditions of the loan, considering it quite enough honor to the public to be allowed to subscribe.

DIPLOMATIC TRICKERY.
The position of the United States is that the duties and rights of neutrals guaranteed by treaties and by international law cannot be taken away by the appearance of a new weapon or the exigencies of new conditions created by that weapon.

In the old days of maritime warfare there was not a privateersman but would have thought himself disgraced had he sunk unresisting merchant ships with all hands on board. The submarine gave no more rights to a belligerent than they had before, and the destruction of merchant vessels, neutral or belligerent, without warning, or without providing for the safety of noncombatants, had no more justification than would the discovery of a new kind of poison justify poisoning wells, or any other savagery proscribed by all civilized nations.

Nor did the fact that submarines made absolute blockade of a harbor impossible warrant a transfer of the right of blockade to the high seas, 50 or 500 miles from land.

Thus far neither Germany nor England has given the United States any substantial satisfaction or anything but unkept promises for the future for outrages upon our rights. England has been a more ingenious "Slippery Dick" than her foe. For instance, she has embargoed the exportation of Germany's dyes from Rotterdam to America, while she permits such exportations to her own factories. The result, of course, is that English mills can produce colored textile fabrics which American mills cannot produce.

MEXICO—CARRANZA—WHAT?
Carranza having refused to agree to a conference of all the contending elements with a view of restoring peace and order in Mexico, the representatives of Brazil, Chile, Argentina, Bolivia, Uruguay, Guatemala and the United States have concluded that the next best course will be for the seven powers to extend formal recognition to some government in Mexico, and, on October 9, a conference will be held by them in Washington for that purpose.

The conditions upon which such recognition will be based, as stated by the members of the conference, are that the government recognized as the government de facto shall demonstrate that it possesses "the material and moral capacity necessary to protect the lives and property of nationals and foreigners."

That is rather a large order for either Carranza, Villa, Obregon or Zapata to fill. The "governments" of both Carranza and Villa have each a very intermittent and uncertain "material capacity" to protect either foreigners or Mexicans, and apparently no "moral capacity" whatever to do so. The active forces of each contestant for power seem to be an aggregation of bandits, the Alpha and Omega of whose purposes are to rob somebody, Americans preferred, but loot from Mexicans of the opposite faction is deemed not altogether unacceptable.

It is said that at the conference on October 9 it will not be required that the seven conferees shall agree upon which government is to be recognized as the government possessing the necessary "material and moral capacity" to entitle it to recognition, but each of the six Latin-American nations, as well as the United States, will be at liberty to select for itself which government it will recognize and what will be the terms of such recognition.

While it is probable that all of the seven powers would agree upon the government that should be recognized, yet such agreement might not be made, and then the situation would be an exceedingly awkward one. Suppose Brazil and Argentina should recognize Carranza, and Chile and Bolivia should recognize Villa, and Uruguay should recognize Obregon, and Guatemala should recognize Zapata, and President Wilson should find it to his inclination and to the interest of the United States to cease his "watchful waiting" policy—a colossal blunder, fraught with so much loss of American life and American property—and recognize either of the four or some new bandit hitherto unnamed.

Probably, under all the circumstances, since a peaceful conference and determination seem impossible, it may be best to recognize somebody as President of Mexico. Such recognition will enable whoever receives it to obtain money, arms, munitions and supplies sufficient to crush those opposed to him and maintain a government which would have the legal right to adjust the claims of foreigners against Mexico for property destroyed and lives taken, and pay them, at least in Mexican bonds.

Since the determination of the Pan-American delegates and the United States representative to hold a conference on October 9 to consider what action to take with respect to Mexico there have been changes in the situation, some of which are not altogether favorable to an agreement of peace. Not the least of these is the series of assaults upon American soldiers which have been made across the Rio Grande and along the Texan border by Mexican troops. It is not known which faction is responsible for these assaults, but it is suspected by many that they are authorized by Carranza, and that his purpose is to strengthen his position by causing the United States to invade Mexico and then concentrating Mexican sentiment against the United States.

The best and most friendly advice that The Times can give to all the Mexican factions is to say, with Shakespeare: "We charge you, in the name of God, take heed how you awake our sleeping sword of war." For if Gen. Funston, who is master of the situation, finds it necessary to cross the Rio Grande with his force he will be followed by an army that will never stop until it enters the City of Mexico and dictates to all factions a government of order and law from the halls of the Montezumas.

STRAW OR GRAIN?
Among the uninitiated an erroneous impression is abroad that irrigation is simply running a furrow or digging a basin and slopping on the water. Anyone who supposes that this is the sum and substance of growing crops in the semi-arid West by means of irrigation ought to read the masterly address on the subject delivered by Prof. Bowers before the Irrigation Congress in Sacramento.

Some of our established orchardists and all of our new settlers who are anxious to make a record as western farmers or fruit-growers can glean valuable facts vital to their enterprise from the professor's speech.

On the proper application of the water on any irrigated piece of land may depend the difference between profit and loss. A common mistake, where water is plentiful, is to over-irrigate. "You can't give 'em too much," is a common remark. This is true if you prefer growing straw to grain, or forcing wood or twigs or foliage at the expense of fruit and are willing to pay unnecessary water bills.

There is in reality no undertaking that pays better for a close attention to detail than that of irrigating.

Farmers all over the United States are making their business every year more of an exact science and less of a hazardous, hit-or-miss expenditure of labor. Where irrigation plays the first part in crop culture, the need for intelligent observation is especially necessary. Many an acre of irrigated land has left the owner in debt, when it should have netted him handsome profits, because the water was not applied scientifically at the right time or in properly regulated quantities.

Not only the nature of the soil, but the habits of the plants ought to be studied by every up-to-date farmer on irrigated farms in Western America. The amount of water required for one crop in one particular sort of soil may be too little or too much for the same plant grown on different land, or for a different plant grown on the same soil. A study of all these details is vital if the agriculturist hopes to get out of the land all that the land is capable of producing. Too little water may starve the plant life, and too much may leach some parts of the soil and coagulate others.

Excellent results, it is true, have been obtained from good land in California, even when the water was applied only according to the whims or fancy of the owner, with no regard for soil values or the number of gallons absorbed by a cubic yard of the dirt, or the drinking habits of the plants he was raising. But in such cases far better results would have followed the application of the water on scientific principles. Moreover, land improperly irrigated for a number of years, though the first profits are large, is eventually impoverished, while, with proper irrigation and fertility, it may be conserved indefinitely.

Those who prefer growing grain to straw will pay attention to the science of irrigation, and so keep their bank balances growing and preserve the fertility of their farms.

PERIL OF JAPANESE COMPETITION
Japan's industrial potency is so great, and her ability to develop her resources so marked, that her competition with us in the markets of the world is a real and increasing peril to our commerce, pending the restoration of our tariff to a protective basis. In a country well equipped with the best of modern machinery, and where the wages range from 26 cents a day of eleven hours for skilled males, and 8 to 15 cents a day of eleven hours for female operatives, a country with abundant natural resources of coal and water power, and with a bold and well-matured design upon China's great coal and iron resources, a country whose merchant marine engaged in foreign trade is ten times that of the United States, and whose ships, manned by low-paid sailors and officers, can sail through the Panama Canal and deliver their cargoes to American and European ports at freight rates one-third to one-half the rate which the ships of the United States and other countries must exact, a country of unbounded energy, skill and business capacity, a country with the densest population in the world, a country whose area of 147,655 square miles could be contained in the single State of California, with 11,000 square miles to spare, a country whose population is nearly twenty-five times that of California, a country whose workpeople are fed and lodged at one-twentieth the cost of feeding and lodging American workers; in such a country, there is a menace to the labor and industry of our own land, unless we have a high tariff wall.

THE GERMAN BRITISH FIRST LORD.
Prince Louis of Battenburg, First Sea Lord of the British Admiralty when the war broke out, who resigned under rather painful circumstances three months later, is gradually regaining his position in the British hearts. Time is justifying him to the hilt.

It will be remembered that his German extraction was brought before the public by a great English newspaper, which imputed much possible treachery, and that, as a consequence, he resigned the command of the Admiralty to the hands of the veteran Lord Fisher.

As a matter of fact, Prince Louis is an Austrian by birth and became a naturalized Englishman forty-seven years ago, after Austria's defeat by Prussia at Konig-gratz. Two of his sons are even now fighting in France on the side of the allies.

Winston Churchill, then First Civil Lord of the Admiralty, was given much credit at the time for the fact that the whole of the British navy was successfully mobilized several days before war broke out, under the guise of naval maneuvers, which enabled Great Britain to bottle up the German navy in Kiel and retain command of the seas. Churchill has since been retired to a minor position, owing to a conflict with Lord Fisher, and he has now publicly confessed, in an effort to refute charges of civilian interference with the naval projects, that Prince Louis, and Prince Louis only, was responsible for that masterly preparedness.

The case is interesting to the United States, because in time of war for this country we should inevitably discover that many of our responsible positions were held by naturalized foreigners. If that fact, and that only, is to be held against them and presage their public humiliation, things are going to be hideously chaotic for us. That nationality is a strong factor cannot be denied, and in the case of Prince Louis, the fact that he actually originated in the enemy country may well have aroused suspicions, especially in view of the known law of Germany which enables a man to become naturalized in another country, secretly maintaining his allegiance to the Fatherland. But a man must be judged by his deeds, on his character, on his record, not on his nationality, if anything like a consistent policy is to be maintained. There is a strong reaction of feeling on behalf of Prince Louis of Battenburg in England just now, and some regrets that he was not allowed to carry through his policies and reap the benefit of his undoubtedly brilliant foresight. The more so that troubles ensued with fearful promptitude at the Admiralty directly he had been retired. It would seem that if a country thought well enough of a man to give him what amounts to the most important appointment for British national interests, it should think well enough of him to remain loyal. Otherwise the complications which will inevitably ensue, should this country find herself in a like predicament, is too terrible to contemplate. Choose your man with care, then trust him. Otherwise, confusion worse confounded.

RIPPLING RHYMES.
LOSING GROUND.

Old Booze is slipping slowly; some day his graft unholy will fizzle or burst; then all of us will totter to hydrants for the water to slake our raging thirst. Old Booze his grip is losing, for workingmen are choosing to leave the suds alone; long years of earnest thinking has shown them how the drinking good men has overthrown. Not sentimental speaking, not lurid platform shrieking, has brought this thing about; not irony or scoffing, not frantic John B. Goughing, has put Old Booze to rout. An age of competition won't stand for the condition that Barleycorn entails; the world a weary stage is for one who blows his wages to open kegs of nails. Employers plead no longer with one whose breath is stronger than is a gas exhaust; they say, "You're quite too frisky; you're touching up the whisky, and so your job you've lost." No sentiment is wasted; if they suspect he's tasted a pannikin of beer, they fire him through the transom, his luck is also-ransome, he's in the street named Queer. So men of sense are quitting the touching up and hitting of all the drinks that foam; they drink from babbling brooklets, and have their savings booklets, and happy kids at home. WALT MASON.

THE BORROWER.
BY EUGENE BROWN.

"Howdy, John! Say, I want to use $5000 today."

"Don't mention it," interrupted the banker, for it was he. "Glad to accommodate you. Here, Alex. Give him $5000. How do you want it, small bills or large?"

"You might give it to me in one-spots," said I, "so that I can have a bundle like Mr. Wad."

"Can't spare all ones; better make it fives," replied the banker.

"All right, so long as they'll take it at the harness shop," assented I, pleasantly.

"By the way," resumed the banker, "what are you leaving for collateral?"

"Well," said I, "if you insist on it, I thought of giving you my note."

"Thank you very much," replied the financier, with a hint of sarcasm. "Can you spare it?"

"Oh, yes," answered I. "I have given several of them already."

"Yes?" exclaimed the banker. "The parties still have them, I suppose?"

Sure," assented I. "They are keeping 'em for me. I don't want to carry any valuable papers while the hold-up men are working."

"Your note is all right with me, and I'm very much obliged for your offer," resumed the banker. "But every now and then a crazy bank examiner butts in and paws over our securities. If he knew I was lending money on that pink necktie of yours he might make a roar. I'll tell you what you better do. You get Andy Carnegie and Pierpont Morgan to indorse your note. Then bring it to me with a first mortgage on your house and an assignment of your life insurance. After that if you leave your diamonds here and deed your harbor property to the bank we may be able to arrange to let you have the money in installments of $1000 a month."

"Great Scott!" exclaimed I with some peevishness, "I might earn the money in the time it takes to do all that."

"Earn the money?" repeated the financier, in amazement. "How could you earn it?"

"Shaking dice," replied I savagely. "I tell you what I'll do. I'll just roll you the bones now for the whole business."

"Nothing doing," replied the banker, shortly. "You take your note down to the postoffice and try to trade it for a two-cent stamp. Then see what happens."

As a professional money loaner I have often wondered what would happen if all of a sudden all borrowing ceased. As a confirmed borrower I have often wondered what would be the result if the loaning of money were at an instant end. Were there no borrowers at all, the banks themselves would soon be out of business. It is the borrower who furnishes the dividends for the financier. Were there no lenders, affairs of all nature would languish. There would be less of home building, business expansion and trade enterprise.

Consequently it behooves both borrower and lender to get together on the most intimate and friendly terms possible. Each is essential to the well-being of the other.

The wise guy, however, will avoid overtraining his borrowing capacity. This willingness to assume the responsibility of paying interest on any and all sums obtainable amounts to a positive failing with many men. There is nothing in it. It is like robbing the grave to pay the undertaker.

Whole communities are infected with the virus. If there doesn't happen to be money enough in the treasury to buy a new fire engine or put a new roof on the City Hall a bond issue is promptly and joyously ratified. Taking the elements of interest, discount and term of bonds into consideration the average California city of today is paying—or will pay—about $2.40 for what could be bought for $1 in cash.

While a municipal debt is held by many to be a virtue, the tendency is to work it to excess. It is necessary to establish constitutional limitations in order to protect communities from themselves. The theory seems to be wrong somewhere. Using other people's money to pay their obligations and with an infinite capacity for assessment it would seem that the government and the municipality should, of all things on earth, be able to pay cash for all their needs. It would certainly appear as bad business judgment for a city to be paying out millions for interest on its debt. Nevertheless the community goes merrily on piling up obligation on obligation under the fatuous and specious hypothesis that the burden is being shifted to a future generation.

Let "fatuous and specious hypothesis" soak in for a few minutes.

Why do we stand for it?

If the town is not in position to pay the full price for what it wants it is certainly as well qualified as the individual to buy on the installment plan. It isn't always good policy to pay $500,000 a year interest simply because one can get trusted for something costing $10,000,000. Neither is it always the part of wisdom to saddle the next generation with the heaviest possible burden of debt.

Anyhow, voters should pause long enough to count ten before rushing off a new issue of a few millions of bonds to establish municipal manicure parlors or to build a barbwire fence around the Pacific Ocean.

Speaking of borrowing money, the processes of floating the proposed billion-dollar loan for the allies will be watched with interest. Although Wall street will have the prestige of making the loan, the smaller fry of our citizenship will furnish the money and the bulk of it will doubtless come from former subjects of England and France. The wealthy Italians of the Coast have been heavy subscribers to the war loan of their old home government. They were virtually assessed the amounts the government believed they should subscribe, and the payments were made through their Consul at San Francisco. Several hundreds of thousands of dollars were taken out of Los Angeles in this way. But if the bonds prove good as gold the subscribers will do mighty well on the investment. If the bonds are redeemed in par at their maturity they will net the holder over 12 per cent. on the subscription—the profit being in the difference between a normal and abnormal rate of exchange.

Strange to say, the American dollar is worth more today than it really is.

About the only redeeming feature to American participation in the war loans is the fact that the bulk of the money still remains in this country, and as great a portion of it is paid for the stores and supplies of noncombatants as is for munitions of war.

"Lend me $2 till next pay day."

Soundful Music.

[Cleveland Plain Dealer:] "Thump-rattlety-bang!" went the piano.

"What are you trying to play, Jane?" called out her father from the next room.

"It's an exercise from my new instruction book, 'First Steps in Music,'" she answered.

"Well, I knew you were playing with your feet," he said, grimly; "but don't step so heavily on the keys—it disturbs my thoughts."

BATTLE SLEEP.

Somewhere, O sun, some corner there must be
 Thou visitest where down the strand
Quietly, still, the waves go out to sea
 From the green fringes of a pastoral land.

Deep in the orchard bloom the red-roofs stand,
 The brown sheep graze along the bay,
And through the apple boughs above the
 The bees' hum sounds no fainter than the spray.

There through uncounted hours declines
  the day
 To the low arch of twilight's close,
And, just as night about the moon grows
  gray,
 One sail leans westward to the fading rose.

Giver of dreams, O thou with scatheless wing
 Forever moving through the fiery hail,
To flame-seared lids the cooling vision bring,
 And let some soul go seaward with that sail!

TABLE A THRONE IN DRUG COURT.

"QUEEN" SOUGHT AS MEMBER OF AUTO THIEVES' GANG.

Four Users of Dream Stuff, Said to be Much-wanted Robbers, Recover Sanity in Jail—One Tells of Teapot Crown, Magnificent Castles and Visions of Empire.

Weaving wonderful dreams of a magnificent castle and of making of the kitchen table and chair a throne for their queen, Lucile Murphy, four drug users, now in the City Jail, are beginning to see the folly of their visions. They are J. D. Higgins, Jack Gianello, George Nuson and Cecil Murray, who told the story. Lucile Murphy escaped and is a fugitive.

The castle plan originated with the woman, who was always of a roving disposition. The drug, which they acquired first by robbing a physician on the streets at night and rifling his medicine case, produced the wonderful vision in the mind of Lucile Murphy. Later, when a Chinese place was raided and a quantity of opium procured, the plan was broached to the others, during a spree.

Immediately the four men, according to Cecil Murray, acquiesced in the plan and cleared the kitchen table for a throne in their bungalow at No. 2008 Bonita street. A chair was placed on the table for a seat for her imperial highness. Around the table and across the chair quilts were spread. The "queen" used a teapot for a crown.

Here Queen Lucile reigned supreme until the police swooped down and broke up the revelry. She measured to each of her subjects his portion of morphine and appointed a prime minister and heads to numerous high offices of state.

The European situation was discussed with grave earnestness and the destinies of the great powers were measured. According to Murray, it was Queen Lucile's ambition to rule the world, and often long arguments were held, in which the weaknesses and the strong points of each power were reviewed.

While they were dreaming these wonderful dreams of world-conquest for their youthful "queen" and prostrating themselves before her, none saw the comic side of the situation. The table throne and the teapot crown were golden talismans to be handled with the utmost care. Their discussions on mighty subjects never brought forth a smile from the participants. It was all, according to Murray, a very real affair, as the drug had robbed them of their reason.

But now, as the vision of the splendid castle dies away through being deprived of the drug, the men are beginning to see the absurdity of their actions. Whether Lucile Murphy still dreams her far-fetched dreams cannot be told.

The police declare that in arresting the four men they not only jailed four drug users, but also captured the larger part of one of the worst gangs of auto bandits in the city. The crimes of this gang are declared many and varied. Detectives Wedge and Taylor made the arrest.

SAN FRANCISCO IN THE NUDE

BY ALMA WHITAKER.

THE ordinary middle class observer, like myself, might consider it was a bit overdone. But the artistic cultured folk, the facetious masculine, and San Francisco, are satisfied that it is all right.

The cultured artistic coterie gaze upon the extensive and perpetual nudities with lofty and idealic appreciation. Art, they say, justifies everything. And in no better way could it justify itself. They stand before the statues in the grounds of the exposition, before the pictures in the galleries, yea, and before les autres in the Zone, and talk of svelte lines and immaculate contour, of fine shades of light, of beautiful dimpled knees, of exquisite poses, of inimitable action, of strength and greatness. They wear a beatified expression of face, modulate their voices to a nice soulful rhythm nicely combined with a detached manner of common sense.

The facetious masculine observer digs his companion in the ribs, chuckles in his throat, fidgets with his feet, looks slyly around at any females present and never fails to get off some sort of a joke, good, bad or indifferent.

And San Francisco smiles comfortably. It collectively shrugs its shoulders with a grin, and closes one eye as it assures you that San Francisco has been good to the artists. A bit racy, perhaps, but, oh, well, you know, it goes.

And the lady from Iowa, accompanied by her spouse; the lady from Kansas, accompanied by her young daughters; the miner from Montana, the college boys and girls from Stanford and Berkeley, and the suburban inhabitants of the United States, wear a slightly disconcerted air as they take a hurried glance and hasten on. They become a little silent in the Fine Arts building until they come to, say, the Swedish room, when they breathe freely and all begin to talk at once. For Sweden is a chilly country and the artists have a certain sense of the fitness of things when they refrain from posing a charming model strictly undraped, in a more or less secluded glade far from home without her trunk.

Alas, traditions die hard. Of course, we know that art must have its way. That it is necessary to the cult that they should show us the human form divine au naturel, that it is necessary for our own artistic and cultured education that we should learn to gaze thereon with serene appreciation, that nakedness is the very essence of beauty and until we have learned to appreciate beauty we are sadly incomplete. But some of us will persist in feeling a little vulgarly shy.

They might have broken it upon us gently. At the exposition we get a deluge. In every nook and cranny of the grounds cool nudity meets the unaccustomed eye. In all but the strictly commercial buildings, nudity reigns supreme. And even the commercial buildings have yielded to the cult of the hour by conceding a few symbolical figures, unclad and unashamed.

And the Zone is frankly, naughtily naked.

Far be it from so plebeian a mind to criticise art. Art and realism, we are assured, go hand in hand. Clothes are evidently unreal, even in drawing-rooms, where naked ladies pose on tiger-skin lounges; even in parks where naked ladies gambol on the lawns; even at al fresco picnics, where ladies and gentlemen have discarded all vexatious drapery for the purpose of lounging against trees; even in mountain fastnesses, with prickly bushes, stinging nettles, poisoned oak and holly trees, where aristocratic maidens hie themselves for—well, goodness only knows what.

Here and there we have a reasonable modern nude, a civilized person who at least felt a bath or a swimming pool necessary to make the occasion seemly; or the privacy of a boudoir in which to reveal her ultimate charms, but for the most part the angelic faces of the models fail to coincide with the conditions under which we are permitted to intrude—and if this be realism, the lady from Kansas is justified in demanding a little common artificiality.

Personally, I was chiefly educated at French convents where we were required to take our very private bi-weekly bath in a chemise. Perhaps we girls were instinctive artists, without knowing it, when we stooped to the subterfuge of dipping our chimmy in the water for purposes of evidence and then proceeding with our bath in the usual way.

But in any case our instincts were satisfactorily curbed for the most part—and those of us who have visited the San Francisco exposition must, if they are not poignantly shocked, be feeling that our parents and guardians have been guilty of considerably unjust restraint, if this sort of thing is, after all, perfectly good form and clothes are vulgar. Our instincts should obviously have been allowed full play.

But perhaps it was time that some great institution like an international exposition, should dispel, once for all, the absurdities of modesty. Maybe, in time, the facetious male will come to feel a nudge and a wink superfluous. Maybe, in time, the joke will lose its flavor. If so, San Francisco has scooped the world in culture. No later exposition will be able to make any sort of capital out of the nude, it will be so ordinary. The present show has all the element of daring and impudence. It deliberately, naughtily, saucily shocks us, the while it assures us that it is essentially vulgar to show we are shocked. Such a complication of emotions is good for trade while it lasts. Clever San Francisco!

And, of course in the end, we all buy post cards and replicas of the nudes, just to show our cultured appreciation. We learn the artistic jargon and cultivate just the right arch to our eyebrow when less sophisticated people comment on our taste. Knowledge is power. Even the lady from Kansas will probably return to assist in the elevation of the local women's club, and loan her exposition art collection for the purpose. One can feel so very refined while explaining the exquisite symbolism of a naked gentleman on horseback, presumably returned from a hard day's ride. Culture is a satisfying thing.

PROTECTION DISTRICTS.

Hearings on Four Projects Set for Tomorrow Before the Board of Supervisors.

The Board of Supervisors will have hearings tomorrow on four proposed protection and conservation districts. All of these hearings will bear on petitions and protests.

The first of these hearings will be on the proposed Monte Vista protection district. The other projects are the Irwindale-Dalton protection district, the Verdugo storm water district, and the Pomona Valley conservation and storm water district

A meeting of the Supervisors sitting as members of the Los Angeles County Flood Control District, is also set for 11 o'clock tomorrow forenoon.

Twelve hearings on road improvement projects are also scheduled for tomorrow, and the board will consider the matter of construction and maintenance of highways by the county within the limits of incorporated cities.

DRESS UP, MEN! IT'S YOUR CUE.

We're Prospering; Get the Habit and Look It.

Invest in New Raiment and Fresh Confidence.

Whole Week is Dedicated to Sartorial Uplift.

This is "Dress Up Week."

And the title is all that it [illegible], for every male citizen of Los Angeles is expected to blossom forth in new socks, shirts, hats, shoes and neckties, not to speak of natty fall suits.

Presenting a prosperous appearance is 60 per cent. of the battle of life. Men who are prospering are more particular of their appearance—of their linen, the pressing of their clothes, their hats, their shoes and even their neckties.

Visit two cities, one prosperous and busy and the other dead or dying. You will note immediately the difference between the people of the cities under investigation. The citizens of the first will be neatly clad and fresh appearing, while the residents of the latter city will in all probability look like a crowd of refugees just returned from Mexico.

MENTAL STIMULUS.

To dress up has a psychological effect on a man. A man out of work, applying for a position in old, shabby clothes, will make his application in a hangdog manner, his lack of confidence apparent. And he stands little if any show with the manager to whom he is applying. On the other hand, the well-dressed applicant not only goes after the job with inspired confidence, but he also has 100 per cent. better chance of getting that position. Nine times out of ten the employer judges his men by their personal appearance.

The men of Los Angeles, while always neat appearing, have possibly allowed themselves to slip a bit. As always, the wives, mothers and sweethearts have looked their best, for the male part of the city has always prided itself on the beautifully-gowned women here. Depressed times or good times, there has always been sufficient money for the new dress or the new millinery creation.

However, the women of Los Angeles like to see well-dressed men just as much as the men like to have beautifully-gowned women about them. During the past months the men have refused to buy clothes for themselves, preferring to spend it on their wives. The result is almost lopsided, and it is time for the wives to demand that their husbands dress as well as they do.

This week is the appointed time for Los Angeles to come forth in all its raiment. Why, the very act of having all the men in the city buy new clothes will increase prosperity, for the money so circulated will act as a stimulus to the already rising barometer of good times.

NOW'S THE TIME.

And there never was a better time to buy clothes. Not for several years have the merchants of this city had such an excellent and assorted stock from which to choose. Incidentally, this situation is indirectly a result of the business depression of last year. Merchants with money were offered the best at less than they usually pay, with the result that not only are the stocks of better material, but they are really cheaper.

NEW FRUIT FOR THIS COUNTRY.

FEIJOA SELLOWIANA GROWING PROVES SUCCESSFUL AT SANTA MONICA.

The first ripe fruit of the Feijoa sellowiana ever gathered hereabouts was picked yesterday from the bushes planted four years ago in the Northern experimental gardens at Santa Monica. This delicious fruit, predicted as the coming fruit for all parts of California, is remarkable for both its perfume and its flavor. It is said of it that baskets or boxes that have contained ripened fruit will retain the aroma for weeks.

So rare and valuable are the seeds of this enticing fruit that should a grower be so patient as to accumulate a ton of it, the market value of the load would be $5,000,000. While the seed is worth about $2500 a pound, it is commonly sold by the gram, [illegible] per gram being the current price. The seeds are not so large as that of the common mustard.

The fragrance of the ripened fruit may be said to be an indescribable combination of banana, pineapple and strawberry.

The Feijoa was first introduced into France from Uruguay in [illegible] and the first specimens were brought to California in 1901. Experiments have demonstrated that it will do well here. It is a highly ornamental shrub with persistent foliage and large and showy flowers. Its bronze plum-shaped fruit ripens late in the fall. The skin is tough, thus insuring safe shipments long distances. The pulp is white, juicy and sweet.

TO PROTECT ANIMALS.

Welfare Commission Recommends that Society Continue Its Labors with County Aid.

That the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals should continue its work as a private enterprise, but that it should be assisted by a county appropriation of $200 a month, is the gist of the recommendations that have been made by the County Welfare Commission.

At present the county aids the society to the extent of $400 a month. When the city cut off its appropriation several employees were discharged, and because of the situation that followed the Board of Supervisors instructed the county counsel to draft an ordinance providing for the county's taking over the work of the society and placing it in the hands of a special board.

This was followed by the investigation of the County Welfare Commission and its recommendation that the society continue its work, assisted by a $300 county appropriation a month.

LIONS BORN AT ZOO.

Four lion cubs were born at [illegible] Horsley's Bostock zoo [illegible] night last. The mother is Helion, [illegible] African lioness. The cubs will be reared and trained for [illegible] work.

LAND Opening
COLORADO RIVER

The Richest Lands in the Palo Verde Valley
the Valley of the American Nile
Now Open for Settlement

NO MATTER what you may wish to raise—alfalfa, wheat, barley, cotton, onions, tomatoes, melons, grapes, berries, citrus and deciduous fruits, hogs poultry, or cattle—you CAN do well in the Palo Verde Valley, for there is no other area of equal extent in California where the soil is so uniformly rich, the climate so ideal and the water so abundant.

That is a big statement but we can verify it in every particular. There are already many settlers in the Valley whose farms are producing far beyond their fondest expectations. The water question is settled by an unlimited supply from the Colorado River through a gravity system of miles and miles of canals and ditches. The California Southern Railroad is being rushed to completion right through the heart of the Valley. Those who get in now ahead of the railroad will naturally profit most.

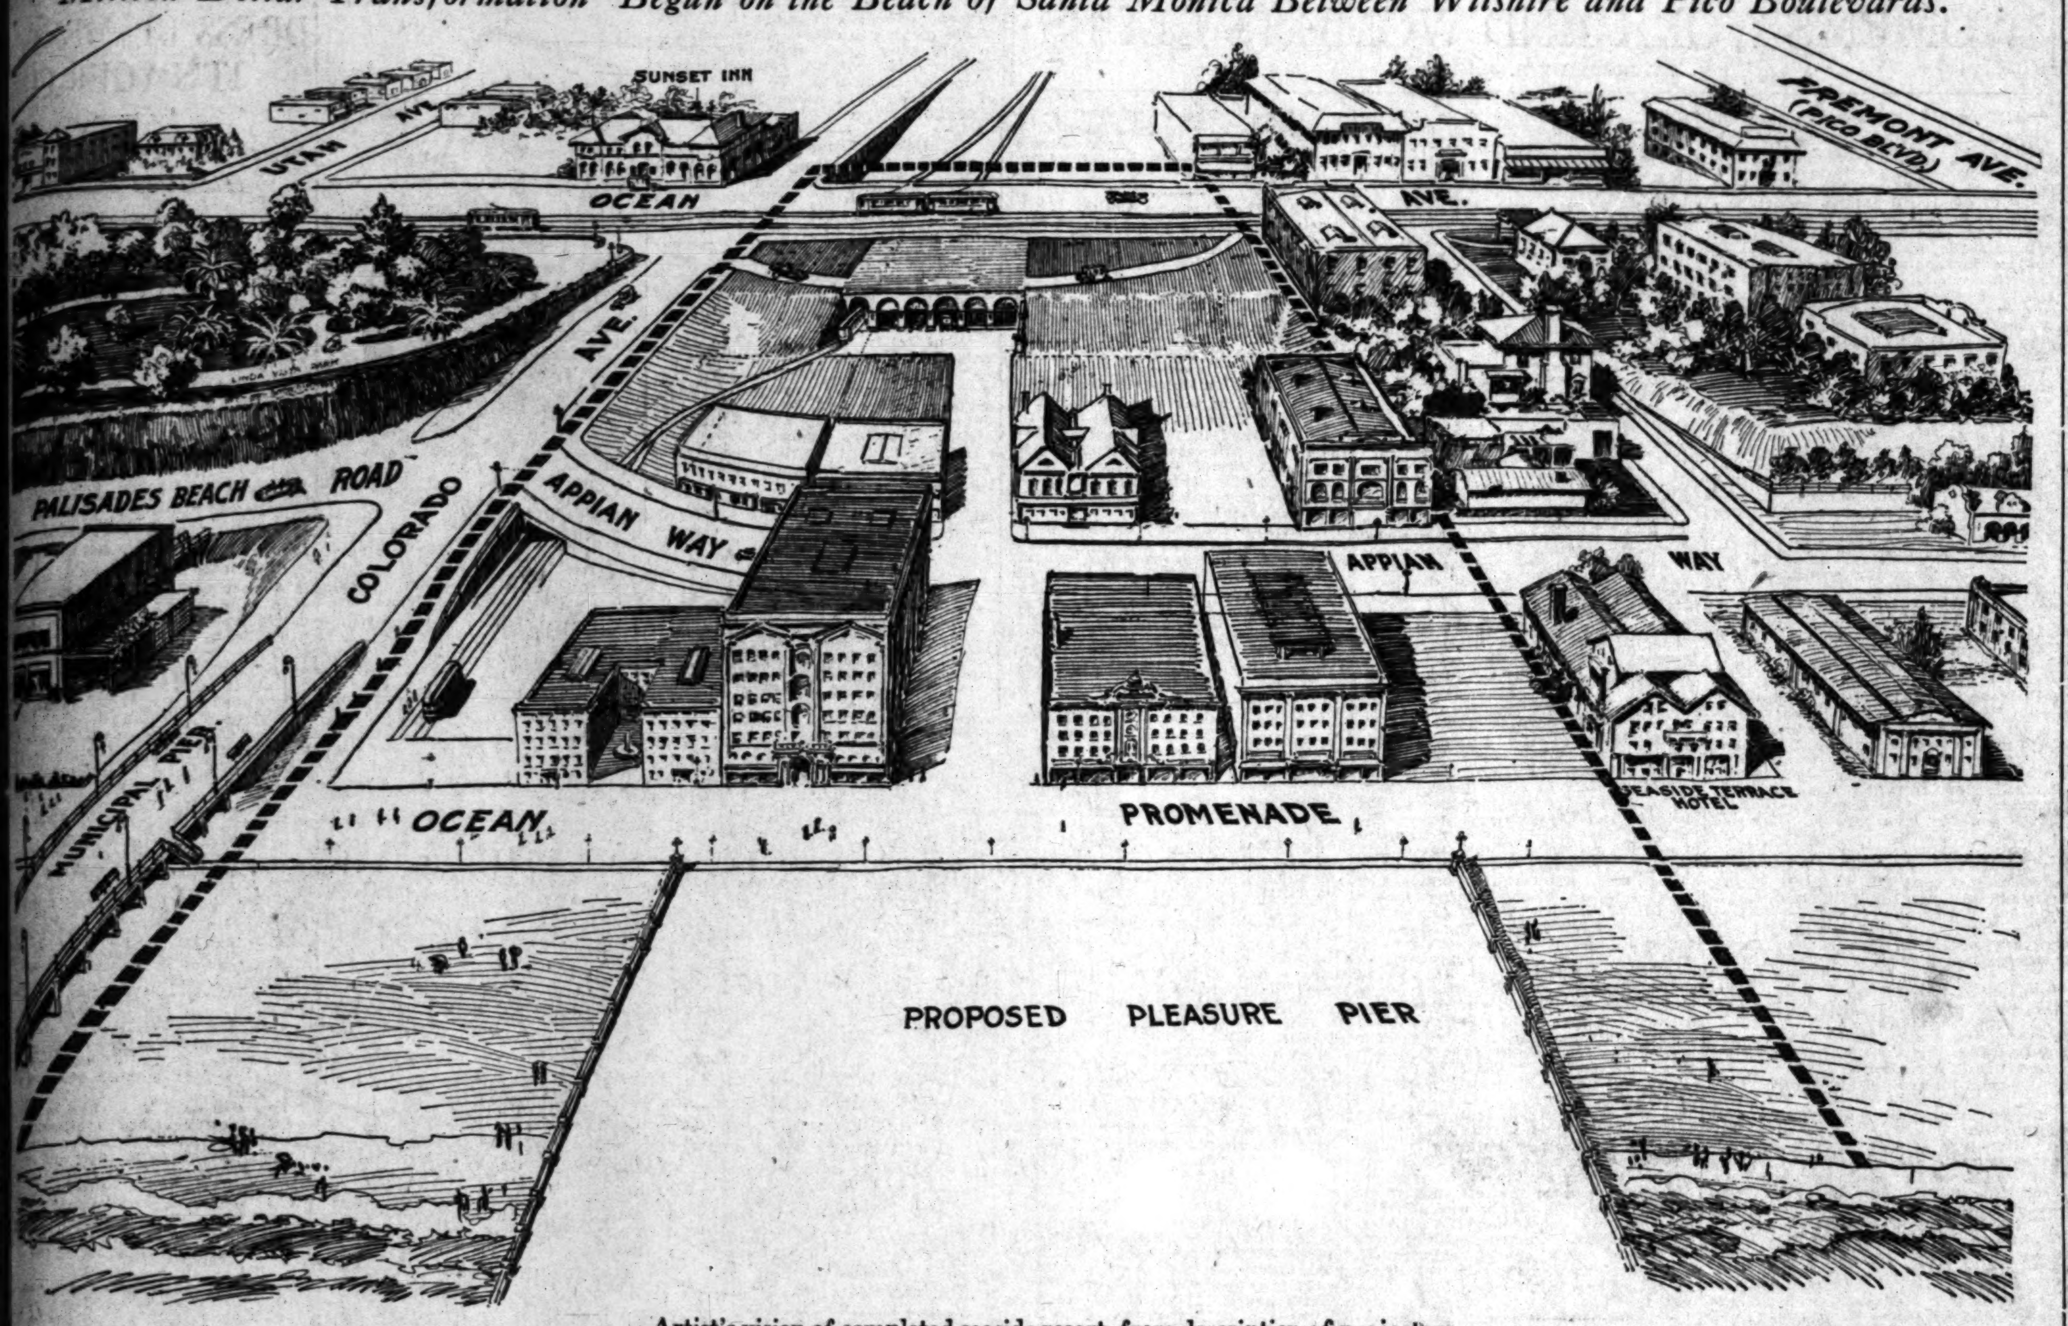
Million-Dollar Transformation Begun on the Beach of Santa Monica Between Wilshire and Pico Boulevards.



Artist's vision of completed seaside resort, from description of projectors.

sketch shows the new amusement center in the present environment of its site, which extends from the municipal pier to the Seaside Terrace Hotel, reaching back from the shore to Ocean avenue. Appian Way, bisecting the property from south to north, is now under construction. The Pacific Electric air line is pictured as coming under the Ocean-avenue viaduct almost to the surf, as is planned. The world-beating pier, which is to be a feature of the scheme, will be started in a few months, according to Mr. Benjamin and Mr. Moss, the developers. Hotels, apartment-houses, stores and concessions are sketched in at the places set aside for them in the scheme of the big undertaking. The proposed improvements are within the dotted lines, a district now in a crude state.

Coming into Her Own.

UTTING DOWN TO BUILD UP AT SANTA MONICA.

ork Begun on Grounds for High-class Beach Amusement Resort, Including Great Pier, Promenade and Other Development at Pacific Electric Air Line Terminal—Designed to be a Second Atlantic City.

RSISTENT rumors of a gigantic pleasure resort project for the North Beach district of Santa Monica, rumors based for the most part on indefinite reports of important transactions in beach frontage and on vague surmises, have been cleared by E. P. Benjamin of Hollywood, man about whose real estate operations the puzzle has principally revolved. Mr. Benjamin, heretofore reticent for reasons of his own about revealing his plans, yesterday discussed with the greatest freedom the enterprise he has in mind, near the old Arcadia Hotel site.

The reason for the removal of the secrecy on the significant North Beach news may be seen in the sudden activity that has developed on the old Santa Monica shore front. Several days ago a large force of workmen, with teams of graders, appeared on this part of the Crescent Bay beach and began to transform the entire topography of the ground lying between the Santa Monica municipal pier and Seaside Terrace, and extending back from the ocean promenade to the Ocean-avenue viaduct. All Santa Monica saw and wondered.

The revelation of what is really going on confirms certain rumors and summarily dissipates others. Mr. Benjamin and B. M. Moss, who is also a Hollywood man, and who, it develops, is associated in the project, confirm the report that the strip of North Beach front is to be made the location of a high-class amusement center. That their enterprise is carried out in co-operation with the Pacific Electric Company, as often rumored, they both deny.

WHAT WAS PURCHASED.

The purchase made by Mr. Moss and Mr. includes, according to Mr. Benjamin, that part of the Southern Pacific's old air line terminal holdings lying between Ocean avenue and the sea, with a frontage of 347 feet on and a depth of 556 feet back from the mean high tide line, the whole amounting to about five acres. The consideration is not stated.

East of Ocean avenue the Southern Pacific still retains about sixteen acres, which is now used largely as a switching yard by the Pacific Electric, having been turned over to that corporation following its absorption by the former. The Pacific Electric's present air line from Sixth and Main streets, created by the electrification of the old steam system, now passes under the Ocean-avenue viaduct to the tract acquired by the two Hollywood men.

LARGE PLANS.

Mr. Benjamin announces that the plans for the development of the former railroad property call for the raising of the ocean promenade along the holding from its present level of twenty feet to forty feet. Appian way, which three years ago was extended by Carl F. Schader northward through Vicente terrace and Seaside terrace, will be carried as a twenty-foot street on through the new shore resort to Colorado avenue and the municipal pier.

The latter improvement is of special importance, in that it will provide the missing link in an otherwise continuous shore line drive extending from the Malibu ranch to Playa del Rey. The city of Santa Monica has already determined upon paving the present Palisades beach road, which extends north from the municipal pier to Santa Monica Canyon, skirting the base of Palisades Park. North of Santa Monica Canyon to Topango Canyon the route is over the county good roads system.

At its approach to Colorado avenue the extended Appian way will pass over the air line electric railway tracks, which it is proposed to extend from Ocean avenue along the northern edge of the resort property to the ocean promenade. This will make it possible for visitors to the new amusement center to ride almost to the surf line.

From the edge of Ocean avenue the developers will build out an eighty-foot shelf of earth extending from side to side of the property, except for a gap of 140 feet in the center. The ground thus made at the higher level of the avenue will be utilized for business frontage. The gap will be filled in with an arch for the passage of electric cars, together with the first story of a structure of undetermined height which will have its second floor frontage on Ocean avenue. It is planned to use that part of the building fronting on the main level of the resort property for automobile storage purposes.

PIER PROJECTED.

Such is the outline of the plans definitely announced and which are already being carried out. From the edge of Ocean Promenade it is the expectation of the projectors to extend a reinforced concrete pleasure pier into the sea. The first unit of this structure will be 200 feet wide and 700 feet long. Eventually it is the intention to build a second unit of equal size.

Messrs. Benjamin and Moss filed incorporation papers yesterday for the Los Angeles-Santa Monica Beach Company, with a paid-up capital stock of $250,000. The incorporators were named as E. P. Benjamin, W. C. Benjamin, B. M. Moss and Eleanor K. Moss.

Concerning the financial and engineering arrangements for this pier Mr. Benjamin and his associates declare detailed announcements will soon be forthcoming. Actual work, they state, will be started before next summer, by which time all the other improvements, together with some buildings back of the Ocean Promenade, will have been completed.

No concessions save those of the better class will be permitted on the pier or in any part of the resort. The projectors declare it to be their intention to make of the resort a "second Atlantic City rather than a new Coney Island."

STRATEGIC LOCATION.

Mr. Benjamin dismissed the rumored participation of the Pacific Electric in the resort project with the brief statement, "There is nothing in it." Then he went on to explain:

"When we bought our particular piece of shore frontage we were, of course, fully sensible to the advantages we would ultimately enjoy through being at the terminus of the real air line route between Los Angeles and the west beaches. That route is but little used at this time, but that is because the railway company has not as yet felt the need of advertising it or pushing its business. We reason that the Pacific Electric will boost its air line service for all it is worth the moment it feels the time is ripe. By establishing a fine resort at the end of the line we believe we can offer the necessary inducement to hurry things along.

"We do not consider the perfection of the air line service, however valuable it will be when it comes, as essential to the success of our venture. Every car that goes from Los Angeles to the west beaches passes along our Ocean-avenue front. Every boulevard brings its automobile travel to our doors, so to speak. We are half-way between the shore ends of Wilshire and Pico boulevards. Washington, Santa Monica and National boulevards all connect with Ocean avenue. Appian way, with Ocean avenue, gives us all the north and south outlet we could possibly desire. We believe our location to be a most logical and strategic one for a really great resort.

OUTSIDE CAPITAL.

The Santa Monica project represents in a sense an investment in Southern California of a large amount of outside capital. Mr. Benjamin came to Los Angeles from New York three years ago and shortly thereafter made extensive purchases of real estate both at the beach and in this city. One of the beach holdings which he acquired at that time and still holds consists of 250 feet of Ocean Promenade frontage extending northward from the Santa Monica municipal pier and including the old power plant of the Edison company. Another was the former Santa Monica Elks' Club property at Arizona and Ocean avenues, which is now held under lease by the California Military Academy.

Mr. Benjamin is not a novice at subdivision and development operations, having been engaged in such work in the East for many years. He was the founder fifteen years ago of the town of Allenhurst, N. J., one of the best-known and most beautiful of the metropolitan suburbs on the "Jersey side" of the Hudson. Just before coming West Mr. Benjamin had served two terms as Mayor of the little city of his fathering.

Mr. Moss was formerly in the structural steel business in Des Moines and still holds extensive interests in several Iowa foundries and metal plants. He has been a resident of Hollywood about three years.

BOND IS REQUIRED.

Manager of Chauffeurs Must Pay Wife Monthly Stipend or Sureties will be Called On.

William H. Bradley, manager of chauffeurs for a taxicab concern in this city, must pay to his wife, from whom he is separated, $15 a month hereafter for her support or his bondsmen will be called upon to meet this requirement.

Some time ago Bradley agreed to pay his wife $10 a month, but there was trouble over this, and he was haled into court. In a jury trial before Judge Willis, Bradley was found guilty of nonsupport. The judge ordered him to pay $15 per month for the support of his wife. Bradley argued that he only received $75 per month and could not afford to pay more than $10.

The court was obdurate and ordered that Bradley pay the $15 per month and give a bond for six months to insure these payments, o be renewed at the expiration of that time, or else he would be sentenced to the chain gang. Bradley presented the bond within a short time.

The sole reason for The Times regularly printing more classified advertising than any other newspaper in the world is the fact that this newspaper gives its "liner" advertising patrons quicker and more satisfactory results than any other newspaper in America.

Romance.

APPEAL TO POLICE SAVES TWO FROM HARA-KIRI.

Japanese Girl's Services Bartered with Sale of Poolroom and Rebellious Miss is Locked Up—Despairing Letter Spurs Lothario to Win Her Freedom.

Mrs. Ume Maruyama, a comely little Japanese, and Ken Iwata, who wants to marry her, were saved from committing hara-kiri yesterday when the police rescued her from the home of her sister, Mrs. Hatsuyo Nakomo, No. 1031 Bartlett street. The story told by the lovers has many a thrill and the case is declared one of the strangest ever reported to the juvenile department.

Three years ago Ume Mihara, a rosy-cheeked lassie of the Flowery Kingdom, was sold by her parents to one Maruyama, a Japanese merchant of San Francisco. He had written to his native town for a wife and when Miss Mihara sent him her photograph, he fell in love with it.

Soon thereafter Maruyama sent for his "picture bride," for whom he paid her parents $750, and she came to California to be the happiest young wife in the world. The first sight of the man who was to be her husband shattered her dream and she declared she could not love him. For four months she endured him and then wrote to her sister in Los Angeles for advice as to how to get away from him.

The sister arranged to pay back the purchase price and the disappointed bride was allowed to come here. She was placed in her brother-in-law's poolroom at First and San Pedro streets, where she worked as a clerk, and her way was so charming and her smile so sweet that in a short time Nakono's poolroom was the most popular resort in that section of the city.

Business grew so rapidly that there were numerous offers made for it, and last week the brother-in-law decided to accept one of them. According to the "picture bride," he sold for $1700, with the agreement that she should continue as the clerk.

Shortly after her arrival in Los Angeles, however, the girl met Ken Iwata, a genteel-appearing young Japanese, who began at once to make love to her. It was reciprocated and she declared she was sure she could be happy with him.

When the poolroom was sold and the proposition was made that her services be included with the sale, Ume Maruyama objected and told her sister she would run away. The latter is said to have taken her home and kept her under close guard.

"I am here a prisoner and am going to commit hara-kiri unless you get me out of here," she wrote to her lover. Immediately he sought the assistance of Patrolman Draper of the Boyle Heights Police Station, and together they went to the Bartlett-street address. There they found the girl secreted in a rear room.

The captive and her captors were taken to juvenile headquarters and an investigation followed that resulted in the girl being turned over to an American minister, who promised to see that she is well cared for.

"I am going to put up the money to get her a divorce," Iwata told the police, "and then I am going to marry her. When she wrote me that she would kill herself and that we could meet each other on the other side, there was but one of two things for me to do. They were to follow her to the grave or get her out of the prison. I guess I did the best thing."

IMPRESSIVE FUNERAL.

Large Crowd of Mourners, Wealth of Flowers and Words of Praise for Late Temperance Leader.

About 1000 persons, including many of the city's representative women, attended funeral services held over the body of Mrs. Lucy S. Blanchard, former temperance leader, yesterday afternoon at the First Methodist Church, where she had been a faithful worshiper since 1883. The services were conducted by Dr. Charles Edward Locke, pastor of the church, assisted by members of the Los Angeles W.C.T.U., of which organization Mrs. Blanchard was president for twenty-three years.

The large number of mourners, the numerous beautiful floral offerings and the words of praise by Dr. Locke and others were a forceful tribute to the memory of a good woman. The interment was in Rosedale Cemetery.

"Immediately after Mrs. Blanchard came to Los Angeles in 1878 she identified herself with the temperance movement and other good works," Dr. Locke said in his funeral oration. "She felt that she had been called to make the temperance cause her life work. She was especially interested in teaching children the evils of drink. For a quarter of a century she was a great force for good in Los Angeles."

cesan consultors and "irremovable" pastors. During those twelve years, eighty new churches were built at a total cost, it was estimated yesterday, of $750,000, while more priests attended Bishop Conaty's funeral by twice than there were pastors in the diocese when he assumed the pontificals.

The following telegrams from Bishop Johnson of the Episcopal diocese of Los Angeles and Mrs. Johnson, was received yesterday by Rev. Francis J. Conaty.

"A great and good prelate, an inspiration and an example for us all has been called by God to his reward. That light perpetual may shine upon him is, with profound sympathy, the earnest prayer of his and your friends."

A telegram, as follows, was also received from Thomas J. Barrett of Worcester, Mass.:

"My deepest and tenderest sympathy to you and all other members of the family in the death of Bishop Conaty. I suffer the loss of one of my dearest and truest friends. The news of his death caused widespread sorrow. No man was ever more beloved in Worcester than Thomas J. Conaty."

FINDS HUMAN JAWBONE.

Little Dog Picks It up on North Oxford Avenue, but No Skeleton is Located.

A little bull terrier yesterday morning made a ghastly find at the rear of No. 536 North Oxford avenue when he unearthed a human jawbone. The dog was dragging it along the avenue when seen by a neighbor, who took the bone and notified the police.

An investigation was made by a patrolman, but the remainder of the skeleton could not be found. The Station and placed in the care of Property Clerk Matuskiwiz.

BEAUTY DOCTOR TELLS SECRET

Detroit Beauty Doctor Gives Sample Recipe to Darken Gray Hair and Promote Its Growth.

Miss Alice Whitney, a well-known beauty doctor of Detroit, Mich., recently gave out the following statement: "Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home, at very little cost, that will darken gray hair, promote its growth and make it soft and glossy. To a half pint of water add 1 oz. of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ oz. of glycerine. These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It is also fine to promote the growth of the hair, relieve itching and scalp disease, and is excellent for dandruff and falling hair."

TODAY'S BEAUTY SUGGESTIONS

Face powder simply covers up an unattractive complexion and leaves no lasting benefits. Those who have tried a simple spurmax face lotion find it much better, as it removes skin discolorations, such as freckles and tan, and makes the skin smooth, white and velvety. This lotion is made by dissolving four ounces of spurmax in one-half pint hot water, then adding two teaspoonfuls glycerin. This complexion beautifier does not rub off or show like powder, and gives a more refined appearance. It removes both shininess and sallowness, rapidly giving the skin a permanent healthy, youthful appearance.

An especially fine shampoo for this weather can be had at trifling expense by dissolving a teaspoonful of canthrox in a cup of hot water. Pour slowly on scalp and massage briskly. This creates a soothing, cooling lather that dissolves and removes all dandruff, excess oil and dirt. Rinsing leaves the scalp spotlessly clean, soft and pliant, while the hair takes on a glossy richness of natural color, also a fluffiness which makes it seem very much heavier than it is. After a canthrox shampoo arranging the hair is a pleasure.

Use Cocoanut Oil For Washing Hair

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, the less soap you use the better.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless,) is much better than soap or anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.

How to Keep Face Young and Attractive

The way to ward off old age is not to fear it, not to allow one's self to be oppressed by the dread of advancing years. Use only legitimate preventives and avoid trying experiments with preparations not indorsed by physicians An entirely safe and very effective way to keep the complexion young-looking and beautiful is to apply ordinary mercolized wax at bedtime, using it like cold cream, washing it off in the morning This gradually absorbs the withered, faded cuticle, which is replaced by the more youthful, pink-tinted underskin One ounce of this wax, to be had at any drug store, is enough to completely rejuvenate a worn-out complexion

Crow's feet and other wrinkles, the first signs of advancing age, may be removed by a simple, harmless preparation made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint witch hazel It is used as a face bath.—National Hygienic Review.

A Single Application Banishes Every Hair

(The Modern Beauty)

Here is how any woman can easily and quickly remove objectionable, hairy growths without possible injury to the skin: Make a paste with some powdered delatone and water, apply to hairy surface and after 2 or 3 minutes rub off, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. This is a painless, inexpensive method and, excepting where the growth is unusually thick, a single application is enough. You should, however, be careful to get genuine delatone.

WOMEN'S WORK AND WOMEN'S CLUBS

BY DOROTHY B. JOHNSTON.

THE newest organization to be launched in Los Angeles is the Professional Woman's Club, whose raison d'etre is towards a promotion of mutual understanding and spirit of good will among women engaged in certain of the professions—medicine, dentistry and law—by bringing the members into closer contact for acquaintance and recreation through an informal association.

The members hope, throughout the year, to entertain many distinguished women of their professions from afar who are passing through California. They also provide in their plans the right to elect to honorary membership women who have done distinguished work in the professions or rendered extraordinary services to the club.

Last Monday night, at the Clark, constitution and bylaws were adopted at a business meeting and banquet. The following officers for this year were installed: Miss Elizabeth Kenney, president; Dr. Rose Bullard, vice-president; Dr. Charlotte Brown, recording secretary; Miss Orfa J. Shontz, corresponding secretary; Dr. Minnie Proctor, treasurer.

Committees appointed to head the vaious phases of work are: Membership, Dr. Elizabeth Kearney, Dr. Kate Moody and Mrs. Georgia Bullock; Hospitality, Dr. Anna Lefler and Dr. Pina Welbourn; Entertainment, Dr. M. Evangeline Jordon, Dr. Lillian Ray and Miss Litta Bell Hibben; Elections, Mrs. Margaret Gardner, Dr. Mae Fontaine and Dr. Laura Bennett.

Among the well-known women who are already a working part of the organization, to which every clubwoman in this vast district extends a welcome, are Elizabeth L. Kenney, Margaret Gardner, Elizabeth F. Kearney, M.D., Charlotte Brown, M.D., Iva J. Angier, Pina M. Welbourn, M. Louise Davis, Dr. M. Evangeline Jordon, Ida Menges Boyd, Gladys Patric, Litta Belle Hibben, Mae Fontaine, D.D.S., Venturia Clark Armstrong, M.D., Nannie C. Dunsmoor, M.D., Laura B. Bennett, M.D., Lulu H. Peters, M.D., Placida Gardner, M. D., Anna B. Lefler, M.D., Grace M. Cahoon, M.D., Elsa H. Horstmann, Georgia P. Bullock, Eleanor Seymour, M.D., Lillian E. Ray, M.D., Blanche C. Brown, M.D., and Orfa Jean Shontz, L.L.B.

Others high in their chosen professions who were unable to be present Monday night will soon become affiliated.

A feature of last Monday night's meeting was the presence of several visitors from the East, who gave delightful talks. Among those who spoke were Dr. Anna Harrison of Nashville, who was in the city en route to her home from the P. P. Dental Congress held recently in San Francisco; Miss Pauline Hageman, a Rochester (N. Y.) attorney, and prominent in suffrage circles of the East, and Dr. Anna V. Hughes of the Forsythe Institute of Boston.

Gifted Artist in Demand.

Mrs. Lillian Burkhart Goldsmith, whose success as an interpreter of literature and the drama has taken her to a high pinnacle of fame and favor, and whose versatile accomplishments have been summed up by a friend as "actress, lecturer, stage manager, club worker, home-maker, hostess, past mistress of culinary marvels, gardener, friend, wife and mother—with a sound, reliable, eight-day, self-winding sense of humor," has a busy season in prospect in her art.

Mrs. Goldsmith, who is a member of the Ebell, Friday Morning and Women's City Club of this city, an honorary member of the Southern California Press Club, chairman of the Programme Committee for the Drama League, and prominently identified with the Channel Club, is to deliver five programmes before the Wednesday Morning Club, the first to be given the third Wednesday in October on "The Social Value of the Modern Drama."

On the fourth Monday of October she will appear before the Woman's Club of Santa Monica. Her subject for that afternoon is "Some Modern Thought," the same programme which she gave last year at the Ebell Club before a record-breaking house. In this she reviews Prof. O. Hornaday's "Our Vanishing Wild Life," child labor, Robert J. Shores's "New Brooms" and poetic narratives from the pen of the gifted East Indian writer who recently won the Nobel prize, Rabindranath Tagore. John Galsworthy's very remarkable play, "The Mob," is also included for consideration in the group.

The Hollywood Woman's Club has engaged Mrs. Goldsmith for the afternoon of November 10, when she will address the members and guests on "The New Feminism."

As already announced in these columns, the Ebell Club has her for November 22, when one of her de luxe programmes, "The New Sympathy in Poetry, Art, Literature and Drama," will again attract a large audience

Early in December Mrs. Goldsmith will go to El Paso to deliver a series of interpretative talks before a coterie of well-known Texas women.

She will be at home for the holidays, and in January will resume her talks, having already perfected arrangements for January 14 at Pomona, January 18 at Riverside and later at Beaumont, El Centro, San Diego, San Jose, Fresno and Sacramento.

At Marengo Heights.

The Marengo Heights Parent-Teacher Association held its initial meeting for the school year in the school auditorium last Tuesday afternoon. Following the business an informal reception was held, when officers were installed and new teachers greeted by members of the association. Light refreshments were served. For the year a membership contest has been launched, and a nursery, where young children may be left during the hours of meeting, is being planned. Funds for the charitable work will be secured through various channels. A committee of six will do plain sewing at reasonable prices for the good of the organization; two entertainments are to be given during the year, and ice cream and candy sales will occur regularly. The Emergency Committee will attend to the needs of the unfortunate and will make necessary clothing.

At the close of the business session the principal, Mrs. M. E. Merrill, announced that a new building is to be erected in the near future which will relieve the congestion of the present structure, increase the influence of the school in the community and add dignity to the neighborhood. The addition of a kindergarten this year was mentioned with special satisfaction, secured as it was through the direct efforts of the principal and the association.

Officers of the Marengo Heights association are: President, Mrs. E. L. Phillips; vice-president, Mrs. Louis Tremblay; secretary, Mrs. U. S. Stolz; treasurer, Mrs. U. G. Place; president Emergency Committee, Mrs. J. G. Custard.

The opening meeting of the East Whittier Improvement Club for the year occurred last Wednesday afternoon, the programme being largely informal. Mrs. J. Clem Arnold, president, and the directors were in the receiving line. Following last year's plan, the club membership will be divided into nine groups, each group to be responsible for the programme for one month, two programmes being given each month. A history of the club was given by Mrs. S. W. Barton at Wednesday's meeting. The East Whittier club is one of the very few clubs in the country that combines spacious and artistic grounds with a commodious and beautiful clubhouse.

New Members Added.

The East Whittier Parent-Teacher Association added 115 names to its roster at the first meeting of the year last Tuesday evening. The meeting was held in the auditorium of the schoolhouse. The work of the year was launched by an excellent paper on the work of such organizations by the president, Mrs. E. G. Burkle. Following an interesting programme, refreshments were served by the Social Committee.

A meeting of the Business Woman's Civic Club will be held tomorrow night at 7 o'clock in the lecture hall of the Public Library Building. Miss Brennan, Commissioner of Recreation, will have charge of the programme with the subject "Echoes of the Exposition."

Police Judge White's talk on the "Functions of the Police Court" last Monday night was thoroughly enjoyed. He told of the humor and pathos of the cases that come before him. He advocated the establishment of an industrial home where women offenders against the law would be able to earn a small amount to tide them over until they could find employment after being liberated from the institution. He also spoke of the need of a home for boys on probation.

College Woman's Club.

The October meeting of the College Woman's Club will be held next Satuday afternoon in the ballroom of the Little Theater, No. 1324 South Figueroa street, at 2 o'clock.

FAMOUS BABIES IN TOUGH LUCK.

HAVE POISONING, MEASLES AND DIPHTHERIA AT [illegible].

Disaster Descends Upon Humble Home of the Noted Trio and, Though the Infants are Out of Danger, the Parents are in Need by Reason of Exhausted Resources.

The famous Lovell triplets, sons of Robert A. Lovell of No. 1017 West Second street, are about to celebrate their second birthday anniversary by announcing their complete recovery from a complex and universal attack of ptomaine poison, measles and diphtheria. Needless to say, Mr. and Mrs. Lovell will enjoy the birthday party far more than the infant sons. When one child suffers from one of those ailments it is trying in the extreme to the fond parents, but when three lusty sons are sick at the same time, the result is chaos. Especially so when the father is endeavoring to beat the high cost of living by raising his triplets on the salary of $14 a week.

Although delighted with the successful outcome of the triplicate illness, Mr. and Mrs. Lovell are now wondering where money for winter clothing is coming from. Doctors' bills and medicines have eaten great inroads into the little hoard saved from their small income by the parents.

Robert, William and Raymond, the triplets in question, attracted much attention when news of their arrival was first published in The Times two years ago. At birth, they weighed five pounds apiece. They grew rapidly so that six months ago three lusty youths yelled in unison at the Lovell home. Then sickness came, and until a few days ago Mr. and Mrs. Lovell have continually fought for the lives of their sons.

So far the biographies of the Lovell triplets have been replete with successes. In 1913 they captured first prize at the baby show held by the United Daughters of the Confederacy. Persons from all over the country visited Los Angeles for the specific purpose of calling on the triplets and their proud parents. The boys are universally known as "The Los Angeles Triplets."

The Lovells have one other child, a daughter, Doris, 5 years old.

They are nearly 2 years old now and still husky, although they have been having an unprecedented run of hard luck of late. There is a chance for some one who believes in encouraging this kind of home industry to help the unfortunate Lovell family.

Republican Victory Coming.

PASADENA, Sept. 23.—[To the Editor of The Times:] The recent presence in this city of ex-President Taft recalls what a change these years has wrought to us all. Three years ago business was good, real estate lively, building active, money easy, and, best of all, few were unemployed. The country was prosperous and confidence established. It is useless to recite what happened after the Democratic President was inaugurated, and commenced his tariff "reform" agitation and attacks on business, big and little. We all know to our sorrow.

The frost of January 7, 1913, which shriveled and blackened semitropical vegetation in Southern California was a precursor of what the Democratic policies were to do for the business and confidence of the entire country the same year. A train of woes has followed the Wilson administration which even the most ardent Republican would not have dared to have predicted before the election as a result of Democratic success. Most of us believe results would have been worse had not the war occurred. The war has, indeed, caused a sort of hectic prosperity in some parts of the country but it is, by no means widely distributed.

Those of us who remembered what Cleveland's administration did to the country—to its business and prosperity between 1893 and 1897, did not believe that in less than a generation such an experiment as entrusting the Democrats with national power would be repeated. But it has and the results are much the same, showing that national control by that party is a specific as sure to destroy prosperity as quinine does malaria.

Progressive leaders, Gov. Johnson and others of his ilk, secret allies of the Democrats, even profess to believe that President Wilson may be reelected next year. But the rank and file of the voters are not going to be tricked and betrayed again.

As the voters of the United States banished the Democracy, root and branch, in 1896, and brought prompt prosperity almost at once, under the leadership of noble McKinley, so in 1916 the Republicans will celebrate the greatest victory ever known in the history of that grand party. How welcome to us all will be the prosperity and business confidence again that extended throughout the Republican administration between William McKinley and our late honored guest, William Howard Taft. It is surely coming. Let us cheer up.

YELLOW ASTER FIGHT REVIVED.

COURT ORDER NOT OBEYED BY EXECUTOR, IS CHARGE.

Widow Who Tried to Oust Ward Chapman Now Declares He has Failed to Pay Money for Her Daughter's Education — Instructions Never Received, is Defense.

A sequel to the sensational suit of Mrs. Stella A. M. De Pauw, widow of John Singleton of the famous Yellow Aster mine, to oust Ward Chapman as executor of her then husband's estate, developed yesterday when Mrs. De Pauw threatened to bring Mr. Chapman into court for contempt for failing to comply with an order of Judge Works.

Following the trial of the ouster suit before Judge Rogers of Ventura county, sitting in the local courts, and the vindication of Mr. Chapman, Judge Works made an order, asserts Mrs. De Pauw, requiring Executor Chapman to turn over to her $100 a month for the support and education of her daughter, Margaret Elizabeth Lillian Singleton, 10 years old. This monthly sum was to be taken from the assets of the estate.

Mrs. De Pauw declares she has not received one cent since the order was made. And because, as she stated, the court has been defied, she came to the Courthouse yesterday and sought Judge Rives of the Probate Court. Failing to find him, she said she intended to ask for a citation and have Mr. Chapman explain his alleged dereliction.

She deplored the fact that her daughter has not been able to attend the private school selected for her and in consequence, her education is being neglected. The girl, she said, had been left a quarter interest in the estate of her father, but she is not able to get any part of this legacy.

Mr. Chapman declared he had never received notice of the order and for that reason, he stated, it was void. The money from the estate now in his hands, he said, is only $260, and because the assets are so small it was not proper to apply for an order.

During the trial of the ouster suit the feeling ran high between Mrs. De Pauw and Mr. Chapman. They passed each other in the corridor of the court yesterday and there was no salutation on either side. Mr. Chapman, however, says he has the best of feeling for Mrs. De Pauw's welfare. His first duty is, however, to the interests of the estate in his care.

The bitterness grew out of Mr. Chapman's alleged championship of Mrs. Rose Burcham, who has taken an active part in the management of the affairs of the Yellow Aster companies. He was charged with favoring her interests and he did fight any attempt to get her out of the management on the score that she is capable and has done praiseworthy work. Mrs. De Pauw tried to combat this theory, and related during her testimony incidents in which she and Mrs. Burcham figured. Mrs. De Pauw wanted her husband, Cornelius De Pauw, in control.

DEFENDING FINE HOME DISTRICT.

SUIT FILED TO OUST GASOLINE STATION THAT VIOLATES RESTRICTIONS.

In defense of the restrictions embodied in the deeds when property was purchased for splendid homes, and in an effort to preserve the beautiful Wilshire district from the ubiquitous gasoline supply station, Gen. Harrison Gray Otis, through Attorneys Hunsaker & Britt, filed suit yesterday against Joseph W. Gray, Hattie A. Gray, Herbert R. Kells, the Wright-Callender-Andrews Company and others to require, through the judgment of the court, the removal of the gasoline supply station on the southwest corner of Wilshire boulevard and Carondolet street, and for a perpetual injunction.

The Wilshire tract originally belonged to H. Gaylord Wilshire and William B. Wilshire. It was platted in 1896 and named the Wilshire boulevard tract. William B. Wilshire acquired the interest of H. Gaylord Wilshire and conveyed to Gen. Otis the property which he now owns at the northwest corner of Wilshire boulevard and Park View avenue. Gen Otis, by virtue of the restrictions imposed upon the lots in the tract, claims an easement in the lot upon which the gasoline supply station has been built.

The erection of this gasoline supply station is a flagrant violation of the restrictions embodied in the deeds and which have preserved this beautiful residence district. By this easement Gen. Otis has the right to require that no owner claiming any title, right or interest in this lot shall erect a building within fifty feet of the center of Carondolet street or within 100 feet of the center of Wilshire boulevard. The regulations also are stringent as to the oil industry.

August 12 last one Sebestel began the erection of a gasoline supply station at the southwest corner of Wilshire boulevard and Carondolet street. He was served with a notice, but in spite of this the construction of the station was continued and completed.

He is also executive secretary of the California State Church Federation, and he will divide his time between that organization and the local federation. Rev. Mr. Talbott will speak at noon tomorrow on "Church Federation and Social Salvation" at a meeting of the Los Angeles Church Federation at the Y.W.C.A.

NINE-DAY FAST ON A MOUNTAIN.

LONELY VIGIL PREPARES SILENT PREACHER FOR LABORS IN A NEW CITY.

After nine days of fasting and meditation under an oak tree in the mountains north of Santa Suzanna, Christaan Korber, silent street preacher, feels that he is prepared for his new duties as a messenger of God in Berkeley. He says that out of the mountain silence new strength and a clearer vision of things eternal came to him.

The place which Mr. Korber selected was the highest point of the mountain far away from the paths and roadways made by man, and he was undisturbed. No human being happened to pass that way during his stay. The beasts of the mountain side were inclined to be timid at first but before the end of the vigil learned not to be afraid of the man whose creed is to harm neither them or man.

The mornings and the evenings, the dawns and the sunsets and the goings of the winds were not unobserved by the lonely watcher. It was through these mediums, he declares, that some of his most precious messages came.

Mr. Korber thinks that "the world is too much with us" and believes that all mankind could profit from such experiences as his. He believes that it would be good for the nerves, if nothing more and he feels confident that it would be refreshing to the soul.

"I think that the visit on the mountain top has helped to prepare me for the tasks ahead," Mr. Korber said yesterday. "The experience gave me more confidence in myself and in the Master. In the last four years I have fasted in all eighty days. It is a part of my religion."

Since last October Mr. Korber has been a familiar figure on the streets of Los Angeles. It has been his custom to walk fifteen to twenty miles a day, carrying a placard with the plea, "Get right with God." This silent sermon is the only one that he preaches.

Christaan Korber,

Silent street preacher, who has completed a fast of nine days in the mountains near Santa Susanna as a preparation for his new religious duties in Berkeley, for which city he will depart today.

SWEDISH PICNIC TODAY.

Ten Thousand Sons and Daughters of North to Make Merry at Selig Zoo Park.

Swedes of the Southland will make merry with song and dance at Selig Zoo Park today. More than 10,000 of the 25,000 Swedes in Southern California are expected to participate in the celebration, which will be an all-day affair.

Features of the programme will be Swedish dances by Miss Pearl Swansen and Miss Ruby Nelson, both of whom are well-known exponents of folk songs. Mrs. Nieola Palmer, who is in charge of this part of the programme, also promises a number of other interesting dance numbers.

In addition there will be singing by the Swedish Harmony Society and other vocal societies of the city and environs. There will also be speaking. The affair is in charge of the Swedish Liran of Southern California.

Special service will be offered by both the Pacific Electric and the Los Angeles Railway to accommodate the crowds moving to and from the zoo grounds near Eastlake Park.

STEALS FROM BENEFACTOR.

Problem of Returning "Borrowed" Clothes Solved when Owner Appears at Jail Demanding Attire.

When Dan McGuire admitted he was guilty of robbing the man who had befriended him and that the suit of clothes he wore belonged to another person he did not anticipate the ruling of Police Judge Chesebro yesterday morning. "You are sentenced to pay a fine of $75 or spend seventy-five days in the City Jail," the judge decreed. Then he added: "You also must return that suit of clothes to the man from whom you borrowed them."

It was easy enough for McGuire to adapt himself to the jail sentence, but the problem that worried him was how to obey the court's mandate in regard to returning the clothes. He tried to get a solution from the judge, but the latter was too busy and the young man was hustled off to a cell.

A little later the owner of the clothes appeared and demanded them. "I can't do it," the prisoner wailed." I haven't even got underclothes to protect me if you take these."

Jailer Shand came to the man's rescue, providing a tattered suit that had been left by some unfortunate and McGuire gladly accepted it.

McGuire came here from Bakersfield a few days ago. He had gone broke up there and when he wrote of his condition to William Lathim, No. 216½ East Fifth street, the latter sent him railroad fare and promised to keep him until he found a job. He repaid the kindness by stealing about $50 worth of jewelry and clothes from his benefactor.

NEXT PEACE CONGRESS.

Coming Event at Panama-Pacific International Exposition. Chancellor David Starr Jordan will Open Great Conclave in San Francisco October 10. Many Notable Representatives of World's Peace Societies will Attend.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

EXPOSITION GROUNDS (San Francisco) Sept. 25.—What promises to be the most important and practical peace programme so far undertaken by the advocates of world peace will be shaped when the International Peace Congress begins its sessions in San Francisco, October 10. The congress will continue until October 13, and will cover all the most important phases of the world movement for peace.

The congress will be held under the auspices of the Church Peace Union and the American Peace Society. The preliminary work is done by a San Francisco committee, working in conjunction with the exposition, the directors of which regard the congress as the chief convention of all held during the exposition period. For, if the exposition itself is a sort of world city of peace flourishing despite a world half-wrecked and ruined by war, the peace congress to be held next month will sum up and make concrete the spirit of the exposition's highest ideal.

Chancellor David Starr Jordan is the president of the congress. Capt. Robert Dollar is the treasurer. Dr. H. H. Bell and Robert C. Root, secretary of the California Peace Society, are the joint secretaries, assisted by Louis P. Lochner, secretary of the Chicago Peace Society. Among the local vice-presidents are such prominent personages as Archbishop Edward J. Hanna, Bishop William Ford Nichols, Bishop Edwin H. Hughes, Judge W. W. Morrow and Mrs. John F. Merrill, while serving upon the various committees are a host of leading men and women conspicuous in public life, such as Senator James D. Phelan, Walter MacArthur, United States Shipping Commissioner; Rabbi Martin Meyer, Raphael Weil, Congressman William Kent, President Benjamin Ide Wheeler, University of California, many influential club women and the editors of the leading newspapers.

The speakers include many diverse representatives of various aspects of the peace movements. It will be far from being a "peace-at-any-price" movement, nor is it committed to any particular peace idea, save the fundamental principles upon which there is little difference of opinion. The main object of the congress is to shape definite and practical ways of putting these principles into action. It will be a power plant for generating and directing practical force. It will aim to make such an impact upon world thought as speedily to hasten the overthrow of militarism.

Among those who have already announced their subjects are the following well-known people: Chancellor David Starr Jordan, Gov. Hiram W. Johnson, Dr. Frederick Lynch, secretary the Church Peace Union, New York; Archbishop Edward J. Hanna, D.D., of San Francisco; Dr. J. A. McDonald, editor of the Toronto Globe; Senator La Fontaine of Belgium, a winner of the Noble peace prize; Walter Scott Penfield, Washington, D. C., secretary for the United States at the Hague Pious Fund Arbitration; Herbert S. Houston, president World's Associated Advertising Clubs; Miss Eva Marshall Shontz, Chicago, organizer of the Woman's Peace Party; Mrs. Lucia Ames Mead, Boston, Mass., author of "Swords and Ploughshares;" Dr. John Metz, Mirza Ali Kuli Khan, Persian Minister to the United States, Louis P. Lochner, Chicago, secretary Chicago Peace Society; Arthur Deerin Call, Washington, secretary the American Peace Society; Theodore Marburg, former United States Minister to Belgium, and many others.

Miss Jane Addams is expected to be in attendance and to make one of the chief addresses, though this is not as yet positively assured. There are other big features of the congress not yet developed to the point of being announced.

The purpose of the congress is fourfold.

First—To bring together recognized leaders in public affairs from all nations, including representatives from all religious, educational, legal, peace, commercial, labor and Socialistic organizations, in order to unite them into one great, constructive organization to work for the abolition of war.

Second—To present a programme which, in its discussion and printed results, shall make such impact upon the springs of world thought as speedily to hasten the overthrow of militarism.

Third—To discuss up-to-date, practical plans for effective international co-operation in the substitution of moral principles and just laws for the rules of force.

Fourth—To discuss the problem of adequate national protection.

Among the broad lines of the congress these points will be discussed:

The extension of the principles of arbitration and conciliation to all international disputes.

The formation of an international peace league.

The organization of a world court for the judicial settlement of international difficulties.

MEXICAN MONEY POOR STUFF.

Can Carry it Around in a Basket and Hardly Have Enough with Which to Buy a Dinner.

[Washington Post:] "When I gave the conductor on a car a 10-cent piece today for my fare he handed it back, and said: 'That's Canadian money, and I can't take it.' If he thought that was depreciated money, what would he have said had I handed him some Mexican money? What would he have given for this $20 bill or this other one?" said Daniel Worden, of Tampico, at the Ebbitt, as he exhibited two bills—one issued by Villa and the other by Huerta.

"I might get 60 cents for one and 50 cents for the other, if lucky down there. It's a real fine life, that of an American in Mexico. Along comes one crowd of national patriots, who take a cow. Just to show that they are not imposing on you they pay you cash and deal the money right out to you. They get the animal and you get the money. Simple, businesslike and satisfactory to them Then you decide that if it is your last cow you might enjoy some of the meat, so you ask the soldiers to sell you five pounds of the meat.

"'And how will you pay?' comes from one of them. 'With this money,' you say. But you get no further, for there is much laughter, and with the same scorn that the street urchin here tells you to 'slip it to Riley,' they reject your money—it's yours, not theirs any more. I have considerable wealth in this Mexican money, so far as the figures on the bills go, but I consider what I gave for it a contribution for life insurance."

IN CHARACTER of exhibits, magnitude and beautiful decorative scheme the flower show feature of the big Broadway Automobile and Flower Show to be held October 23 to 30 in the building recently vacated by the Boston Store will be one of the most attractive and beautiful displays of the kind ever held. The floor plan and decorative features which have now been decided upon provide for an enormous display of cut roses, chrysanthemums and dahlias, chrysanthemums in pots and other potted flowers and plants with a harmonious setting of rare palms and shrubs, greenery and floral bowers.

The flower show will occupy the entire third floor extending from Broadway to Hill street. Tables and other spaces for competitive exhibits by amateur growers have been artistically grouped in the plan to enable attractive arrangement and at the same time ample aisle space for the thousands of visitors who will see and admire the exhibits daily.

About twenty handsome cups and other prizes will be offered, several in each class. In addition there will be some notable private exhibits. Near the center of the floor will be a lily bed beautifully arranged with a border of rocks, ferns and rare moisture-loving plants. The lilies will be exhibited in a large pond in the center by E. D. Sturtevant of Hollywood. Mr. Sturtevant has made a study of water lilies for many years and has one of the finest collections in America. He will show, in addition to some of the well-known varieties, several beautiful novelties recently imported from South America, India and tropical Africa. These lilies range from white and cream to vivid magenta and scarlet. Mr. Sturtevant also has a beautiful blue variety that he hopes to show. Arthur Letts, from his magnificent Hollywood gardens, will show cut roses and floral novelties. Mr. Letts's rose garden contains the choicest varieties of roses grown anywhere, many of them having been imported directly by him from foreign horticulturists. Other similar exhibits are being tentatively arranged. There will also be floral and plant exhibits by many of the leading nurserymen and horticulturists of Southern California.

The committee in charge of the flower show will complete the schedule of classes in the competitive sections, and will announce in a few days the rules of the competitions and the number and character of the cups to be awarded. Every amateur grower of roses, chrysanthemums or dahlias is cordially invited to exhibit flowers without entrance fee or obligation except to observe the necessary rules and regulations governing the competition. The entry blank printed on this page should be filled out and sent in as soon as possible. The management of the show requests that, if for any reason, after entry has been made, the exhibitor is unable to send in his flowers, a withdrawal of the entry will be made as early as possible.

VOTERS HARASSED BY FRENZIED BALLOTING.

Costly Election After Election, with Multiplicity of Confusing Questions — Approach of October Polling Date Shows "Rush Act" Working at High Pressure, with Common People Getting the Worst of It.

THE freakiest of all California elections is to be held a month from next Tuesday. At that time the people of the State generally will vote upon eleven propositions, most of which are would-be patches on the Constitution. All of these questions are State-wide in their application.

In Los Angeles the people will vote upon these eleven propositions and five and probably seven more. There will be at least seventeen questions, many of which involve expenditures of money, nine proposing to amend the organic law of the State and two of them aiming at the destruction of political parties. Five of the six proposed bond issues affect only the city. That isn't all. The State law and the city charter do not correspond on a very vital matter regarding the submission of propositions to the people. Thirty days is a short enough period for the "rush act" to be worked, but when only twenty days are allowed for placing matters of vital importance before the people, there is little chance for an exhaustive consideration of the merits.

The State law provides that in order to get upon the ballot a proposition must be submitted within thirty days of election; the city charter holds that within twenty days a city proposition may be submitted for voting.

Usually, everything is left to the last minute, when in a final rush the ballot is clogged with issues that add to the confusion and leave to the voter no possible opportunity for deliberation.

GONE BALLOT CRAZY.

For nearly five years California has been ballot crazy. The new order of things has started an epidemic of voting that has resulted in the expenditure of millions of dollars and an economic loss because of constant turmoil that is impossible to estimate.

When an election is called, whether it be special or general, it is not considered desirable to permit it to go without complications, but the ballot must be complicated and clogged with issues ranging from the voting of bonds to the changing of the constitution. Signatures are bought in bulk for petitions, voters are harassed and business is disturbed by a constant peddling of petitions for this, that and the other, until the average citizen is bored to disgust.

Besides the nine constitutional amendments to be voted upon next month, there are two amendments to the election laws, which, if passed, would destroy all political parties. In addition to those eleven propositions, which are State-wide, there are five bond propositions ordered on the ballot by the City Council. They would, if adopted, add $4,940,000 to the city's bonded debt. Another proposition would, if approved by the voters of the county, add $2,850,000 to the county's bonded debt.

Upon the question of submitting flood control and other matters to the people, there is already some talk of a special election around Christmas time. If this is not called, there will be a horde of propositions on the ballot for the first election in 1916, which will be the Presidential primary.

Here are some of the matters still hanging fire in the city after years of deliberation and intermittent action. Any of them may be revived for a special election at any time, and all of them are subject to the initiative:

Tin tag ordinance (both kinds.)
Municipal railway to the harbor.
Municipal belt line around the city.
Arroyo Seco parkway.
Silver Lake parkway.
Subways under Broadway, Main and Spring.
Municipal auditorium on Normal site.
Union depot at Plaza.
Pacific Electric subway to beach lines.
Pacific Electric elevated track to San Pedro street.
One way traffic scheme, Broadway, Main and Spring streets.
Universal transfers.
Arcading Broadway, Main and Spring streets.
Municipal street car lines.
One-phone system.
Thirty-cent natural gas.
Boulevard on West First street.
Open cut through Bunker Hill.
First and Second street tunnels.
Los Angeles Railway $5,000,000 terminal, at Twelfth and Main streets.
New public library.
Los Angeles Railway tunnel (North Broadway.)
Municipal phone system.
Purchase of Los Angeles Railway.
City-county consolidation.
Anti-billboard ordinance.
Goodrich's $150,000,000 harbor plan.
Charles Mulford Robinson's city beautiful.
Model franchise.
Elevation of freight tracks on Alameda street.
Open cut on Long Beach avenue for Pacific Electric.
Six viaducts over river and railroads.
Municipal art center.
Graham's high line.
Annexation of Pasadena, etc.
Two-bit round trip to the beaches.
Municipal gas plant.
Union freight terminal.
New city charter.

NO END AT ALL.

Last year the voters of California went on record by a majority of 242,000 against calling a constitutional convention for the revision of the Constitution. At that same election the voters passed upon the qualifications of several hundred candidates and forty-eight amendments, initiatives and referendums.

Nearly half a hundred proposed constitutional amendments were offered by the lawmakers at the last session of the Legislature, although only nine of them were submitted to the people for approval.

No election can be allowed to pass without complications and confusions, without making the ballot resemble a bed blanket and without wearying and harassing the citizens of the State with constant calls to the polls.

The result is that most matters are decided by a minority, the taxpayers are gouged for a big sum to feed into the flame and the laws are piling higher and higher in correspondence with the trend of the taxes.

Archbishop Mendosa of Durango will perform the absolution ceremony.

DEDICATE LARGE HOSPITAL TODAY.

THRONG TO ATTEND SERVICE ON LAWN OF METHODIST INSTITUTION.

The formal dedication of the new Methodist Hospital at No. 2826 South Hope street will occur this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. It is expected that thousands of Methodists and their friends will attend.

The dedicatory ceremony, to be conducted by Bishop Edwin H. Hughes of San Francisco, will be held on the campus of the hospital. Bishop Hughes will be assisted by Rev. C. E. Locke of the First Methodist Episcopal Church, Dr. Matt S. Hughes of Pasadena, and the following four district superintendents of Southern California: Rev. H. W. Peck, Los Angeles; Dr. F. B. Mather, Pasadena; Rev. Albert Inwood, San Diego; and Rev. John Oliver of Fresno.

Bishop Hughes and his brother, Rev. Matt S. Hughes, will deliver the only addresses. One of the features of the ceremony will be a musical programme by the choir of First Church, directed by Prof. Carl Bronson.

The hospital may be reached by Grand-avenue car to Twenty-eighth street, thence one block west to Hope street. The structure, erected at a cost of nearly $500,000, was recently opened.

UNSKILLFUL MUSICIAN.

Early Prowler with Trombone Explains to Police He has Forgotten How to Toot Horn.

Dan Brown could not toot a trombone and as a result is in the City Jail on a charge of burglary. When Detectives Greely and James went to No. 510 Wall street early yesterday morning they found Brown sneaking out a back alley with the instrument under his arm.

"This horn is mine and I was on the way to a pawn shop to get some money on it," he told the officers.

The detectives declare they did not believe the story and suggested that he play a tune to prove the ownership.

"I have forgotten how," Brown replied. "You know this is not like swimming. Once you learn to swim you never forget, but if you have not played a musical instrument for a few years you must start all over again."

The detectives told the man that his reasoning sounded correct and they would let him get a new start in the City Jail.

HAIR ON FACE NECK AND ARMS WHAT CAUSES IT

Nature does not produce coarse stubborn growths of superfluous hair. They are caused by the unwise use of so-called hair removers.

The only way to gain control of such growths is to devitalize them. It is impossible to accomplish this result with pastes and rub-on preparations because they only remove hair from the surface of the skin. DeMiracle, the original liquid depilatory, devitalizes hair by attacking it under the skin as well as on the skin.

Imitations of DeMiracle are as worthless as pastes and rub-on preparations because they lack certain ingredients that DeMiracle alone contains which give it the power to rob hair of its vitality—its life sustaining force.

Insist on the genuine DeMiracle and you will get the original liquid hair remover. Others are worthless imitations—refuse them.

DeMiracle is sold in $1.00 and $2.00 bottles. If your dealer will not supply you, order direct from us. The truth about the treatment of superfluous hair mailed in plain sealed envelope on request. DeMiracle Chemical Co., Dept. 3, Park Ave. and 129th St., New York.

ALLEGE LABEL IS COUNTERFEIT.

TUNA CANNING COMPANY SUES FOR INJUNCTION.

Plaintiff Also Asks for Twenty-five Thousand Dollars Damages in Complaint that Asserts Defendant's Product is Inferior and Poorly Packed.

Asking $25,000 damages, an accounting of the profits and an injunction restraining the defendants from using a label which is alleged to be a counterfeit of the one in use by themselves, the Los Angeles Tuna Canning Company opened war on the California Tunny Canning Company and the Van Camp Sea Food Company, in a suit filed yesterday through Attorneys Alderson and McEntire.

The alleged original label in use by the Los Angeles Tuna Canning Company and the label claimed to be a counterfeit are exhibits and show an apparent similarity. The plaintiff sets up that it originated the red label, August 7, 1913, and appropriated it to its exclusive use as a trademark. The color scheme is principally red. This label has distinguished the cans of the plaintiff.

The label used by the California Tunny Canning Company is asserted to be of the same material and color as the Los Angeles Tuna Canning Company's, with substantially the same wording. The charge is made that the defendant's fish canned is of inferior quality and poorly packed. It is alleged that the label was copied for the purpose of taking advantage of the business created by the plaintiff, the base of which is declared to be the superior quality of the fish it cans. The defendants are stated to pack and market about 20,000 cases a year.

COURTS BUSY. VACATION ENDS.

A beehive in swarming time or an ant colony on a busy day is the most likely comparison to the opening of the courts tomorrow. Vacation ceases, and the judges who have been summering in the wilds or down by the sounding sea will resume their benches and take up the greatest calendars of the West.

With the exception of Departments Two and Ten and the presiding judge, who have been keeping up their work, the other law and motion calendars are loaded to the guards. Each court has an average of 100 causes to be called, with second-call causes averaging twenty-five. It would be a physical impossibility to dispose of these calendars in one day. Many causes will be continued to other dates, but aside from this the judges will be busy.

The corridors and courtrooms will be thronged with lawyers. An air of expectancy will hang over one and all, and more than one attorney will dance on one foot, for with all the law and calendar courts running, they will have cases in more than one court. For years they have been trying to solve the problem of being in two places at the same time, and inevitably they have failed.

HEIR MISSING. SEARCH FRUITLESS.

Jules Germain, a son of George Jules Germain, is heir to $1000 left to him by his father, who died more than a year ago. The most diligent efforts on the part of J. H. De la Monte, attorney for the estate, have failed to locate the son, and yesterday the search was abandoned when a petition for final distribution of the estate of $56,000 was filed.

With the exception of $1000, the estate was bequeathed to Mrs. Helen Mar Germain, the second wife of Mr. Germain. Nine years before he died Mr. Germain executed his will. At that time he had not seen his son for fifteen years, nor did he know his whereabouts.

DOCTOR SUED. PARENTS ASK DAMAGES.

Alleging malpractice, Fred and Carin Peterson seek $10,000 damages from Dr. Gladys Patric for the grief caused by the death of their infant child. Dr. Patric was called in to treat the child shortly after its birth. It was suffering from a slight cold, the complaint states, and the parents were furnished with tablets containing, they allege, thirty grains of metallic mercury.

The doctor's instructions were, they assert, to massage the infant's body with one-quarter of a tablet each morning. Several boxes of the tablets were used. The parents allege that the child weakened under the treatment, the bones became brittle and finally their baby passed away in August.

INS AND OUTS. AT THE COURTHOUSE.

JUDAH ESTATE. Marion S. and Elizabeth M. Judah of this city, and Ruth, Frances and Jennie Irene Judah of Boston, grandchildren of Mrs. Jennie Judah, who died August 19, will inherit the estate, in accordance with the provisions of the will which was filed for probate yesterday. A son, Edward G. Judah, is named executor and presented the petition. The estate consists of a $20,000 interest in a promissory note, secured by mortgage and bearing interest at 6 per cent. Mrs. Judah's sons, Edward G., Frank J., Oscar S. and Walter L. Judah, are bequeathed $10 each by their mother.

QUIET-TITLE SUIT. A suit to quiet title to property east of Clay street in which other parties claim an interest, was filed by Leon Levy yesterday, who asks that the defendants be enjoined, alleging that they have no interest in the property. Mr. Levy alleges that he has been in possession for twenty years, and during that time he has paid the taxes. He names as defendants Frank A. and Clara Newton Cattern, F. W. Wood, H. Nadeau and J. M. Elliott, the latter two executors of the will of Prudent Beaudry, deceased.

INCORPORATIONS. Unit Gas Heating Company, incorporators Raymond H. Vondenbosch, C. M. Merrill and P. Edson Snell, capital stock $25,000, subscribed $300; the Mission Club, incorporators Ralph P. Losey, Clifford C. Bernard and Charles W. Goodwin, no capital stock.

HELD ON FORGERY CHARGE.

Fred R. Emery, former manager of the Los Angeles Investment Company's insurance department, must answer to the Superior Court on a charge of forgery. He was held by Justice Brown yesterday on this charge. He was committed to the County Jail, in default of $8000 bail. Forging the name of J. F. Boylan, an insurance agent, to a check for $1266 drawn in Boylan's favor by the Los Angeles Investment Company, is the specific charge.

PETITION FILED; IT MAY BE LATE.

TWO-PLATOON OPPONENTS ON THE TRAIL STILL.

Final Effort to be Made to Get Council to Order Repeal Question on Ballot Monday and Special Vote will be Called in Case of Failure. More Palm-watering Bills.

The Municipal League petition asking for a vote to repeal the two-platoon fire ordinance was filed with the City Clerk yesterday, bearing 16,000 names. Approximately 14,000 valid signatures are required to authorize the question on the ballots. According to charter provisions, the petitioners have ten days in which to amend the petition, and the City Clerk has the same time in which to check the names. Registrar McAleer, however, has notified the Municipal League that, unless it is definitely known Monday if there are sufficient signatures, the repeal question cannot go on the ballot October 26, but may have to be voted upon a separate ballot.

H. S. Ryerson, secretary of the Municipal League, said yesterday that the Council will caucus Monday on the question of ordering the repeal on the ballots and he believes that five members will support the measure. The Municipal League contends that if the Council acts favorably Monday it can order the registrar of voters to place the question on the ballots for the next special election.

The petition advocated by former Councilman Whiffen to compel the city to sell water for irrigation purposes outside the city limits was withdrawn yesterday.

PALMS AND ROSES. MORE BILLS RENDERED.

The question of palms and roses as roadside and street decorations bobbed up in the Council again yesterday on receipt of a bill of $512.65 from the County Forester for watering the roses and trees along the San Fernando road and Chatsworth road during the month of August. President Betkouski said he has been over the district recently and so far as his observations went he did not see a live rosebush in the district. The City Auditor reported that the places where the roses were supposed to have been growing were watered by the county and, therefore, there is just claim against the city for the service. In discussing the palms in the business district, former friends of the now friendless trees said that it is simply a case of waiting until the proper time to transplant them, when, on recommendation of the park department, they will likely be placed along some of the park drives. In the meantime the palms will be watered when necessary.

To Open Gas Hearing.

Representatives of the local gas companies will appear before State Railroad Commissioner Edgerton on Monday for a preliminary hearing of the cases in which the commission is asked to fix the rate for gas in Los Angeles. This hearing will be simply to make legal the investigations now being made by the Railroad Commission engineers, and the final hearing of the case will be set for next December. The commission will also present a formal demand on the city for access to the Public Utilities Board reports on inventories of the gas company properties within the city.

Is Noise a Nuisance?

The Public Welfare Committee will investigate complaints Monday from the Dayton-avenue Improvement Association that a rock crusher across the Arroyo Seco from the Loretto-street school is running in successful opposition to the efforts of the teachers to make themselves heard doing school hours. Councilman Roberts stated yesterday that if necessary he will demand an injunction against the rock crusher company to abate the nuisance, and Councilwoman Lindsey, chairman of the Public Welfare Committee, promised that the complaint will be investigated thoroughly.

Municipal Messengers.

The Council yesterday passed a resolution authorizing the establishment of a municipal messenger office as recommended by the Budget Committee. This plan, which originated with the Efficiency Commission, will do away with the use of $100-a-month clerks as messengers between various city departments.

To Gain Water Rights.

The Council authorized the Public Service Commission yesterday to file applications with the State Water Commission for the appropriation of the waters of Rush Creek and Leevining Creek for municipal power purposes. The Public Service Commission was also authorized to convey a strip of land ten feet wide, adjoining the old pumping plant on Fifty-seventh street, to the city for street purposes.

NO POISON TRACE AT AUTOPSY TEST.

BUT POLICE STILL SUSPICION FOUL PLAY AND SEEK WOMAN.

An examination yesterday morning by County Autopsy Surgeon Wagner of the stomach of George F. Brown, whose body was found in a downtown lodging-house Friday, revealed no evidence of poison; but the police are still working on the theory that death was the result of a drug. Sometimes a virulent narcotic is quickly absorbed in the lining of the intestines or stomach, and believing this may have been the case in this instance, Prof Maas, an expert chemist, will make a more thorough analysis.

Dr. Wagner found no indication that the man had died from heart trouble, which some of his friends believe was the case, owing to the fact that he had long been subject to such attacks. When the body was found there was a water glass containing a solution of poison near the bed and the police declared there is reason to believe he was murdered.

Detectives McCann and Williams continued their efforts yesterday to locate a mysterious woman in black, who is known to have gone to the hotel room with Brown Thursday night. The woman is described as about 40 years old and of attractive appearance.

Sons of Mr. Brown, who was 70 years old and bore an excellent reputation, are expected to come to the city from Oakland to assist in the search for the woman.

MRS. CARTER IS STILL MAGNET.

Other Smart Attractions Due at Orpheum.

Burbank and Morosco Bills are Unchanged.

Little Theater to Open Soon with "Snow White."

Mrs. Leslie Carter in her tabloid production of "Zaza," will continue to headline the Orpheum bill this week. The playlet, which is a condensation of her former famous stage success, is presented with the utmost penetration of Mrs. Carter's art. It has packed the Orpheum during the past week.

The new bill opening tomorrow, which accompanies the Carter play promises interesting novelties. Charles E. Evans of Evans and Hoey "Parlor Match" fame, and Helena Phillips formerly with David Warfield, in "A Forgotten Combination," will present a laughing hit.

Others will be Ralph Dunbar's Salon Singers, a quartette who are scheduled to offer good entertainment; Billie Burke's Tango Shoes, in which the dancer possesses footgear supposed to make the wearer dance whether he will or no; Shirli Rives and Ben Harrison in "Another Bench Act;" and the holdovers, Harry and Eva Puck, Willie Solar of the mobile face, and Eva Shirley, in singing and dancing numbers.

Burbank.

"Sadie Love" is proving so much of a hit at the Burbank, that it is scheduled for a fourth week, which begins with today's matinee. Avery Hopwood, the author, has spent the last two weeks in adding new laughs, and the production is now said to be gloom-proof.

Marjorie Rambeau and Pedro de Cordoba will go to New York in October, and appear on Broadway in the play, which will be presented at $2 top scale instead of at the present low-cost-of-laughing prices.

Morosco.

"Nobody Home," with Blanche Ring, enters on the second successful week tonight at the Morosco. Miss Ring's catchy songs, "Magic Melody," "Any Old Night," and "Ukelele Dailey," are being whistled all over town, and Walter Catlett's "Beautiful Bed" is scoring a hit.

Charles Winniger is making a tremendous individual appeal in his German comedy role, and Walter Catlett, May Boley, William Rock, Percy Bronson, Winnie Baldwin and others of the cast are becoming more popular every day in their various parts.

The production has been smoothed out as to all rough edges, and is selling out exactly as did "So Long Letty."

Mason.

The Mason Operahouse will have as its attractive beginning Monday, October 4, Ruth St. Denis, the world-famed dancer, in a three nights' engagement, with a Wednesday matinee. Featured with Miss St. Denis will be Ted Shawn and a large company.

Miss St. Denis will appear in a number of new and spectacular conceptions among which will be the nature series, consisting of solo and ensemble dances for which certain effects are produced by throwing light through colored slides upon a pure white background. This idea is copied from the famous "Fortuna" stage effects which created a sensation in Europe last season.

Other numbers will be the Egyp-

WHERE FILMLAND'S LEAF TURNS.

Some of the Remarkable Character Actors and Actresses of the Movie World Who Have Crossed the Three-Score Line and Are Still Young.

BY GRACE KINGSLEY.

IF YOU need a plot for your next scenario don't delve into musty libraries, nor go out and get a drink as inspiration. Just go and talk to some of the older actors, even to some of the "extra" people on "the lot."

To grow old gracefully, that's given above all to the stage folk, and especially to the motion-picture people. In the full prime of their powers are many of the so-called older actors. Who doesn't remember a character part played by an actor no longer young which lingered longer in the memory than that of the "star?" And in the realm of pictures, where, when all is said and done, it's the acting that really matters, the older artist finds some of the best opportunities for expression of his ripened talents.

There are many really famous character actors among the motion-picture folk of Southern California, and there is many a story among them that's fuller of the lights and shades of human experience than most plays can boast.

Can you imagine losing your fortune at 70, and starting all over again in a new career—one demanding all the virility and grit of youth? That is the story of the well-loved "Doc" Crane, 72 years old, with the Universal company, who has just done some of the best film work which the "U" has ever turned out in the Carter de Haven picture, "At Watt College," just completed.

"Doc" Crane started life as a physician in Boston. He left his practice to fight in the Civil War, and served all through it. Then he went back to his practice, and through his profession and some lucky investments, amassed a fortune. At 65 he retired and came to California to live. But hard times came on and he lost all that he had been a lifetime in saving.

But he didn't let despair seize him, even for a moment. After the first shock he braced up and went one bright spring morning out to the Universal studio, where he was at once engaged as a good-looking "type" for extra parts. Somewhere back in the old medical college days he had done stunts in amateur theatricals, and his experience soon helped him to a good place as one of the "U's" leading character men, which position he has held ever since. Crane is a most valuable man, for not only is he always first aid to the injured in case of accidents at the big ranch, but his advice in staging scenes in which medical accessories are used is invaluable.

"Daddy" (Charles) Manley, also at the Universal, claims to be the oldest inhabitant of filmland. He is 86 years old, and one of the best character actors in the business. He was featured in a big picture not long ago.

"Daddy" was once a Shakespearean actor, and played in the support of Edwin Forrest and of Booth. He was a member of the company at the Ford Theater in Washington on the night when Lincoln was assassinated.

One morning there appeared at the Universal a sweet-faced old lady, who sought work in pictures. She made no special claims for anybody's consideration, nor for any favoritism, but quietly accepted the extra work given her. Later it transpired that she had once been leading woman with Forbes-Robertson and other well-known stars. She is known now as "Mother Benson," for she is recipient of all the confidences that anybody in the big "U" family has to bestow. When she married she left the stage, and later, when her husband died, she took up the work of teaching, and became an institute worker and an authority on English and French in a middle western town where she taught. She has a small grandson who is also working in motion pictures out at the Lasky studio.

When you see the "U" picture, "The Pinnacle," in which Dick Stanton plays the lead, please note the handsome, strong-faced man who takes the part of the doctor. That is Edward Browne, 70 years old, and at one time a well-known Boston stage director, under whom, indeed, Henry McRae, manager of the Universal, at one time played juvenile leads.

BEST LOVED MEMBER.

Out at David Griffith's Fine Arts Films Studio are some of the most interesting character actors in filmland. If a stranger should inquire at the studio who is best loved of all the actors and actresses, many voices would answer, "Jenny Lee." Jennie Lee is 64 years old. You will remember her for her part in "The Clansman." When she was a child she ran away with a circus, and though she had never had a day's schooling in her life, she rose to the enviable position of being one of the most popular ingenues on the American stage, being chosen by Joseph Jefferson for the part of "Gretchen" in "Rip Van Winkle," though at the time she couldn't read a word. Later in Mr. Jefferson's company, she became a great student, and in after years played in the companies of Edwin Booth and Mme. Modjeska.

Edwin Harley, playing character parts with the Fine Arts Films, is an old Primrose and West minstrel man, and the author of many popular songs, including "The Lighthouse by the Sea," "A Curl from the Baby's Head," and many other old-time favorites. He is 65 years old, but as bright and lively as of old, when he gaily asked conundrums of "Mistah Bones."

Much experienced as actor and stage director is Carl Formes, who received his stage education under the reigning Duke of Meiningen, Germany, and who plays a leading character part in "Old Heidelberg," filmed at the Fine Arts Films studio. Charles Lee and Hal Wilson are others at the Griffith studio who have noteworthy careers on the stage.

Spottiswoode Aitken, chief character actor at the Fine Arts studio, has had an interesting career on the stage, though his father, a devout Scotch Presbyterian of Edinburgh, had him arrested and brought home when he first essayed the work. Mr. Aitken's work in "The Clansman" marks him as one of the best of screen actors.

"DEAN OF PICTURES."

Down at Inceville is the man they call "the dean of the American stage and of pictures." His name is William H. Thompson, and those who remember Hearne's delightful "Shore Acres" have not forgotten Thompson. He is one of the best beloved of Inceville's inhabitants. He is over 70, but is a great walker, and enjoys hikes over the mountain trails, so well as fishing and hunting. He is appearing in Billie Burke's support at present, playing the Scotch uncle in "The Devil's Pepperpot."

Gertrude Claire, 65 years old, is one of Ince's chief character women. She has had a big career as a stage favorite, and will appear next week at Clune's Auditorium in "The Alien."

Joseph A. Dowling is another of the popular Inceville character men. He, too, is appearing in Billie Burke's picture. He is a Civil War veteran, and always helps in the staging of battle scenes. He was adviser-in-chief to Ince in the staging of the fights in "The Coward," which will be the first Triangle release, with Frank Keenan in the leading part. He was on the stage when the Civil War broke out, but he left in the midst of a successful season to carry a musket. He was wounded, captured and thrown into a southern prison, from which he made a thrilling escape.

ART AND ARTISTS.

BY ANTONY ANDERSON.

The Temple of Trees.

Would'st find a balm more sweet than gift of tears,
Thou who art bruised by stress of sordid things—
The dull routine, the thwarted hope that stings,
The cold ingratitude that numbs and sears?
Go forth and comfort thee where now the year's Cathedral aisles are dim: The thrush here sings
A golden psalm of joy; the bluebell swings
Its frail and fluted censer. Cast thy fears
And loose the bonds that anchor thee to care.
For here the light so gently falls it seems
A gracious benediction after prayer.
By mystic murmurs from her hidden streams,
By violets strewn where paths are trodden bare,
Thou knowest the wood will not deny thy dreams.
ANTONY ANDERSON.

In the Galleries.

With the annual exhibition of pictures and sculptures by the California Art Club the first week in October the art season may be said to be fairly opened. After that great event we shall have a steady hum of exhibitions, big and little, in studios and galleries. The club's exhibition opens to the public October 5. Meanwhile, though most of the studios are closed to visitors, all the artists being busy indoors and out, the lover of art need not feel himself completely bereft of his great need. He may stroll into the various picture galleries of Los Angeles, where he will find interesting new works from the brushes of local painters, with now and then, perhaps, a genuine "old master."

Among the new pictures in the gallery at Exposition Park is a very striking study of New York's teeming East Side, "Cliff Dwellers," by George Bellows—decidedly the best canvas by this artist ever shown in Los Angeles. I did not care much for his recent exhibition of portraits, for whatever Bellows is or is not, he is not a portrait painter. "Cliff Dwellers" is superb in color and tone, an amazing tour de force in composition and the handling of paint.

In the same gallery Carl Schmidt of Santa Barbara shows a vigorous study, "Rocky Headlands;" Gerald Cassidy, a brilliant "Portrait of a Young Girl;" Jean Mannheim, a charming head of a child, with many refinements in grays; William Wendt, a strong snow scene. A spring picture by William Keith, a play of greens in a halcyon atmosphere, is also shown.

At Kanst's the searcher will find half a dozen good landscapes by Maurice Braun of San Diego, studies of sunlight and atmosphere—"Among the Hills," "The Cloud," "Springtime" and so on—and three excellent pictures by our own Benjamin Brown, studies of the Grand Canyon, of poppy fields and of the vivid blue of lupin. Here may also be seen a beautiful picture of massy hills, "Moonrise," by Hanson Puthuff, and "Eagle Rock Valley" by the same hand. Some new pictures of the sea by Frank W. Cuprien have just been hung, and their fine sincerity will appeal to the lover of nature.

Byrens's gallery contains many landscapes by Granville Redmond, that able and brilliant technician; some delightful things by Maurice Braun, a noble study of fawn-colored hills by Hanson Puthuff; a delightful child portrait in water-color, an Indian head, by Gerald Cassidy; a strong study of Indian life, "The Weaver of Rugs," by Warren Rollins; a large study of sea and cypresses, full of sentiment, by Martin Jackson.

Six or eight new canvases, none of them important, by Jules Pages are to be found at the Steckel, while the Blanchard contains pictures from various hands, some Californian, some European.

Traveling Exhibition.

Forty-four canvases have been contributed by the members of the California Art Club for the traveling exhibition that Miss Alma May Cook will soon have in charge. They will be shown in many cities, big and little, throughout the Southwest, and cannot fail to become of great educational and esthetic help to the many smaller cities that have an abiding interest in art matters, but have no access to pictures. Miss Cook will deliver lectures, when desired, and will show lantern slides of the pictures.

To minimize expense, most of the canvases that have been sent in are small, though not a few are of considerable size. But the word small does not mean insignificant, for the value of art is not measured in square inches. Many of these little pictures are decidedly important, ranking among the best things the artists have done. It seems to have been the aim of the painters to show nothing that is cheap or ill-considered, and therefore this traveling show takes rank with others that are now "touring" the country.

The contributors are C. A. Fries, Marie Johnson, Helen G. Norton, Charles A. Rogers, Kathryn Leighton, Nell Brooker Mayhew, Theodore B. Modra, Aime B. Titus, Bessie E. Hazen, Harry Lewis Bailey, William V. Cahill, May Mott-Smith, S. M. B. Dando, Henry Varnum Poor, Aaron E. Kilpatrick, Benjamin Brown, John Hubbard Rich, Arthur B. Dodge, Hanson Puthuff, Maurice Braun, Guy Rose, Donna Schuster, William Silva, William Wendt, Julia Bracken Wendt, Jack Wilkinson Smith, James E. McBurney, J. H. Sharp, Henrietta M. Shore, Ernest Browning Smith, Arthur Hurtt, Duncan Gleason, Anna B. Hills, Sydney Dale Shaw, Anne M. Bremer, and Frederick R. Miner.

Pencilings and Water Colors.

J. W. Theiss, who handles water color with much strength and discretion, has many admirable studies to show for a summer spent out of doors in various "sketchable" parts of Southern California—Mt. Wilson, Kenwood, Topanga Canyon and Portuguese Bend.

Topanga is a new discovery for Theiss, and one which has filled him with enthusiasm. One of his best hill studies comes from there, green slopes suffused with early morning light. Mt. Wilson is an old love, studied innumerable times at dawn, at midday and in the hours of late afternoon. Some of the wood interiors that the artist brought with him from Kenwood are delightful, shimmering with light and delicately gray and purple with shadows.

But even more attractive and interesting than the water colors are the pencil drawings that Theiss has accomplished throughout the summer, exquisite little studies of landscapes and flowers. They have a beautiful refinement of feeling and technique. The technique, indeed, is ingenious and varied, for Thiess is always making new experiments with his pencil.

It is to be hoped that some of these pencilings will be exhibited, in a group, very soon, in the gallery at Exposition Park. If shown, they would undoubtedly attract much favorable attention from the discriminating. In this day of loudly insistent art, it is a pleasure to come upon work done for the sheer love of loveliness.

California Art Club.

The California Art Club's exhibition, the sixth in its eventful history, will open with a private view in the gallery at Exposition Park on the first Monday in October, and will be held throughout the month. Only pictures and sculptures never before exhibited in Los Angeles will be shown.

Some changes have been made in the juries of acceptance. The jury on paintings now stands as follows: Gardner Symons, Fernand Lungren, Hanson Puthuff, Aaron E. Kilpatrick, Jack Wilkinson Smith, Duncan Gleason, William Wendt. The jury on sculptures: Julia Bracken Wendt, Maud Daggett.

The club's usefulness in the development of art in Southern California has been incalculable, and the sixth exhibition will convince the most skeptical that art in Los Angeles has become something of great value and importance in the growth and life of our city. The works of our painters and sculptors compare favorably with those of any other similar body of men and women in the country, and our artists do not ask for leniency of judgment because they live and labor in "the West." Los Angeles is not the provincial city of the popular eastern superstition.

Stickney School.

C. P. Townsley, director of the Pasadena Stickney School of Art, has just returned from Carmel-by-the-Sea, where he has been conducting summer school of outdoor painting. He reports that the enrollment of pupils at Carmel was most gratifying, and that next year he hopes and expects to double the number.

New and important plans have been formulated and completed for the Stickney school, whose second year opens tomorrow. The classes in painting and drawing will be conducted by Jean Mannheim and C. P. Townsley, as heretofore, and two new departments will be added, Miss Maud Daggett will take charge of a class in modeling, and Miss Edith Verdin will have a class in design and decoration.

An interesting and permanent adjunct of the school is Antonio Corsi, the world-famous model, who has posed for many of the greatest artists of Europe and America, and whose face and figure may be seen in many renowned pictures. Corsi's wardrobe of costumes is astonishingly large, so that he can pose, at a moment's notice, for anything and everything. At Carmel, where he posed through the summer for various painters, he added several new costumes to his extensive collection.

Art in Arizona.

It is the intention of the Arizona State Fair Commission to hold the best art exhibition, at its approaching fair, ever given in the State. Five women, members of the Woman's Club of Phoenix, comprise the Art Committee—Mrs. H. B. Wilkinson, Mrs. W. C. Foster, Mrs. Dwight B. Heard, Mrs. W. K. James and Mrs. C. F. Ainsworth.

Prizes will be given for oil paintings, water colors, black and white drawings, sculpture, ceramics and photography. Artists desiring to submit works for the exhibition must file their names before October 30 with the secretary of the Art Exhibit Committee, Mrs. W. K. James, East McDowell road, Phoenix, Ariz., who will also mail circulars to those desiring information.

The competitive exhibition is open to all artists.

Fine Arts Journal.

An article of unusual interest and importance is that by A. G. Richards in Fine Arts Journal for September, "Creating a World Famous Street," wtih twelve illustrations, one of them, the frontispiece, being Jules Guerin's plan of Michigan boulevard, Chicago, connecting the North and South Side.

Evelyn Marie Stuart tells "The Story of Royal Copenhagen," with twenty accompanying pictures. Mahlstick writes of current art topics in London; the editor of Fine Arts Journal of the galleries and artists of Chicago; Ernest C. Mobley of "An American Art Revolutionist" (Whistler.)

This "Chicago Plan Number" of the magazine is even more attractive in its makeup than preceding numbers.

ART NOTES.

The Society of Modern Art, New York, issues a monthly journal entitled M. A. C. (Modern Art Collector,) whose color posters and designs are strikingly original and beautiful. The man interested in modern poster work cannot fail to be interested in this valuable magazine.

Dorothy Visju Anderson, who has spent several winters in Los Angeles, will hold a private view of her new landscape paintings in tempera on the evening of October 2, in her studio at Palmer Square, Chicago.

Frank Cuprien has just returned to his studio at Laguna Beach, after a week of "seeing the fair" in San Francisco. He spent several days at Monterey and Carmel, bringing away a few sketches of sea and rocky coast as souvenirs.

On Friday, September 17, an exhibition of the etchings and water colors of Robert Eskridge of Chicago opened in the Little Gallery, California Quadrangle, in the Panama-California Exposition at San Diego.

Elisabeth Duéll succeeds Rose Lippincott as assistant curator in the art gallery at Exposition Park. Miss Lippincott has gone to New York and Chicago to study art.

OVER THE SEA.

Gov. Fredrich A. J. von Bernhardi, who has been assigned to a field command by the Kaiser, is one of the best-known military writers of Germany. In a book entitled "Germany and the Next War," written in 1912, he forecast many of the main features of the present campaigns. Before going to the front he was commander of a home army corps.

Sir Arthur Markham who, since the beginning of the war, has been a relentless assailant and critic of Lord Kitchener in the House of Commons, is a rich ironmaster and coal mine owner, and as his wealth enabled him to extort a baronetcy from the Cabinet six years ago, he is very independent of his party and of its leaders.

Emperor William of Germany hates the "Marseillaise." Since he came to the throne William II has never allowed the French national hymn to be played at his court or at any of the State theaters or by any German naval or military band. If he entertained the French Ambassador at dinner the musicians used to be told to play the "Marche de St. Denis."

Alejandro Perello, head of the Herederos de Juan Dorra Company, Barcelona, the man who makes sausages for the King of Spain, and Juan D. Zaracondugi of the Spanish-Switzerland Automobile Company, who supplies King Alfonso with the automobiles he drives himself, are in New York. The former has been buying supplies for his firm and the latter is merely here to see th country.

TOGETHER LET US GO

Downtown to Inspect Olive Gray and Other Exquisite Tints; also Things Chic and Charming.

Now is the time to buy:

The luggage which you are likely to need for your fall trip to the expositions. For-less prices in a big sale this week.

Practical Suggestion.

The Good Housekeeper has adopted the plan of affixing to the legs of one kitchen chair a set of rubber-tipped door stops. By this means the chair is raised to a height which makes it convenient for use when sitting to pare vegetables, and even to wash dishes or to iron.

'Way Down.

One of the popular stores on Broadway is holding a basement sale the coming week, just to show that prices there are as low down as the location. Something special in every department.

Cut Themselves!

So sharp that they have cut their own prices in two and sometimes in three! That is what is declared regarding those scissors on sale in a popular store on Upper Broadway. So little in price are these scissors—really imported ones they are—that it would cost about as much to have old scissors sharpened as to buy new. There are many kinds in the assortment, which includes even those pretty goldy little stork embroidery scissors—the sort every girl or woman has "always wanted" if she does not own a pair.

Charged to Advertising.

The cost of advertising goes to your credit, if you are so fortunate as to secure one of those Fashion Show gowns or suits, which are this week offered for half or less than half original price. You see these garments were used for advertising purposes during the Fashion Show and therefore it is possible to deduct that amount from the price. Maybe you were one of the very ones who saw and coveted one of those handsome creations during the exhibition and now you may be one of the very ones to take advantage of the opportunity of the reduction in price.

Airy Fabric at Invisible Price.

Do you remember that sale of chiffons at a price so small as to be almost invisible? Perhaps you were one who reached that chiffon-mecca just too late, as I did myself and have been regretting ever since that you did not obtain at the so-little price enough of that material for your fall blouses, new sleevery and the many uses to which chiffon may be put. For once, opportunity has decided to knock twice—and we may make good the deficit which occurred to us in that last sale. I mean to "shop early" this time, though.

Velvet Suits at Cloth Price.

What do you think of that! Velvet suits for the price of cloth ones. It is an offering in that big store on Lower Broadway. Another opportunity for the early comer.

Sleeves are Laughing.

Sleeves, for long a mere adjunct of the blouse or bodice, one of the component parts of a dress and thus having as little individuality or private estate as a husband-bossed wife, have now come into independence. And such airs they do take on! Some of them even arrogate to themselves more trimming and bedeckment than does any other part of the dress. They flare at the wrist—terribly high-tempered—or they pouch at the elbow, or cut up queer capers in the way of drapery, while some even consort with extraneous materials which are puffed and plaited and inset to form fullness either above or below the elbow. There is even a pocket sleeve which seems to own to a more or less visible pocket-like affair at just about the bend of the arm. Oh, sleeves, after such long and meek subjection, are acting scandalously independent!

Let Children Paint.

Whatever your ideas regarding cosmetics for women, let the children paint. Bristling, are you not—all opposition. Well, I do not mean that kind at all. I mean let them amuse themselves with painting books so that any possible spark of artistic talent which may lurk in the depths may be brought out. And lest you say—"Oh, just a way to spend more money!" the books for such experimentation are for sale for so little that you would be ashamed to protest against their purchase.

"Distributed."

That is the very word the advertising man uses in the copy wherewith he tells about that shoe sale. "Distributed" is a most discriminating word to use in just that place, too; for the prices are such as to amount to "distribution" (almost), rather than sale. You are certain to find the place, if you scrutinize the advertising.

Grate Fires are Great.

These first cool evenings are the just-when for grate fires. How many, stingily refraining from building fires at the first intimation of cold, find themselves possessed with long drawn out cases of the sniffs—not dangerous, perhaps, but not exactly enjoyable. On the other hand the grate fire is enjoyable, and the preventive which is better than cure, is strikingly illustrated. The time for a fire is when fire is wanted, no matter whether it is midwinter or midsummer or merely early fall. Besides, if your fireplace lacks a grate, you may buy one cheaper, just now.

Wanted! a Name.

I wish some one would invent a name for those boys who dress in the same extreme of style which has been defined as characteristic of "chickens." The boys, I mean, who wear hats as high crowned as are the quaint Colonial chimney pots, and collars of the most extreme type, held by scarfs still more extreme, and who always clothe their extremities in the most extreme type of trousers. I am not criticising them, you understand—far be it from me to criticise anyone—but I want them named, since so, well —I will not characterize the term "chicken," which seems to me too vulgar to even characterize—but anyhow since such a name has been conferred, I want a masculine name of equal opprobrium.

Each Side of Five.

When I was given a peep behind the boxes, at the hats to go into that wondrous sale on Monday morning, I could not believe my eyes. "What!" I exclaimed, although I well know and so do you, the unbelievable values given in the past by that milliner who is swift to plan how to make for far less a hat the exact replica of a Paris moled. Her sales have been genuine millinery events to those who know the high class of the offerings, but this one! "Not that high crowned one with the white brush and the antique silver bead ornament"—and I put both a question mark and an exclamation after my inquiry, for the hat was like one just published in that voguish magazine. "Surely not that velvet one with the white plume stemmed in what looks like an entire ermine." But that Aladdinish milliner nodded "yes." "But it cannot be that the Puritan one of hatter's plush, trimmed round with ermine and having an ornament of goura—" Again she nodded "yes." But there is one with a chinchilla feather flower band —whole orchestra in fact—and oh, my! I actually believe that velvet turban has a burnt goose upstick!" and I looked inquiringly. Do you wonder I say "Monday morning?" They cannot possibly last long. Why those hats are as good looking as any Paris models for so many times more in price that the mind is lost in multiplication table.

For Milady's Moods.

Box coats are as good as any others in the present diversity of styles.

Garnet is said to be a leading color with some of the Paris dressmakers.

Gray-blue faille silk is a charming material for a ceremonious afternoon suit.

Mixtures and Scotch tweeds are much liked fabrics for everyday separate coats.

Braiding and covered buttons trim many day gowns.

Tailored suits this fall will reveal the lines of the figure.

Simplicity will continue to be the keynote of the fashions.

Long mantle coats of velvet and fur are very picturesque.

Grosgrain silk promises to be a favorite silk in the fall, though it can hardly be recommended for young girls.

Braiding appears in the oddest places on the new dresses—around the armholes and on the belts and pockets.

The backs and fronts of all gowns and coats are as different as possible.
OLIVE GRAY.

"THE SLINGERY."

BY JENNIE VAN ALLEN.

"What does Aunt Anna keep behind that curtain?

A thousand times a Wee Maid asked the question and a thousand times a mother answered:

"That's where Aunt Anna keeps her "Slingery."

"What is a 'Slingery?' Somehow I never can remember.

"A 'Slingery' is a place where we 'sling' things out of sight.

"Does anybody ever go into a 'Slingery?'

"Very seldom! But, of course, Aunt Anna goes into her own 'Slingery' whenever she pleases. But she wants every one else to keep out!

"Is that the reason she keeps the beautiful flag in front of her 'Slingery?'

"I presume she thinks it makes a good "front" to the place where she 'slings' things she don't want people to see.

"You know its edged with ball fringe and once I peeked between the balls but it was so dark back of the curtain that I couldn't see a thing.

"Oh, my darling, you must never peek into people's 'Slingerys!' Its naughty to pry into secrets. Never try to see what's behind the curtain and you mustn't ask Aunt Anna what she keeps I nher "Slingery."

One day the Wee Maid lifted the wonderful curtain men call "The Life Everlasting."

Too late Aunt Anna learned that the Wee Maid had longed to step behind the flag and see the wonders of the "Slingery."

And often in the twilight, she wonders if the Wee Maid has stood on the rim of a crescent moon and looked behind the Stars and Stripes. She wonders if she has seen the old boxes filled with trumpery, the scraps of wire, the piles of chips, the rusty stove pipe and odds and ends of her auntie's "Slingery."

Every life should have its "Slingery."

A place where we "sling" our sorrows and disappointments. A place where we hide the dreams that never came true—the romance that was cheap and tawdry—the hopes that died in our youth—the mistakes of our lives, our griefs and all the pain that has riven our hearts.

And in front of our "Slingery" we should hang our most beautiful banner —the banner emblazoned with courage and confidence and power.

There's an old rhym my mother taught her children.

"Let not your friend your secrets know
"Lest your friend become your foe,
"For then your foe your secrets know.

Woe be to us, if in a moment of weakness, we lift the curtain of our "Slingery" and let any eyes, however tender, look within and all "our secrets know." There is no one we so much fear as the one to whom we have revealed ourselves. The great menace of our lives is the unguarded moment when our lips betray us.

There are human vultures who follow people to the grave that they may enter the "Slingery" that hid the secrets of their lives. It is said that after babyhood, no eye ever saw the mis-shapen foot of a great poet. But for years a man was obsessed to see it and when he knew his friend was dead, he went into his room and locked the door. And while the poet's body was still warm with life, he lifted the sheet and looked—and looked and looked until his eyes were satisfied.

"I knew her when she was a girl!" and a wicked tongue told a story of forgotten follies.

Pitilessly this gossip opened the closed door of a "Slingery" and the light of today revealed the rubbish of a good woman's life.

"I used to know him when he was poor as poverty. His father was a drunkard and they were all a shiftless crowd—all but him and he starved his way through college!

The harsh, jealous voice retold a story of family shame and early hardships. He prowled through this honorable man's "Slingery" because he knew him in his youth. He had no praise for the lad who had stuck his claws into solid rock and climbed a precipice into the splendor of a high altitude.

There are people who invite their friends, yea even their enemies into their "Slingeries." They march their tragedies back and forth as if they were soldiers on parade. They sing their swan song to whomsoever will listen. They bring out their family skeletons and dangle them until their bones rattle. They pull the sawdust out of their dolls. They uncover all their trash. There is nothing hidden, even in the most secret corner of their "Slingery."

When first bidden to a "Slingery" people are crazed with curiosity. They rush in like tidal waves on the Bay of Fundy. They snatch at the curtain and tear it into rags. With vandal hands they touch the most precious things in life.

Sated they go forth and the mistress of the "slingery" cannot woo them to enter her portals again, until she sings a new song or paints a new picture.

Let us keep our "Slingery" inviolate. Let us go into it alone and drag out each guilty secret into the clear sunlight. Let us burn them with fire and scatter the ashes until we remember them no more forever. Let us keep our alabaster box of precious memories unbroken.

And then let us shut the door and seal it with the great seal of silence that shall last until the end of time.

BITS OF VERSE.

Life's Song.

I think of thee—
When kindly night is falling,
When star to star is calling,
When moon and sky in quiet hours descend,
When o'er my head the azure heavens bend;
In dusk or dawn, in travail or in strife,
In all the golden interludes of life—
I think of thee.

I think of thee—
When day's long tasks are o'er,
In summer silence by the vineclad door;
In busy throngs and haunts of teeming care,
In gentle moments where no shadows fare;
In light and dark, in dusk and dawn for eye,
When morning breaks, when twilight haunts the sky—
I think of thee.

I think of thee—
When round me thunders rattle,
When I stand forth to face and fight the battle;
In hours of rest, in journey or in playing,
In moments filled with fancies gently straying;
In hope, in trust, in courage, dread and doubt;
In deep, in dreams when star by star goes out—
I think of thee.

The Sunshine of Life.

Life's what you make it—make it a smile,
Life's what you make it—make it worth while,
All that the ages know, all that they teach—
Life's to serve and not merely to preach,
Life's what you make it—make it a song;
Love is the answer, dear; live and grow strong!

Life's what you make it—make it a dream,
Life's what you make it—make it a gleam,
Not in the darkness weave patterns of gloom,
But, at the sunshine of life set your loom.
Fast as the shuttles fly, line after line,
Guiding the pattern a hand that's divine!

Life's what you make it—make it a grace,
Life's what you make it—make it a place
Worth while to linger in, worth while to keep Sweet as a memory, constant and deep;
Happy in lovingness, tender with cheer—
Make it of sunshine and not of the tear!
—[Bentztown Bard.

At the Twilight Hour.

She sits by the window reading,
In the last red glow of the day;
When the sun, like some monarch's ruby,
Is vanishing swift away.
And her hands, that are worn with working,
Rest light on the printed page;
While her mind forgets want and sorrow
And toiling and care and age.

She sits by the window reading,
And the day that is almost done
Lights her face with a golden glory,
Sent down by the dying sun.
And her heart, that is tired, maybe,
And weary and worn with pain,
Responds to some writer's message,
Like a plant to the fragrant rain.

In the Afterglow.

Mother o' mine, in the afterglow
Of mothering years, I love you so;
For loving me e'er life I knew,
When next your heart a new life grew;
Loving me on into fair childhood,
When I so little understood
The long, hard way we all must go,
Mother o' mine, I love you so.

Loving me, too, when life so sweet
Tempted my wayward, girlish feet
Away from paths of truth and right
To paths that lead to sin's dark night;
Winning me back with loving tone
To ways that you had made your own
By struggle and stress and pain and prayer,
By love's own cords you held me there.

Mother o' mine, 'tis mine to take
The burdensome load, the stress, the ache,
That come in motherhood's fair years,
The joy, the pain, the love, the tears;
'Tis mine to give what you gave me.
Mother o' mine, I would faithful be
To the highest note in the song you taught
My girlish lips, the music fraught
With all the mother hopes and fears,
That fill to the brim the mothering years.

Mother o' mine, in the afterglow
Of motherhood's years, I thank you so
For gifts to me from out your heart,
At thoughts that rise my hot tears start;
God give me ways to make you know
How great is my love before you go
Away to rest from your mothering;
I would remove life's every sting,
And give you rest in the afterglow,
For, mother o' mine, I love you so.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., through the Rockefeller bureau of social hygiene, has sent an $18,000 check to Miss Katherine D. Davis, commissioner of corrections of New York City, toward the cost of erecting a hospital for drug habitues on Riker's Island. This, in addition to a donation of $10,000 by Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt and other contributions, will enable the commission to go ahead with construction work at once.

Mrs. Joseph Fish of Chicago, president of the Miriam Club, has given the double three-story building at Nos. 4811-15 Champion avenue, Chicago, for a club home for the members, who are self-supporting Jewish girls.

The former homes at No. 4501 Forrestville avenue and No. 436 Bowen avenue will be consolidated in the new quarters. The directors and friends of the club have supplied funds for remodeling and furnishing the building, which is equipped with sleeping porches and other modern comforts.

Fifty-five resident members can be accommodated in the new building.

The givers who some months ago provided property with which to endow the Nathaniel Colver lectureship have now made a gift to the University of Chicago which will eventually endow the Colver-Rosenberger lecture fund. Mr. and Mrs. Jesse L. Rosenberger, of Chicago have made this provision, the income from which will provide the Colver-Rosenberger lectures as well as the publication of the lectures when desirable. These lectures, according to the letter of gift, are designed to add to the sum of practical knowledge and to aid in the solution of the more vital problems of human life. The lectures delivered on this foundation are to be kept in the field of sciences relating to human society and welfare and the particular topics to be discussed are to be determined by the university's board of trustees. The lecturers are to be persons of eminence in scholarship or of such other qualifications as make them authorities in their respective subjects.

The Rothschild Memorial Synagogue Beth El, recently dedicated in Philadelphia, was the gift of Edward L. Rothschild, a retired merchant, to the congregation in memory of his parents, Lippman and Henrietta Rothschild.

The new synagogue is the most elegantly appointed Hebrew house of worship in West Philadelphia. It has been constructed of granite, trimmed with Indiana limestone. The shrine with its beautiful columns and caps is a study in beauty and dignity. The main entrance consists of three arches, supported upon columns with ornamental carved caps. The large arched windows of the main auditorium afford ideal light and ventilation for the new building.

A sermon to his heirs was a part of the will of James H. Allen, which was filed in St. Louis and disposes of a $3,000,000 estate. The estate goes to the widow and five children.

The will contains these sentences:

"I had intended to make some special bequests, but will not do so, as I have a promise from each one of my children to use one-half of the property received from my estate for charitable and Christian work; and that with the remaining one-half they promise to try to make or earn other property to be used for good Christian purposes.

"All that we have belongs to the Lord. It is the Lord's property, and He will hold us to a strict account for the way we use it.

"The devil is smarter than all mankind put together, and will always lead us astray if left to our weak selves. So our only hope is in the Lord."

She is as quick-witted as she is quick physically, and no social gathering of Inceville people is complete without the presence of the genial Ida.

Harry Booker, 65 years old, has been in the show business alll his life. He was at one time manager for the famous Mme. Janauschek, the dramatic star of other days. He was also leading man for Frohman. He doesn't at all look his age, but is proud of it, nevertheless. In one of his strenuous stunts with Murray, at the Keystone, they offered to give him a double, but no-sir-ee, no doubles for him! He does all the hard falls and other stunts that anybody at the Keystone does.

Many of the old actors among the "extras" have life stories of absorbing interest. There is a man at the Griffith studio who was once a State Senator in the Middle West, and there is an Alaskan explorer who served with Capt. Peary in his north expeditions. At the National is a man who assisted Thomas A. Edison when the latter was toiling over the invention of the phonograph; and there is an opera singer of one-time note at the Morosco photoplay studio who tells you yet of Campinini's triumphs and of Patti's glory.

POLITICIANS, STATESMEN.

Alvey A. Adee, Second Assistant Secretary of State, started last week on his forty-sixth year in the diplomatic service of the United States. His connection with the State Department was established when he was appointed secretary of legation at Madrid September 9, 1870. He was under Gen. Daniel E. Sickles, then Minister to the Spanish court, and served as charge d'affaires in the latter's absénce. He was made chief of the diplomatic bureau in Washington in 1878. Mr. Adee was made Third Assistant Secretary of State soon afterward and 1886 was appointed Second Assistant Secretary of State, the position which he has since held. It is his duty to scrutinize all diplomatic correspondence to see that no precedents are violated and that no undesirable precedents are created. As official letter writer of the government, Mr. Adee has drafted every kind of note, treaty, convention, protocol and proclamation.

Romulo S. Naon, Ambassador from Argentina, may become a candidate for the Presidency of his republic, according to statements made in Washington by his friends. The Ambassador will leave for a visit to his home and his friends said that when he reached Argentina his name would be brought forward in the campaigns preliminary to the national elections next year. Ambassador Naon has figured prominently in Washington in the activities of Latin-American diplomats to aid in restoration of order in Mexico.

Senator James Hamilton Lewis of Illinois, will sail for Berlin to urge the German authorities to release a number of Jews having relatives in this country who are held prisoners by the Germans. It is understood that the Senator believes the only way to obtain the release of the men in whom he is interested is to go to the German authorities and to present personally his plea for their release, and to offer such guarantees as to the future conduct of the Jews as will satisfy the German authorities that the freedom of the men will not embarrass the German government.

Republic.

Mae Josephine Bennett, the San Francisco exposition art model who is reproducing several of the fair statues this week at the Republic, has proved such a big drawing card that Manager Albert Watson has decided to hold her over as the headliner for the coming bill. The fact that Miss Bennett was used by many of the artists as a model when they were working on the statues which have helped to make the exposition famous has enabled her to reproduce the beautiful sculpture with the most realistic fidelity.

A travesty on the dancing craze called "Tango Troubles," is the offering which is to be offered by Lester and Dolly on the new bill and others are "The boy with the golden banjo," George de Alma; Damon and Lawrence, a singing and dancing turn; William Burnell and company with a sketch, "The Double Standard," and Joe Bennett, black-face comedian. The feature photoplay will be "A Fool There Was" with popular Theda Bara in the "vampire" role.

The North Dakota Drill team, flower of the navy, consists of a squad of brawny, agile young men, who give a spectacular drill. The La Salle Opera Company comes with some pleasing musical numbers; and Brown and Blyler, recently of the Follies, have a piano act and some songs that are said to be most pleasing.

Others will be the Gregorys, with their "Ozark Folks;" the Taylor Triplets, in stunts; Mendel and Nagel, Italian Street Musicians, and Rae Snell, the classic dancer.

Prof. Fessenden of Boston claims to have invented a contrivance for sending wireless messages from battleships to submarines at a distance of thirty-two miles under water. By experiments he hopes to increase the distance very considerably. He states that the appliance can also detect the sound of submarine propellers at a distance of two miles, which can be increased to five miles by means of a sound-amplifying contrivance. This, he says, would be useful in detecting enemy submarines.

IN THE LIMELIGHT.

Capt. James H. Glennon has been detailed by Secretary Daniels to take charge of the Washington navy yard and the naval gun factory there, to relieve Capt. Edward W. Eberle, transferred to Annapolis, Md., as superintendent of the Naval Academy. Capt. Glennon has had wide experience with gun forgings and kindred subjects, and is regarded as one of the best ordnance authorities in the navy. Ordnance has been his specialty since he graduated from the Naval Academy.

Judge Richard E. Burke of the Chicago criminal court is skeptical of the proposition that criminals can be cured by surgery. Several surgeons argued the matter with him, and of the result he said: "None of the surgeons made much of an impression on me."

Nevertheless, 400 veteran employees of the Great Northern Railroad celebrated his birthday anniversary at Grand Forks, N. D. Mrs. James J. Hill and L. W. Hill and his wife went to Grand Forks to represent the financier.

Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, the first woman in this country to receive the degree of D.D. and M.D., is now in her sixty-eighth year, vigorous and forceful. She was brought to this country from England at the age of 4 years by her parents. The family settled in Massachusetts, but later moved to Michigan and built a log cabin in the woods. At 15 she became a teacher, earning $2 a week. She entered Albion College three years later, and decided to become a preacher. After studying for three years she went to Boston, where, in 1878, she graduated from the Theological School of Boston. For years she had a preacher's license before she was finally ordained by the Methodist Episcopal church, being the first woman to receive ordination by that denomination. Meantime she studied and secured a physician's degree. She is the only woman who ever preached in Gustav Vasa Cathedral, state church of Sweden, and the first ordained woman to preach in Berlin, Copenhagen, Christiania, Amsterdam and London.

John D. Rockefeller has informed his New York shoemaker that he does not intend to stand for a $3 boost per pair in the price of shoes. He returned a new pair of fall shoes along with a bill for $18, noting thereon he had paid $15 per pair for forty years and that he will not pay more now. He may wear his old shoes this winter.

James McBey, who has created an unusual impression in New York by his etchings, began seriously to devote himself to the art only four or five years ago. Like many another, it was intended by his parents that he should follow a prosaic life in which nothing ever happens. He was born at Newburg, a fishing village on the rough coast of Aberdeenshire. McBey was placed at a desk in a bank in the city of Aberdeen at the age of 15. He has never had any regular art education. An English translation of Lalanne's "Gravures a L'eau Forte" turned him to etching. Having mastered, from the book, the general principles of the craft, he proceeded to put them into practice. The turning point in his life was when he went to the continent in 1910. There is a Dutch series of his plates, showing naturally the influence of Rembrandt and the other masters of Holland, bearing the date of that year. In 1911 he was in Spain and did his Spanish set, which shows Goya's influence. Some English subjects engaged his attention in 1912. But it was in Morocco, 1913, that he found himself in his element. There is a London series to represent 1914.

The Way to Live.

The way to live! Before I die
  That is the art that I would know;
To be myself to every eye,
  To let my thoughts in actions show.

To spurn the popular veneer
  And wear the simple garb of truth,
Nor seek to hide each passing year
  By posing in the dress of youth.

To live as what I really am,
  Not what I think may please the throng,
To turn my back on every sham,
  Indifferent never to a wrong.

The way to live! Before I die
  This is the art that I would learn,
To be myself to every eye,
  To claim no joy I cannot earn.

BRITISH WOMEN'S WAR ECONOMY.

Will Stop Entertaining in Restaurants.

No Following of Extremes in Fashions.

Also Restrict Excessive Use of Mourning.

[New York World:] "The silver bullets," with which England hopes to win the war, and which she must supply in a large measure to Russia, France, Italy and Servia, are being so wantonly wasted under the old order of things in England that national economy is now the greatest immediate issue of the whole British nation.

Men and women are to be persuaded and, if necessary, coerced into rigid economy. Parliament has organized its War Saving Committee, which is issuing pamphlets to the people throughout the empire, while in London two other societies have been formed with the same object in view, the Women's War Economy League, which has been launched by the Dowager Lady Wimborne and half a dozen Duchesses and other peeresses, and the Women's Dress Economy League, which appears to have sponsorship less august, but which has already been sufficiently successful in its object to close a number of the big dressmaking establishments.

The Parliamentary War Savings Committee is asking for a pledge toward economy in a list of expenditures which it says has been drawn up by experts before being adopted officially. This pledge binds the signers, men as well as women, for the period of the war:

Not to build a house for personal occupancy.

Not to give any presents except in the form of War Loan vouchers.

Not to use motor cars unless for charity or on official business.

Not to entertain in the restaurants.

To ignore the changes of fashion.

To limit expenditure on mourning attire and on funerals.

To discharge all servants except those absolutely necessary.

To abolish all "treating" and make the nation's motto be: "No drinks till we have won."

The Parliamentary War Savings Committee frankly states its object to be to force all wage earners in the country to divide their energies among the soldiers, the munition workers, and the laborers upon the land, women to be provided for in this manner of employment the same as men. Waste to be eliminated, not only in the kitchen and in personal adornment, but by the reduction of imports from other countries which use up the nation's wealth and take it away from home circulation, while the cultivation of the land is to be carefully fostered, and every acre utilized.

The aristocracy is urged to utilize the flower gardens for vegetables, but in this respect Lord Norton has anticipated the Board of Agriculture. At his ancestral seat, Hams, in Warwickshire, which has been in the family since the reign of Charles I, he has already a fine potato crop on the front lawn where the flowers used to bloom.

The Women's War Economy League has sprung into life through the urgings of the Parliamentary War Savings Committee, which, from offices at No. 12 Downing street, issues its daily propaganda to the newspapers. Lady Wimborne's society is trying to get in its work in the field most fruitful for the war loan—among the 2,000,000 people who spend one-half of the total income of the whole country, as against the 43,000,000 inhabitants who spend the other half of the nation's total income. She is assisted by Lady Juliet Duff, a war widow, whose husband, if he were alive, would now bear the title of Sir Robin Assheton-Smith, and who bequeathed to her and his small son an income amounting to nearly $1,000,000 a year. Her mother, Lady Ripon, is enthusiastically supporting the league, as well as the Duchess of Sutherland, the Duchess of Beaufort, the Marchioness of Tullibardine, the Countess of Pembroke, Viscountess Ridley, Lady Islington, Lady Robert Cecil and Mrs. George Keppel.

Mrs. Asquith, the wife of the Prime Minister, and Mrs. Reginald McKenna, the wife of the Chancellor of the Exchequer, are recent "joiners," although both of them have such a weakness for clothes that it is suspected their membership in the Economy League will not affect the dressmakers who minister to their desires.

This league has only six items in its pledge, instead of the eight of the Parliamentary Committee, but the members have promised to limit themselves as to all luxuries, especially those which mean money spent on imported goods. They will have nothing to do with the new fashions, will give up their motor cars except for urgent business or charity, will renounce entertaining in the restaurants, restrict their meals at home, discharge all men servants except those ineligible for war service, and, furthermore, diligently strive to influence their friends and dependents to do the same.

Lady Juliet Duff was formerly one of the best dressed women in London. She announces that she is no longer to indulge in evening or ball costumes, and will give no more large dinner parties. One or two intimate friends may be invited in to lunch or dinner to a frugal meal of two courses instead of five. Such a thing as a holiday at the seaside is not to be tolerated, since it means money spent on railroad fare and tips to porters, now to be classed as luxuries.

A few days after the Women's War Economy League announced its programme it had a membership of 500, and its offices at No. 36 Denison House, Westminster, have been crowded with ladies making inquiries.

In the London Times, Mr. Rochfort Maguire, a gentleman well known in society, whose wife is a sister of Viscount Peel, has made the suggestion that if the ladies want to economize on clothes they should adopt a regulation evening dress and a regulation style for their hats. In this way they could dispense with the dozen or more different gowns and hats which every lady has thought necessary to her wardrobe. The men have one style of dress for the evening, one style of hat for the afternoon, and for the country make their choice among the bowler, the Homburg, and (in summer) the straw. Why should not their wives and daughters imitate this eminently satisfactory method of dressing?

Lady Tree supports the idea and she thinks that every woman would look well dressed in an evening gown of black satin, while for daytime wear the hat question could be easily solved if everybody wore a sailor made of velvet or silk, no hat to cost a penny more than $10. There are numerous objectors, however, to Mr. Maguire's scheme, other ladies saying that no two women could ever agree on a regulation evening dress because each would want the style and color most suitable to her own beauty, while the adoption of standard hats would be even more difficult. If a standard style were accepted, the first thing a woman would do would be to stamp it with her own individuality by adding flowers, ribbon, or embroidery, and in a month nobody would recognize the uniform.

The War Office is at the same time receiving complaints that numerous women are going about in khaki uniforms who have no right to wear them, frequenting public places in short skirts and riding boots, their hair concealed under wide-brimmed felt hats, and carrying riding whips to complete the costume. As no War Office order prohibits the use of khaki uniforms, any woman who wants to be eccentric and attract attention can copy a British Officer's uniform and sport it in Regent Street, and this seems to have become the fashion among a certain class.

Lady Sarah Wilson, the Duke of Marlborough's aunt, who is another "war widow," and who has been unremitting in her hospital work for the soldiers, takes issue with the War Economy League as being entirely unnecessary, and for Mr. Rochfort Maguire's suggestion she has only ridicule. She thinks the Economy League most unjust to the dressmakers, since it would mean that they would have to throw out of employment thousands of workwomen, and would suffer financial ruin themselves. Lady Juliet Duff does not herself believe in Mr. Maguire's idea of a uniform costume for women, but she defends the Economy League's curtailment of the dressmaking business by saying that it is, after all, a non-productive industry and thus detrimental to the state under the present circumstances, when the highest authorities assert that only rigorous saving by private individuals can enable the country to meet the enormous expenditure entailed by the present gigantic war.

Lady Alexander, the wife of Sir George Alexander, the actor-manager, takes sides with Lady Sarah Wilson, saying that it would indeed be a pity if all women wore a kind of livery, and how unlovely a theater full of women in livery would be. She also pleads for the dressmakers. Worth's doors in Hanover square are shutting not to open again until after the war, if at all, and the large staff of assistants has been dismissed and sent back to Paris, there to join the ranks of the army of other dressmakers' employees returning from England during the past months.

Lady Seeley thinks that sympathy is thrown away upon the dressmakers and their assistants, since all of them could enter domestic service, which would pay them better wages and assist the state in carrying on its work at the same time. She considers that English women have at the present time too many serious matters to think about to worry their brains by trying to follow the absurd changes in the hideous fashions of dress, merely for the purpose of furnishing employment to workwomen.

An Airy Suspicion.

UNITED STATES AN OLD NATION.

STABLE GOVERNMENT FOR CENTURY AND QUARTER.

Only Two Nations in Europe Have Maintained Their Individuality for a Longer Period and no Western Country is Ruled as it was a Hundred and Twenty-five Years Ago.

[New York Times:] The United States of America is one of the oldest nations on earth. With the exception of England and Russia it is, as a present nation, older than any country in Europe. And alone in the western world, it has stood for the past 125 years with an unchanged government. Its boundaries have expanded, and its Constitution has been amended, and it has gone through civil war, but the United States is "ruled" today as it was ruled in 1789, and it is the only western nation that is.

The Constitution of the United States of America was adopted in 1789. In that year the French Revolution began. Since 1789 Europe has been remade. Among the nations four stand out as "ancient"—England, Russia, Denmark and Spain. Yet in the past century and a quarter those countries have lived through governmental changes that show beside the stability of the United States rule as exceedingly large and significant "shifts."

The changes that have taken place in the English regime are the most interesting, because they are the least known to the world at large. It is inevitable with us all that the mention of an "ancient nation," a "stable government," the "oldest country on earth" should bring the thought of England to our minds. That means England, just as the "dominion on which the sun never sets" means England, and just as "the war lord" means the Emperor of Germany, and "the tricolor" means the flag of France.

To be sure, there was a governmental upset in England in the middle of the seventeenth century, and a "revolution" in 1688. But any Englishman will point proudly back to Magna Charta and murmur magic words of 1215, in the firm assurance that here is the "ancient nation" beside which all the rest of the world is young. And even with the thought of the revolution of 1688 in our minds, it is unanswerably plain that the line of the Kings of England has ruled, uninterruptedly, a "limited monarchy" since the end of the seventeenth century.

But the government of England, as we know it today, dates its beginning from the year 1832. That is the date of the passage of the first reform bill. These bills—the first in 1832, the second in 1867, the last in 1884—shifted the government of England from Lords to Commons, from nobles and men of great property to the people themselves, changed the "limitation" of England's monarchy from a feudal to a popular right. Without revolution, the government of the country was effectively revolutionized, with no notorious or even markedly noticeable departure from the ancient "order of things," the "oldest nation" was remade.

The striking evolution of domestic government in England, which began in 1832 with the granting of the ballot to the merchants and men of small property in the realm, moved on to its final step in the "Parliament [illegible] of 1912, which took away all [illegible] pensive veto power" from the [illegible] of Lords, and left the [illegible] rulers of England. But the [illegible] ment of Great Britain has [illegible] other change. It has [illegible] its empire.

France began its revolution [illegible] the world knows, in 1789. [illegible] it has had two empires, three [illegible] of kingdoms and three republics [illegible] has executed one king and [illegible] two others, and it has forced [illegible] its two emperors to abdicate. [illegible] the final formation of the [illegible] French republic, its Cabinet has changed very nearly on an average once a year. France has [illegible] manhood suffrage. It will [illegible] adopt proportional representation [illegible] voting in the near future. [illegible] known Socialist ministries, and [illegible] included many prominent [illegible] and Radicals in various [illegible] its Cabinet.

Out of the Franco-Prussian [illegible] grew, as every one knows, the [illegible] German Empire. But the years [illegible] lay between the adoption of the [illegible] stitution of the United States and [illegible] formation of the present empire [illegible] Germany were eventful years [illegible] establishment of the German [illegible]

In 1789 there still existed in [illegible] Europe that "Holy Roman Empire" which was, as Mr. Bryce has [illegible] out, "neither holy, nor Roman, [illegible] an empire." It consisted at that [illegible] of between 350 and 400 separate [illegible] practically independent States, [illegible] reling among themselves most of [illegible] time, and presenting no sort of [illegible] "united front" to the rest of [illegible] Austria was the strongest of [illegible] States, and when in 1848 revolution broke out in both Germany and [illegible] the power of Austria put it [illegible] Prussia was jealous of Austria's [illegible] er in those days, but, at the beginning of the nineteenth century, [illegible] herself to offer much real rivalry [illegible] the southern power.

At the time of the Congress [illegible] Vienna in 1815, Prussia, however, [illegible] beginning to make her influence [illegible] among the northern states. And [illegible] Congress of Vienna, considering [illegible] possibility of creating a German [illegible] federation to replace that "Holy [illegible] man Empire" that every one [illegible] was now dead, had suggestion [illegible] Prussia to reckon with.

To the fifteen years between [illegible] and 1875 date the final establishment of four great European [illegible] France, Germany, Austro-Hungary and Italy. Republican France [illegible] militarist Germany are practically [illegible] same age. The Hapsburgs have [illegible] rulers since 1274, but their [illegible] monarchy is very young. [illegible] Italy" proclaimed its [illegible] in 1861, and with the [illegible] of Venetia from Austria in [illegible] tablished its present European [illegible] aries.

Spain is one of the ancient [illegible] doms of the world, not greatly [illegible] as a nation since the days when [illegible] dinand and Isabella formed the [illegible] dom by the union of their [illegible] Aragon and Castile. Yet Spain [illegible] become a constitutional [illegible] since the beginning of the [illegible] century, and she has done [illegible] more spectacular, and yet [illegible] erally known, than that. [illegible] years Spain was a republic. [illegible] present kingdom dates back [illegible]

The Kingdom of the Netherlands dates back to 1815, when the [illegible] of Vienna granted its national [illegible] pendence under the rule of the [illegible] of Orange. At that time the [illegible] inces known as the Austrian [illegible] lands were united to Holland [illegible] there was little sympathy of [illegible] ality, religion or racial [illegible] between the two sections of the [illegible] formed kingdom.

Greece has been an independent kingdom since 1832, Rumania [illegible] 1862, Bulgaria since 1885, [illegible] became independent in 1878, [illegible] made a constitutional monarchy [illegible] 1905. The Portuguese republic [illegible] established in 1910. Turkey's [illegible] regime is five years old.

American Walnut Dining Room Furniture

AMERICAN Walnut, often called "black walnut," first became very popular for furniture in England during the 17th century. On account of its close, even grain and lustrous texture, its beautiful markings and pleasing color, it has always been eagerly sought by master makers of furniture.

This handsome wood is again coming into its own, and is one of the many new things shown at the "California."

American Walnut is especially suitable for dining-room furniture, as it is extremely durable and does not become easily marred. The pieces illustrated above are of the "William and Mary" Period. The drawing, however, can only hint at the effect of the fine inlaid burl-walnut panels, the ebony mouldings, and the graceful curves of the stretches and bell-shaped turnings. It must be seen to be appreciated.

While this is a most exclusive and unusual suite, the price is very moderate.

The "California" leads in the display of American Walnut, as in Mahogany and Oak—all periods, finishes, grades and values. We should consider it a privilege to conduct you through our displays, which comprise seven complete floors of the newest and best in home furnishings.

The beautiful dining-room pieces illustrated above are now displayed in our window.

THE WEEK.

PARTIES, RECEPTIONS, DINNERS, WEDDINGS AND THE LIKE.

But for the presence of the Taft party in the City of the Angels last week and a few notable weddings of young debutantes, society's calendar would have little to record other than the usual comings and goings to one or the other of our expositions, which in itself would furnish many items of news. How little time remains to see these wonder cities, so long a dream, and now so soon to become a memory.

California has been hostess to all the notables, practically, in the land —Ambassadors and former Ambassadors, Governors, dignitaries and diplomats, Cabinet members, prominent artists and musicians, and many associations, drawn primarily by these expositions; they have, in nearly every case, come to Los Angeles.

But the greatest of these visitors was our former President Taft, an apparently younger, gayer Taft than was here a few years ago. Whether it is the lessening of cares or the lessening of avoirdupois that has caused the noticeable buoyancy of spirits, we know not. But he has not lost a particle of charming affability.

The former President was the embodiment of sociability at the reception given last Sunday by his sister and brother-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. W. A. Edwards, at their delightful home at No. 3406 West Adams street. The auspicious social event, which perhaps eclipsed any function of the year, was planned especially that several hundred admirers of the genial statesman might personally greet him, together with Mrs. Taft and their daughter, Miss Helen, and the Henry W. Tafts. Mrs. William Howard Taft and Miss Helen, however, were unable to attend, for the former lady of the White House is very frail, and so great have been the demands on her time and strength, incidental to her western trip, that she was compelled frequently to absent herself from public functions. Hence, the necessity of her staying at Coronado while other members of the family returned to this city.

Miss Helen Taft, who is a graduate of Bryn Mawr, and her friends are ing personality, and her friends are devoted to her. Miss Herron, Mrs. Taft's sister, who came west with the party, represented Mrs. and Miss Taft in their absence. She was attractive in a garden dress of ecru, Dresden trimmed, and flounced, with blue velvet edgings, and many old-fashioned flowers noticeable. She carried a frilled, old-fashioned corsage bouquet. Her costume was quite in taste with her regal bearing and snow-white hair.

Mrs. Edwards was in a lingerie frock of white, sashed in blue and caught up with baby rosebuds. Mrs. Edwards, by the way, is like her brother in efficiency, for every detail of the garden party was splendidly arranged and was the result of her direct supervision.

Mrs. Henry W. Taft wore black with chapeau and veil. Of a gracious personality, she made many friends during her brief visit.

Dr. and Mrs. Edwards received their many guests in the garden, which is unusually beautiful at this time of year with zinnias toned from a pale gold to deep autumnal browns, forming a strong contrast to the velvety sward. The cocos plumosus and eucalyptus trees are grouped to give just the right effect to the landscape, not marring the vista, which extends over miles of mesa to the sea. The garden opens from the drawing-room of the quaint, ivy-covered English maner house, through a rose-trellised patio. The reception was timed to take advantage of the gorgeous sunset.

Dr. and Mrs. Edwards were assisted by Mrs. Hancock Banning, Mrs. Lucien N. Brunswig, Dr. and Mrs. Norman Bridge, former Senator and Mrs. Frank P. Flint, Dr. and Mrs. Granville MacGowan, Mrs. Hugh Livingston Macneil, Mrs. Joseph Francis Sartori, Mrs. William E. Ramsay, Mrs. Daniel Murphy, Dr. and Mrs. Elbert Wing and Mrs. John G. Mott.

Among those who called during the receiving hours were four gentlemen from France, who constitute the industrial commission for their country to the Panama-Pacific International Exposition—Senator Gean Amic, Deputy Emile Cere, the chemist of world renown; F. George and M. A. Bertrand Taquet, who came with Lucien N. Brunswig to meet the ex-President.

A list of those invited was published in this newspaper Monday.

At Sierra Madre Club.

With the return of most of its members and their wives from vacation, the Sierra Madre Club has announced a programme for the earlier social events of the season, starting with a "get-together" banquet the night of September 30. This affair will be given by the old members to those who have joined during the year and is being held so that better acquaintanceships can be established.

The first fall dinner dance will be held October 9, for members and their friends. That will be followed the afternoon of October 23 by a tea dansant, starting at 3:30 o'clock. The next wee kthe club will act as host to the children of members. This will be the second affair of that sort, the children's dansant of last year having been a great success.

In Balboa.

Double Canfield was all the rage at the Palisades Tavern on Balboa Palisades over the last week-end and about all one could see around the lobby was tables of that pastime. On Sunday a strolling party was organized and for several hours the beauty of the ocean front was enjoyed from the top of the Palisades. Among the guests were Arthur Stinton, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Leider, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Shaw, Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Titus, Mr. W. K. Gibson and Miss G. A. Steele of Los Angeles; Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Ward of Fort Worth, Tex.; Mary Royce Crawford of Lewiston, Idaho, and Davis E. Crawford of Pasadena; also Mr. and Mrs. Ford Carpenter of Los Angeles.

Mrs. Davis Home.

Mrs. Le Compte Davis has returned to her home, No. 2755 Raymond avenue, after a month's sojourn at the San Francisco exposition. Sh ealso spent some time at several resorts in the north part of the State.

For Los Angeles Lady.

Miss Esther Liversidge of No. 1421 Harvard boulevard is soon to go north, where she will play the leading role in "Stop Thief," a comedy to be presented at Stanford University, October 8, by the Sword and Sandal Society.

Recent Social Event.

One of the pleasant affairs of the early fall season was given at the Kensington apartments, Friday evening, by Mrs. Gertrude Emerson, assisted by the Misses Margaret Goetz and Irma Guthrie Wright and Mrs. Gertrude Grosscup-Perkins.

A musical programme was given by Miss Wright, whose soprano voice was heard in operatic selections; Signor Donato Colafemina, who delighted the guests with a number of Neapolitan songs; the Oriole Trio, in several numbers, and Miss Charlotte Brooks, pianiste, who gave a Chopin Polonaise. Mrs. Perkins was at the piano as accompanist. At the conclusion of the musical programme, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Berkely, late of Castle House, New York, gave two of their latest dances. Dancing by the guests followed.

Miss McNair a Bride.

No prettier bride has approached the hymeneal altar this season than Miss Mary McNair, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. McNair, No. 1010 Beacon street, who, yesterday, at high noon, plighted her troth with Thomas D. Duque, at a service marked by charming simplicity. Witnessing the ceremony, which had for officiant Bishop Joseph S. Glass, were members of the immediate families and a few intimate friends, who were grouped in the drawing-room as the bridal party took its place before an embankment of stately yellow chrysanthemums, graceful palms and ferns. The bride was in white tulle, made in the prevailing short length with long court train, her filmy veil falling from a coiffure coronet of orange blossoms. White cyclamen and lilies of the valley, with maidenhair fronds, constituted her shower bouquet.

The bride's sister and sole attendant, Miss Elizabeth McNair, was also in white, wearing a sheer organdie and carrying an arm bouquet of palest yellow flowers. Gabriel Duque was his brother's best man. "Lohengrin's" wedding chorus announced the party, and through the service soft music lent impressiveness.

Mr. Duque and his bride have gone on a honeymoon, the destination of which they have kept secret. They will return in a few weeks and stay at San Felipe Rancho, in San Diego county, for a major portion of their time.

The popularity of the bride and groom, with the social set and the prominence of their families, makes this marriage of paramount interest, and but that the Duque family is still in retirement because of the death the past year of the bridegroom's father, the city's annals would no doubt have recorded one of the most brilliant weddings of the year. It was an exquisitely-appointed wedding.

Conclude Their Visit.

Judge and Mrs. Sidney Ballou, who stopped in Los Angeles en route to their Washington, D. C., home from a summer spent in Honolulu, where they have an ideal tropical island home, left on Thursday morning for the East. While here they were house guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Coburn Turner of No. 1001 West Washington.

Mrs. Turner and her trio of children—Burnett Coburn Turner, Lucia Frances and the baby, John Stewart, came back on the same steamer as did their kinsfolk, the Ballous, and Mrs. Turner's sister, Miss Theo Burnett, the party having spent three months on the tropical isle and in San Francisco.

The Turners and Ballous were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Fisher of Redlands for several days, going with the latter on to Bear Valley for a jolly outing, but there was no time for further entertaining other than motoring and impromptu affairs, due to the brevity of the stay of Judge and Mrs. Ballou. En route to the islands they were continuously entertained by their innumerable list of Los Angeles friends, with whom they are especial favorites.

At Santa Monica.

A tennis tea was the magnet which attracted a bevy of well-known society matrons and belles to the shore home of Mrs. Leo St. Clair Chandler in Santa Monica on the afternoon of Thursday. Some of the devotees of the racket played splendid matches on the courts, while others enjoyed a rubber or so of auction. An elaborate tea was served out in the open, a few intimate friends presiding over the samovars.

October Wedding.

Invitations have been issued by Mr. and Mrs. John Hamilton Dickey for the marriage of their daughter, Miss Helen Janet Dickey, to George Frang Bont on Tuesday evening, October 12, at the home of the bride's parents, No. 1812 Berendo place, Hollywood. Miss Dickey has chosen Miss Augusta Bont, sister of the bridegroom-to-be, as her maid of honor.

Many prenuptial affairs have been planned in honor of the prospective bride. Mrs. Harry S. Graul of No. 4954 Maplewood avenue entertained with a delightful Five Hundred party yesterday afternoon in compliment to her future sister-in-law. The decorations were of pink, with zinnias arranged in great bowls throughout the house. Later tea was served, accentuating the dainty color scheme. Mrs. Graul was assisted by her mother, Mrs. J. Bont, and sister, Miss Augusta Bont. Bidden, in addition to the honor guest and her mother, Mrs. John Dickey, were Misses Melinda Seay, Grace Stuart, Melita and Olga Wunderlich, Helen Millspaugh, Mary and Kathleen Johnston, Louise Rice, Bertha Oliver, Aris Olmstead, Mary Bayliss, May Durkee, Aileen Eagan, Mamie McEachan, Ruth Harper, Mme. and Augusta Bont, Mrs. Clarence Hanson, Mrs. Henry Schwannecke, Mrs. Stephen Griffith, Mrs. Banning Garrett, Mrs. Bert Harper and Mrs. Amelia Bont.

Northern Girl Here.

Miss Alice Elliott has as her house guest a charming young society girl from the north, Miss Margaret Nichols of San Francisco, who arrived Tuesday. In her honor, Miss Elliott, with Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth C. Grant and Lieut. and Mrs. William Robert Munroe, are enjoying a house party at the Crags Country Club over the weekend, going out yesterday after the Midwick dinner-dance. No doubt the fair visitor will occasion just as many courtesies from her society friends as she will have time to accept, for she is extremely popular in the Southland.

Rowleys Return.

Following an enjoyable six weeks' trip to the north, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin S. Rowley have returned to their home, No. 2621 Menlo avenue, where their countless friends are extending them a genuine welcome.

The Rowleys, who are quite as popular in Bay City society as they are in their own home coterie, were much entertained in San Francisco during their stay.

Back from Jewel City.

Among the many visitors to the north who have returned to their homes in Los Angeles the past week are Mrs. Charles Richards of No. 506 West Adams street and her two daughters, Miss Frances Richards and Mrs. Warren Horton. The trio of popular ladies enjoyed the Jewel City at their leasure, spending at least three weeks in the Bay City, where they were much entertained.

Betrothed.

Mrs. A. Stein of No. 737 South Westlake avenue announces the betrothal of her daughter Edith to William Klapscher, a young man identified with the business world of Los Angeles. Mrs. and Miss Stein will be at home from 2 to 5 o'clock on the afternoon of October 10 at Hotel Melbourne. No cards.

To Give Large Ball.

SOCIETY.

guest of Mr. Huntington's mother, Mrs. Mary A. Huntington, while she is receiving innumerable attentions from the Bay City's select circles.

A recent publication says of her: "Mrs. Howard Huntington, who is the guest of her mother-in-law, Mrs. Mary A Huntington, at her home on Maple street, was the honored guest at a recent luncheon given by Mrs. Brockway Metcalfe. The affair took place in the attractive Metcalfe home in Berkeley and was enjoyed by friends from San Francisco as well as several matrons of Piedmont and the college town. Mrs. Ralph Phelps has also entertained for Mrs. Huntington, having bidden a group of friends to tea in her honor during the past week. Mrs. Huntington has been visiting here for several weeks from her home in Pasadena, and returned recently from a motor trip to Yosemite, on which she was accompanied by Miss Marian Huntington."

Mrs. Huntington has spent much of her summer in the Jewel City, with its added attractions and beauties incidental with the exposition. Mr. and Mrs. Huntington took a long motor trip up north, and on through the Yosemite, quite early in the season, and again went to San Francisco a few weeks later.

November Bride.

Mrs. Annie Bernard of No. 2909 Halldale avenue formally announces the betrothal of her daughter Gertrude and Jadwin Orlijan. Previous to their marriage many prenuptial courtesies are to be extended Miss Bernard, one of which is to be given early next month by her aunt, Mrs. J. S. Bernard.

Home Again.

Back from San Francisco are Mrs. J. H. Bohon and her trio of attractive daughters, the Misses Eleanor, Mary and Henryetta Bohon, who are being warmly welcomed at their home, No. 1245 West Adams street, after a visit of generous length in the north.

Pre-Nuptial Linen Shower.

The Misses Ione and Mary Howard were hostesses on Tuesday evening at an enjoyable linen shower, given at the home of Mrs. M. Donthwaite, No. 2632 Fifth avenue, in honor of Miss Helen Lee and her finace, M. F. Hollingsworth, whose wedding is to be celebrated on October 13. Pink and white tones were used decoratively, with enchantress carnations, tulle and candles, these colors being carried out in the serving of ices and confections. Bidden were the Misses M. Dempsey, Harris, B. Morrow, Bertha Wind, Fay Dickenson, Evelyn Kohan, Neil Naylor, M. Baker, May Dickenson, Helena Kuhn, Loretta Lee, Grace Hyatt, Rose and Florida Normandin, Mrs. Mary Donthwaite, Mrs. Paul De Courcelles, Mrs. R. A. Normandin and Messrs. R. A. Normandin, H. D. L. Henrow, Lawrence Cook and F. L. Fitzpatrick.

Plan Extensive Tour.

Mr. and Mrs. William G. Hutchinson of No. 699 South New Hampshire avenue, who have just returned from a motoring trip to San Francisco, are completing their plans to leave Los Angeles on October 15, for a trip which will take them to New York, Boston, Washington and other eastern cities where they will remain until after the holidays. Thence their journey is to be continued to Florida and Cuba. The Hutchinsons will reach their California home about April 1. During their absence their home will be occupied by Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Barrows of Minnesota, who for several seasons have spent their winters in this city.

Debutante Honored.

Miss Amy Busch, who with her family has been enjoying life in San Francisco for several weeks, has furnished the inspiration for many attractive society functions in the northern Bay City. A recent event was given at the Palace Hotel by Miss Aila Ward, who gave a prettily appointed tea in which Miss Busch shared honors with Miss Rose Herbert of Honolulu.

Announces Engagement.

Mr. and Mrs. Manuel H. Lombard, of Winchester, Mass., announce the engagement of their daughter, Katherine, to Robert Lenox Groves, formerly of Los Angeles, and now of Cleveland, O. Miss Lombard is a graduate of V[illegible] College, 1914; Mr. Groves graduated from Harvard College in 1910 and from Harvard Law School in 19[illegible].

Garden Party.

On Saturday afternoon next, between the hours of 2:30 and 6, a garden party is to be given at the beautiful home of Mrs. Clyde J. Eastman, No. 7415 Hollywood boulevard, by the St. Catherine's Guild of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, for the benefit of the organ fund. The spacious grounds will be the scene of many attractive features such as a circus, street show, pony rides, fortune booths and innumerable cleverly conceived allurements. Mrs. C. E. C. Hodgson will have charge of the tea garden, the tables to be grouped about the fountain in a pretty retreat. Mrs. C. J. George, Mrs. Frederick S. Langdon, and Mrs. Thomas H. Cooke are to preside over the ice cream rendezvous; Mrs. Rucker and Miss Intz, the circus; Miss Queenie Bower, the children's ice cream booth and Miss Weber the sweets. They are to be assisted by a long list of society leaders.

Cupid Scores.

On Tuesday evening Miss Fannie Louise Burt of Clintonville, N. Y., and C. F. Smith of Hynes, were quietly wed in this city at the home of the bride's cousin, Mrs. Alex Kee, No. 1963 Pennsylvania avenue. Before the ceremony, which was witnessed by relatives and immediate friends, Mrs. Olive McKee sang "Love's Coronation." The wedding march was played by Miss Ernestine Crain, accompanied by her mother.

The couple were married 'neath a bower of plumosus ferns, with a background of pink and white carnations. The bride's gown was of embroidered net, and she carried a shower of bride's roses and lilies of the valley.

They are to be at home in Hynes, following a trip to the expositions.

Her Return Welcomed.

A pretty home-coming courtesy was extended Mrs. Paul Ridley on Thursday by Mrs. C. Perkins Trantum of the Burlington Apartments, who chose for her mode of entertainment a beautifully appointed Spanish luncheon, followed by bridge. The lower floor of the Burlington presented a pretty sight with its palms, ferns and trailing nasturtiums. The luncheon board was also in the nasturtiums, with red, yellow and green satin and tulle furthering the motif effectively, as did the nuts and bon bons contained in green leaves and tied with tri-colored bows. Bridge was enjoyed later in the Indian room.

Covers were marked by hand-painted cards for Mrs. Ridley, Mrs. Jack Way, Mrs. Mark Kelsey, Mrs. Harrison Henrich, Mrs. Norton D. Whitley, Mrs. Mathew Henrich, Mrs. Robert Griffith, Mrs. Margaret Hawkins, Mrs. John W. Gibson, Mrs. Gordon Greenwood, Mrs. Jack Collins, Mrs. David Duffield, Mrs. Andrew Strelitz, Mrs. Charles F. Kinnuch, Mrs. George Crouch, Mrs. Charles Morris and the hostess.

Since Mrs. Ridley returned a fortnight ago from a year's absence she has ben showered with social attentions from her many Los Angeles friends. She will be the house guest of Miss Alice Sweeny of No. 1738 Las Palmas avenue, Hollywood, until she takes possession of her new home on South Westminster avenue.

Cupid's Toll.

Announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. Philip D. Herbert, of No. 259 Manhattan Place, of the approaching marriage of their daughter, Miss Ella Lee Herbert, to Lawrence Cline of Los Angeles. They are to wed on Thursday, the 18th of November.

Artful was the manner in which the secret was told to a large number of the bride-elect's friends yesterday afternoon, who were bidden to tea between the hours of 3 and 6 by Miss Herbert. As they entered the prettily-decorated dining-room to find their places at table, a real, live kewpie, all pink and white, formed the throbbing flesh-heart of a huge pink rose—tiny Mildred Shahan, who is just 21 months of age. This adorable little babe handed to each guest a diminutive pink envelope which announced the latest victims of the love god's capture, though the date of the interesting event was found in an acrostic which was cleverly concealed where the stone of a date fruit had formerly reposed, and with the puzzle the date of the marriage was guessed, causing no end of merriment.

The favors were old-fashioned, frilled French bouquet corsages and enchantress carnations centered the board. In the living-rooms, zinnias, shading from golden yellow to deep autumnal browns, were artistically employed.

The acceptances numbered Misses Lilly Hill, Leta Stout, Daisy Stout, Clara Stephenson, Virginia Stellar, Ruth Standifer, Bernice Tibbens, Isabelle Douglas, Irene Nance, Sydney Murphy, Virginia Murphy, Sadie Taylor, Loraine Holleman, Mildred Eygabroad, Fannie Mitchell, Georgia Oyler, Ruth Savage, Margaret Adams, Pauline Ritter, Beulah Offut, Willie Kerns, Gretchen Rider, Reon Herbert, and Mesdames E. F. Whitting, R. T. Webb, E. F. Nance, J. K. Williams, E. Rickenberg, A. E. Shahan, T. T. Puckett, R. P. Howell, E. W. Hill, H. X. Cline, G. Goodall, B. R. Murphy and J. J. Penny.

Brings Many Easterners.

While comparatively a newcomer to Los Angeles, the approaching marriage of Miss Lois Daphne Leonard, a beautiful young lady just past twenty summers, and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Leonard, of No. 1000 South Alvarado street, and Thomas B. Kennedy, Jr., of Cambridge, Penn., will furnish one of the signal social affairs of the early autumn.

The nuptial service will be celebrated on the afternoon of October 14, at 4 o'clock at St. John's Church by Rev. Dr. Davidson. It will be followed by a large reception at the home, which nearly 200 guests will be privileged to attend.

Several eastern young ladies and men are coming to be of the nuptial party, among whom are Miss Janet Connell of Scranton, Pa.; Miss Helen Corey of Fitchburg, Mass.; Miss Gladys Trowbridge of Worcester, Mass., and Miss Margaret Kennedy, niece of the groom-elect, from Chambersburg, Pa. They will form a quartette of stunning bridesmaids, though Miss Leonard's maid of honor will be her sister, Miss Lenore. In addition, there are to be several ushers and the best man, James Coyle Kennedy, a brother of Miss Leonard's fiance. The young people are all to arrive October 5, with the groom's family following, on the 9th, in their private car, Mr. Kennedy, Sr., being president of the Cumberland Valley Railway. His son is also in the railroad business, and will take his bride to Roanoke, Va., to reside.

Inasmuch as the newly-weds are leaving at 6 o'clock the night of their marriage, all entertainments will of necessity be pre-nuptial. The bridal party are to be entertained at dinner at the Van Nuys Hotel on the eve of the marriage, to be followed by dancing at the parental Leonard home. Ahren's full orchestra has been engaged for both functions, and will play the wedding music as well.

The bride-elect's dearest girl friend, who has just become the bride of Phillip James Davidson of Beaver, Penn., is also coming with her husband, to enter into the festivities.

The Leonards came to Los Angeles a half year ago, but have already become prominently identified in the social life of the Southland.

Leave for San Diego.

Mrs. Andrew A. Gibson, who for several days has been the house guest of Mrs. Henry Clay King of South Rampart boulevard, is leaving today for her home at Inspiration Heights, San Diego, accompanied by Mrs. King, who will visit her friend and spend some time in Coronado.

Return to Fair Oaks.

Miss Edna R. Uber, who has spent her vacation in the parental William R. Uber home, has returned to Fair Oaks, Sacramento county, to resume her duties for another year as a member of the High School faculty. During her stay south, Miss Uber was entertained by Miss Grace Riner of Catalina and also by many former U.S.C. classmates. She also visited the San Diego exposition.

For a Visitor.

One of many pleasant affairs, given in honor of Mrs. B. T. Robinson of Kansas City, who has been spending the summer with her sisters, Mrs. E. E. Roby and Miss Jackson, No. 1816 North Kenmore avenue, was a progressive whist party on the evening of the 3rd inst., by Mr. and Mrs. Edwin B. Roby. The evening was devoted to cards, with music later, when Mrs. C. A. Post and Miss Maude Dixon gave added pleasure by giving a group of songs. Present were Messrs. and Mesdames L. N. Cleveland, J. Duryea, H. V. Davis, C. A. Post, F. W. Fuller, H. W. Johnson, C. T. Inman, E. J. Brown, E. E. Roby, Dr. and Mrs. C. W. Decker and Dr. and Mrs. C. A. Alderson, with Miss Maude Dixon and Miss Marion Jackson.

Miss Gillis is well known in this city, having attended the Girls' Collegiate School for several years. Mr. Rairden is the son of Bradstreet Rairden, Consul-General of the Dutch East Indies.

Out-of-Town Society

Pasadena.

THE climax of brilliant functions for the season was reached last week in two affairs which rivaled in beauty and interest many of those of the past winter. The garden tea given by the Pasadena and Los Angeles chapters of the D.A.R. as a courtesy to their President-General, Mrs. William Cumming Story at the Hotel Huntington Monday afternoon was one of the most delightful affairs ever given in the Crown City. More than 500 of the Southland's most charming and notable women greeted their beloved guest and her party composed for the most part of national officers from every part of the country. Mrs. Story was presented by Mrs. Maynard Force Thayer, after which she delivered an address to her daughters. On the Reception Committee were Mmes. C. W. McGavren, Alfred Bambrage Johnson and George H. Curtis.

Exhibition dancing by pretty Marjorie Hoffman was one of the features of the dance given at the Maryland Hotel recently in honor of the 300 delegates to the American Bankers' Association convention and their wives, who stopped over here en route to their eastern homes. About 800 guests were present.

Maj.-Gen. G. W. Goethals and Mrs. Goethals and their youngest son, Thomas Goethals, were honor guests at a family dinner party given recently by Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Cammann of No. 1339 San Pasqual street. This informal affair was most pleasing to the honored guests, as Gen. Goethals especially, refuses to become a social "lion." After dinner a number of friends dropped in to chat and for a cup of coffee with the "master builder" and his family. Among the number were Dr. and Mrs. James A. B. Scherer, Dean and Mrs. George [illegible]mon, Bishop and Mrs. Joseph Johnson, Dr. and Mrs. Leslie E. Learned, Mr. and Mrs. Pitcairn and Mr. and Mrs. Taylor Hunt. Later Mr. and Mrs. Cammann motored over to San Gabriel with their distinguished guests to see the "Mission Play."

As a courtesy to Miss Edith Crocker of No. 536 North Wilson avenue, whose engagement to Rev. C. L. Duncan of San Anselmo, Cal., was recently announced, Mrs. M. Alice [illegible]sen of No. 829 East Colorado street gave a beautifully-appointed shower and garden party recently. Refreshments were served at tables under beautiful old trees on the lawn. Thirty-five guests were present.

Miss Jessie Lambert was another bride-to-be who was the inspiration for a pretty luncheon shower, given the other day by Miss Juanita Ferguson at her home, No. 1230 La Pintoresca drive. The color scheme throughout the reception suite was in rose, carried out in pink asters, pink tulle and ferns. Half a hundred guests were present.

Mrs. Adam Summers and Miss Aileen Green of Memphis, Tenn., were honor guests at a charmingly-appointed dinner party given Tuesday evening at the Altadena Country Club by Mrs. Matthew Slavin of North Marengo avenue.

Miss Hortense de Lany became the bride of George Overfield at a simply-appointed home ceremony, Monday evening at the residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. F. De Lany, No. 436 Lincoln avenue. Rev. Daniel F. Fox of the First Congregational Church officiated. The bride's frock of exquisite loveliness was fashioned of white net over soft white silk. She carried a shower of bride roses and her long tulle veil was caught with lilies of the valley. Misses Marguerite De Lany and Mildred Gregory, frocked in white and carrying Cecile Brunner roses, were the bride's only attendants. Arthur Green served as best man.

Before an altar of bamboo, ferns and carnations, Miss Mary [illegible], daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. [illegible], No. 417 Cypress avenue, became the wife of Claude F. Carter Tuesday evening. The ceremony, which was performed by Rev. Frank G. Tyrrell at the home of the bride's parents, was witnessed by seventy-five guests. The bride wore a beautiful gown of lace fashioned over white taffeta. Her veil was caught with lilies of the valley and she carried bride roses and valley lilies.

From an artistic standpoint as well as socially, the musicale given a few evenings ago by Mme. Beatrice de Troost at her home, No. 1655 Huntington drive, was a most brilliant affair. Assisting Mme. de Troost were Frances Close Potts, Arthur [illegible], Robert Alter and Clarence [illegible] Kellogg. About sixty guests were present.

Miss Anna Laura Bradley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Bradley, No. 304 South Madison avenue, and [illegible] Edward Myers of San Francisco were married recently at a simple morning ceremony at the home of the bride's parents. The bride wore an imported lace frock and carried a sheaf of lilies of the valley and orchids.

Long Beach.

APPOINTMENTS of a patriotic nature featured the wedding of Mrs. Prudence Parish and Charles V. Smith Wednesday at the Odd Fellows' Hall. The bride is [illegible] of the W.R.C. and Ladies' of the G.A.R. of this city and the groom is an ardent member of the Grand Army post. Martial airs by the G.A.R. drum corps interspersed the usual hymeneal music.

Guests at the wedding were, as a rule, members of patriotic orders wearing the badges of their membership. The Stars and Stripes figured prominently in the decorations. The wedding procession was led by [illegible] Gallup, who carried a copy of the flag. The officiating clergyman was Rev. C. J. Coulter of the [illegible] Baptist Church. Judge Giles of Los Angeles was best man. After the ceremony the couple were given a reception at No. 2163 Elm avenue, which will be their home.

Another wedding of interest was that of Mrs. Cora Aylesworth and L. Marvin Persons of Corona, which was solemnized Wednesday afternoon at the home of the bride's father, [illegible] Anderson, No. 358 Temple street, Rev. George Wilson, pastor of Immanuel Baptist Church, being the officiating clergyman.

Bridesmaids were Eleanor [illegible] and Miss Nellie Coseboom, and the attendant of the groom was his brother, Melvin Persons. Little Dorothy Patrick carried the ring on the golden stamen of a lily. Miss [illegible] Thomas played the "Lohengrin" wedding march.

Great interest was created here by the announcement of the wedding in Ridgewood, N. J., of Miss Irene [illegible], a member of the clerical staff of the grammar schools here last year, to Prof. G. S. Ralston of Blacksburg, Va. The nuptial vows were taken at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. F. C. Robbins. The affair was the culmination of a romance which began when both were at the Colorado Agricultural College at Collins, Colo. The bride was a member of the Alpha Beta Zeta Sorority.

Miss Eva Gray of this city and John Wesley Lyons of Los Angeles were united in matrimony Monday, Rev. J. J. McAllister, No. 315 [illegible] avenue, officiating at the home of the minister. Only a small group of friends were present. After a wedding reception the young people left for a tour. They will reside in Los Angeles.

Members of the Good Fellowship Club were entertained in smart fashion at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Hutchinson, No. 340 Junipero avenue. Red carnations were used in the decorations, which were elaborate and pretty. Guests were Mr. and Mrs. Fred S. James, Mr. and Mrs. George Beck, Mr. and Mrs. A. [illegible] Clor, Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Adams and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Williams.

A venison dinner was served a group of friends Tuesday by Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Carlson at their home on Perris road, the piece de resistance of the repast being secured by Charles Carlson, who has just returned from a hunting trip in the Tehachapi Mountains. The event was a celebration of a wedding anniversary of the host and hostess.

A complete surprise to their friends was the announcement of the engagement of Miss Mayme E. Miller to Dr. Arthur W. Lufkin of Salt Lake City, which announcement was made at an affair at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. M. [illegible], No. 955 Elm avenue. Members of the Entre Nous Club were guests at the announcement party. The rooms were elaborately decorated in the club colors. The announcements were found wrapped up in the sandwiches after the enjoyment of Five Hundred.

Washing Won't Rid Head of Dandruff

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this tonight, and by morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work

Lime and Tuberculosis

Dr. Roberts Bartholow, former professor in Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, says in his Materia Medica (1895,) on page 215 and 216: "Clinical experience has shown that it (referring to a calcium salt) possesses the ill-defined property known as alterative, removes certain toxic or morbific materials and secures their secretion by the organs of elimination. . . . The testimony which has lately been published in respect to its curative powers in consumption is certainly very striking."

He does not refer to testimony regarding Eckman's Alterative, since the medical profession never publicly recommends proprietary remedies. However, many cases of consumption seem to have yielded to this remedy.

This success may be due largely to the fact that in Eckman's Alterative a calcium (lime) salt is so combined with other valuable ingredients as to be easily assimilated by the average person. It contains neither opiates, narcotics nor habit-forming drugs, so is safe. At your druggist's or direct.

Rialto.

SOUTHERN California is essentially an out-of-door country and what more appropriate and charmingly unique than an out-of-door wedding on the summit of Mt. Rubidoux. On this historic spot, last evening at eight o'clock, Miss Maud Pearl Dreese of Redlands and Albert C. Kingman of this place were united in marriage, the ceremony being performed by Rev. O. W. Renius of the First Methodist Church, who used the ring service. The bride, a lovely brunette, was becomingly gowned in white with hat in keeping. The peaceful light of the moon furnished the only embellishment to nature's matchless setting and the wedding although quite simple was unusually impressive. Following congratulations Mr. and Mrs. Kingman left in their automobile, destination unknown. However as the groom has a flourishing business here, we feel assured that the return journey will end in Rialto and that the future home will be in our midst. The marriage comes as more or less of a surprise to local society as only intimate friends were let into the secret. Those witnessing the ceremony were Mrs. Robert Dreese and Miss Lula Dreese of Halstead, Kan., Mr. and Mrs. George Dreese, daughter Mildred and son Glen of San Bernardino, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Sedgwick and son William of Redlands, Ralph Sedgwick of Chino, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kingman, Miss Ruth Kingman, Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Kingman, Miss Gladys Livingstone, Mrs. O. W. Renius, Clinton Kingman, Ivan Kingman and B. H. Logue.

Another wedding of especial interest to Rialto folk was solemnized at Riverside during the past week and one wonders just a bit what charm our sFister city offers above others. On Friday Miss Leo Leota Humphrey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Humphrey of Olive and First streets, became the bride of Howard Wilkinson of Colton. Mrs. Wilkinson is a Rialto girl, of pretty brunette type, a popular member of our yeunger set and being possessed of varied attainments has held the position of local manager for the Home Telephone Company, resigning on the fifteenth. The new home will be in Colton.

Last Friday proved a lucky day for the seventy or more members and friends of the Congregational Sunday-School who found their way to Fairmont Park, means of transportation being too varie dto mention. Amusement features were liberally patronized and a picnic lunch spread under the stately trees was enjoyed with jolly chat. All participants report one of the most delightful days of all the good year.

On Tuesday evening the [illegible] of the Methodist Sunday-school gathered in the parlors of the church for their monthly social. A brief literary programme was rendered including some very interesting original talks, a letter from a missionary to China was read by Rev. O. W. Renius, and a number of conundrums contributed by Mr. M. C. Hodge caused much amusement. The serving of summer refreshments brought the pleasant occasion to a happy conclusion. Mrs. L. P. Kingman and Miss Mary [illegible]blaugh were the gracious hostesses of the evening.

Gardena.

MRS. A. C. WRIGHT and daughter, Marguerita, are guests at the home of Mrs. D. M. [illegible] having just arrived from El Paso, where they had found refuge during the unrest in Mexico. Mr. Wright for the present will remain in Chihuahua.

Mrs. Hailan P. Sweet is greatly enjoying a visit from her niece, Miss Grace E. Graves of Claremont, N. H. Miss Graves has been visiting Yellowstone Park, and now comes direct from the San Diego exposition. She will remain here for a couple of months.

Blackheads Vanish In a Few Moments

By Means of Her Own Secret Formulas, Valeska Suratt Has Made Herself the Famous Self-Made Beauty-Actress of America.

By Miss Valeska Suratt

BLACKHEADS can be removed in a surprisingly quick way, without pinching, face steaming, dieting, or any other tedious method. It is by the use of a formula which I have perfected myself, and so simple that it astonishes. It never fails when properly done, and the blackheads will be removed in a few moments, or in as short a time as it requires to thoroughly wash the face. Blackheads are a local affliction, and no amount of drugging, blood treatment or dieting will remove them. The worst thing you can do in trying to get rid of blackheads is to try to pinch them out. There are many blackheads which require severe squeezing to make them come out. This nearly always leaves a spot slightly redder than the rest of the skin, and this spot remains for a long time. By using my formula, no squeezing is necessary.

First wash the face with hot water and soap. Then sprinkle some powdered neroxin upon a sponge made wet with hot water. Then rub well for a few minutes on the parts of the skin which are affected with blackheads. You should be able to secure the neroxin of any druggist.

MISS SAGGY—I knew you would get rid of your poor complexion with the formula I gave you, and now I want you to use my wrinkle formula, and you will soon see a difference of years in your appearance. For crow's feet, small or deep wrinkles, sagging cheeks, the following formula is absolutely unequaled: Dissolve two tablespoonfuls of glycerine and two ounces of eptol in half a pint of hot water. Stir until it is dissolved and starts to cream. Eptol may be obtained at any good drug store.

MRS. O. B. W.—In a half pint of cold water dissolve two ounces ruetone and half a cup of sugar, all well mixed together. Of this take two teaspoonfuls three or four times a day in a wine glass of water, after your meals. The ruetone can be secured at the drug store. If anything can do it, this should develop the bust luxuriantly, although no one can assure you that the bust can be developed in all cases.

ANXIETY PLUS—My complexion formula will make your skin take on a purity rivaling that of the rose. Red spots, muddiness, sallowness, freckles, will surely leave, and soon the spotless, pinky whiteness suffuse your face, arms, hands, neck and chest. It is the beautifier without a peer, and is very economical. Mix two tablespoonfuls of glycerine in a pint of hot water and add one ounce of zintone, which can be secured at any drug store.

MISS M. A. R.—I always keep my armpits in a fresh, dry, natural condition by the use of hydrolized talc. I have tried many of the advertised articles for excessive perspiration of armpits, but finally worked out this one of my own which acts like magic.

MRS. GENEVIEVE T.—In case it happens again that you cannot get from the drug store the eptol for making my splendid wrinkle remover, write to Secretary to Valeska Suratt, Thompson Building, Chicago, Ill., and my secretary will see that you are immediately supplied. When writing enclose the price, which is fifty cents.

MISS WHEN?—For removing superfluous hair you can use nothing as good as simple sulfo solution. It dissolves away any hair is if by magic, and never leaves a red spot, or irritation. Simple sulfo solution can be secured at the drug store. This is one of my most effective formulas.

SUSPENSE—If you want a really exquisite face powder, without the chalkiness of nearly all face powders, I suggest you try my own, made after my own formula, "Valeska Suratt Face Powder." It will give a tint and softness you never before experienced. It is sold in many drug and department stores. If you have any difficulty in getting it, simply write to my secretary as suggested to Mrs. Genevieve T., enclose fifty cents, and ask for white or flesh.

VERY SHORT—Use my hair-growing formula faithfully for a time, then measure your hair, and you will find that it has grown wonderfully in a short time. It will be no longer thin and scraggly, but radiant with the glorious sheen and luster that perfect, healthy hair possesses. Your hair receiver—well, there'll be no more use for it. Mix it yourself, as follows: Add half a pint of alcohol to half a pint of water (or use a full pint of imported bay rum, if you prefer,) and to this add one ounce of betaquinol, which any drug store can supply you. This will never fail.

The social season at the University of Redlands has started with a rush and a number of events have been planned for the future. The most brilliant affair of the season was the reception given at the college of fine arts building on Friday evening, being the annual reception of President Victor L. Duke and the members of the faculty for the students of the university. The rooms were beautifully decorated with flowers and greenery and some of the girls of Bekins Hall were in charge of the refreshments. Almost all of the students were present, the reception being given so that they might all become acquainted. The first "stag" entertainment of the Y.M.C.A. of the college was a most successful affair. Gordon Palmer was the presiding officer for the evening. He called on President V. L. Duke for a talk on "The Y.M.C.A. and the School." [illegible] H. E. Wise responded to the toast "No Good if Detached." The Rev. F. B. Matthews, pastor of the First Baptist Church; R. O. Bonnell, the new secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, formerly a student at the university; Coach A. Cunningham and Prof. H. E. Marsh all spoke. Refreshments were served towards the close of the evening. While the boys were having such a good time the girls were celebrating their return to the school with a "dove" party at Bekins Hall. There was no formal programme, but the evening was spent in getting thoroughly acquainted and curing some of the "blues" and "homesickness" and the refreshments of ice cream and cake were served by the girls who were at the dormitory last year. These and the many other new Dorothy Dodd shoes for Fall and Winter wear have more than correct style to recommend them. Dorothy Dodd shoes are comfortable from the minute they are fitted to you. They retain their beauty always, and wear long and well.

Best of all—Dorothy Dodd style, comfort and long service cost but from $3.50 to $6.00—for that is the price range of Dorothy Dodd Shoes.

Forty Years of Continuous Piano Business

Forty Years of Continuous Piano Business

On January 1, 1875, in a modest combined Jewelry and Music Store, Mr. A. G. Bartlett founded the Bartlett Music Co. Year by year the town grew and with it, always, the Bartlett House kept pace. Now we have a cosmopolitan City of half a million, and the Bartlett Music Co. is known as "THE BIG EXCLUSIVE PIANO HOUSE."

For forty years almost every man, woman and child in the seven Southern Counties has known the Bartlett Music Co. and its methods personally. It is to keep up this acquaintance, and to make it known to all late residents, that we are continuing to tell the public the opportunities this store affords for the purchase of the best pianos at lowest prices and on the most reasonable terms.

in the production of the highest grade instruments is back of the A. B. CHASE line of Pianos and Artistanos. The effort of the A. B. Chase organization has been constant and unswerving on quality lines from its inception in 1875, which accounts for the recognition of A. B. Chase instruments by many musical authorities as highest in all the qualities that constitute real piano construction.

It is a significant coincidence that the Bartlett Music Co. and the A. B. Chase Co. were both founded in 1875, and that both these houses have continued the policy adopted at the beginning forty years ago of catering to the best trade, with the

The name of "BARTLETT" is as familiar as the word "MUSIC," and has for forty years been synonymous in Los Angeles. Everybody knows the Bartlett Music Co. and its methods. We have had first choice in the selection of our pianos and have the agency for THE BEST.

We invite the music-buying public to visit our store tomorrow or next day and see the wonderful display of A. B. Chase Pianos in our windows. It is worth your inspection.

a ten days' furlough from his duties as electrician on the U.S.S. Annapolis. Informality prevailed with a correspondingly merry evening, pretty decorations added to the festal air, and the jolly pastimes resolved themselves into a competition for honors between Mr. Castleman and Miss German against Mr. German and Miss Adland, the former couple being the prize-winners. The trophies were cunning kewpies beribboned with red, white and blue, the colors being used in honor of the sailor guest. Music and conversation varied the other recreations of the occasion and a midnight repast of delicious eatables concluded the delightful affair. The guests included Mr. Castleman, Misses Muriel Arkley, Elsie Davis, Winifred Adland, Genevieve Smith, Olive Norcross, Georgina German, Messrs. Lloyd Castleman, Carl Johnson, Burdett Kelley, Irme German, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. McElree and Mrs. O. M. German.

Roland Rosselot was honored with a pleasant surprise affair on Friday with Miss Genevieve Smith as hostess, aided by her sister, Miss Mildred. Charming music with conversation and amusements both out-of-doors and in the parlors whiled away the hours, the hospitality ending with the serving of dainty refreshments. Those present were Miss Olive Norcross, Elsie Davis, Winifred Adland and the hostesses; Messrs. Rosselot, Burdett Kelley, Charles Applebury, Thomas Tournot and Richard Shipman.

The girls of Miss Elizabeth Hidden's Sunday-school class were her guests on a recent Saturday afternoon, others bidden being Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Knapp and Mrs. Bissett, the primary superintendent. Indoor games and refreshments entertained the following: Mary Lee, Grace Hedstrom, Laura Lenhardt, Edna Beardsley, Myrtle Nakamuta, Ethel Emerson, Urma Lee, Lucile Allen, Everett Emerson, Walter Lenhardt and Carl Green.

Orange.

A MARRIAGE exciting keen interest in Orange was that of Miss Lillian Norman, long a teacher in the Orange schools, and Thomas J. Galley of Los Angeles. The wedding took place in the Santa Ana home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Norman, on a recent Tuesday evening with Rev. J. A. Stevenson of the First Presbyterian Church officiating, only relatives and very close friends being present at the event, which was marked by extreme simplicity, a note entirely in keeping with the retiring nature of the charming bride. The honeymoon will be spent in Yosemite Park, the bridal journey being made by automobile, a generous shower of rice inaugurating their departure. Mrs. Galley was the recipient of many prenuptial courtesies given by society people of Orange and the sincerest of good wishes and congratulations are offered her by her Orange friends, who are fully acquainted with the sweetness and sterling worth of her character. Mr. Galley is associated with the Staats Real Estate Company in Los Angeles, and the newly married couple will reside in that city on their return from the honeymoon trip to the north.

Another marriage of interest to Orange social circles was that of Miss Gladys Freeman, daughter of R. L. Freeman of North Olive street, and James M. Carroll of Arizona. The ceremony took place in Los Angeles at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. M. R. Berry, the marriage lines being read by Rev. Russell F. Thrapp of the First Christian Church. The members of the Freeman family from Orange were present at the marriage, and others going from Orange were Mrs. Jess Ainsworth and Mrs. Arthur Small. The bride, who was wedded in a handsome going away gown, is widely known in Orange, Santa Ana and Anaheim. She has been feted in each of these places for some time past in honor of her approaching marriage, many beautiful gifts having been showered on her at these social events. Her friends here regret that her new ties will remove her from her home here, but unite in wishing her all felicity in the new home at Douglas, Ariz., where Mr. Carroll is assistant cashier of the El Paso and Macavari Railroad.

Asters were employed in a tasteful decorative scheme by Mrs. Albert Leichtfuss, when she entertained the ladies of the Modern Priscilla Club on Wednesday afternoon. Fancy work and conversation with the enjoyment of good things to eat served by the hostess, made up the cycle of pleasant hours. Guests of the club were Mrs. Oscar Leichtfuss, Mrs. M. V. Allen and Mrs. Albert Struck, and the following members were present: Mrs. C. A. Palmer, Mrs. C. O. Field, Mrs. John Holditch, Miss Marjorie Lucas, Mrs. Albert Hughes, Mrs. Louis de Long, Mrs. Carl Durnbaugh, Mrs. Walter Adams, Mrs. W. A. Knuth and Mrs. Alfred Leichtfuss.

The Delta Alpha Club members, who were entertained on a recent Tuesday evening at the hospitable home of Miss Della Hahn, were Mrs. S. E. Evans, Mrs. F. W. Parsons, Miss Lela Fernald, Carrie Graham, Elsie Parsons, Ruth Soangler, Ivy Reed, Emily Spotts, Dorothy Perkins, Lillian Eye. A merry afternoon was had with lively chat, the beginning of pretty pieces of fancy work and a delicious little repast served by the hostess, who had prettily decorated the home at North Shaffer street for the occasion.

Glendora.

ONE of the smartest and most elaborate social affairs since the vacation season was the reception Friday given in honor of Mrs. C. S. Whitcomb by Mrs. Ray Yoast and Mrs. E. Bradley at the home of the former on South Vista Bonita avenue. There were a large number of guests present, many from a distance, to meet the complimented guest and extend to her a very cordial welcome to her new home in Glendora. The time was pleasingly spent during the afternoon in the felicitous exchange of greetings enlivened with a musical programme. Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess. The living-room and parlors were tastefully decorated for the occasion.

Mr. George Filley was the recipient of a very delightful surprise party Friday evening, the occasion being his birthday anniversary. The affair was planned by Mrs. Filley and carried out with such consummate skill that he suspected nothing out of the usual until those in the secret came in. He quickly regained his composure and it was said that of the numerous friends present, none there were who entered into the festivities of the evening with greater zest that he did. Refreshments of ice cream and cake were served.

The 84th birthday anniversary of Mrs. Moore was appropriately celebrated Tuesday at her home on south Wabash avenue, by the ingathering of numerous friends. Among those present were nine of her associates whose ages ranged from 68 to 89 years. The time was very agreeably spent in conversation and in relating reminiscences of bygone days when they indulged in innocent games and romped over the green meadows of the home farm perfectly oblivious to the thought of the numerous inventions which have revolutionized the industries of the civilized world. Light refreshments were served after which the guests took their leave with many a wish for many a return of the happy event.

Miss Genevieve Mumpower of Oregon City, Or., arrived Wednesday and is a guest at the home of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Goodson. She came down the Coast to visit the two fairs.

Mrs. C. J. West had as a guest Tuesday Mrs. Clarkson of Prairie du Chien, Iowa. They grew up in the same town, but had not met before in forty years.

After five weeks spent on the Coast visiting the two fairs and their brother, Mr. E. O. Kennard, Mrs. W. A. Gray and daughter, Mrs. Esther Gray King, and Mrs. Eugene Lewis left Tuesday for their homes in University Place, Neb., and Toledo.

Tustin.

WHAT proved to be one of the most interesting social events of the week was the recent meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Presbyterian Church at the handsome home of Mrs. James S. Rice. This home, built before the day of the popular bungalow, is one of the notable residences in the Santa Ana Valley and its wide rooms opening into each other afford vistas of comfort and beauty. Mrs. Rice is also a famous hostess and the thirty-five ladies present were treated to a delightful hospitality. The presence of a number of charming young girls lent additional charm to the affair, they assisting in serving delicious refreshments. The interesting programme was contributed to by Mmes. W. L. Leihy, John Dryer, W. L. McDougal, Allen, Preble, E. J. Cranston, Lindsey and Miss Childs, the subject being "Alaska." Mrs. S. W. Nau and the Misses Jessie Rawlings, Dorothy Utt, Grace Hatfield, Myrtle Bowman, Lillian Martin, Avis Smith and Gertrude Utt rendered musical numbers and Mrs. Rice sang "Ashamed of Jesus," with organ accompaniment by Mrs. Nau.

Mrs. Will Bowman presided charmingly over an informal afternoon recently, her guests being a number of friends whom she had invited to get together for a recount days of her childhood were spent among scenes familiar to millions of people through Helen Hunt Jackson's descriptions of old Camulos. It was sheep-shearing time in the opening chapter of Ramona. Lucretia often perched on the wooden rail and watched them shear the sheep. It was not until she became leading lady in a twentieth century production that she realized she was almost a century too late to be the little girl of Camulos.

Theatrical managers, artists and critics have told Miss Del Valle that she has a fortune in her voice. It combines the mellow richness of California sunshine and the crystal purity of a mountain stream.

A prominent theatrical manager several years ago was trying to find someone in Los Angeles who could read the prologue to "Sweet Kitty Bellairs" to his satisfaction. The professionals failed. Someone remembered a very young girl at a dramatic school, who had a beautiful voice. Miss Lucretia was sent for, and the comment of the manager gave her her first inkling of success ahead. "My God, little girl," he said, "where did you get that voice?"

After this engagement Miss Lucretia was given the lead in "The Barrier." Two years ago, while waiting for a chief part in a New York production, she was asked to join the "Mission Play" forces. From that time until the present, other ambitions and plans have given way to this work.

JOIN DAUGHTER.

Her parents, former Senator and Mrs. R. F. del Valle, gave up their residence and environment of years to be near their daughter. At the turn in the road where the old Camino Real entered the plaza before the Mission, San Gabriel, they built a bungalow in the shadow of the Mission Playhouse.

On a summer evening one may, if specially favored, sit upon the piazza of the Del Valle bungalow, listen to the ringing of the bells, hear a guitar and the patter of feet start up in one of the 'dobes that vainly strive to maintain their foothold about the mission walls, listen to the music in the cadences of a voice closer at hand, while Miss Lucretia tells a story of dons and padres, senoritas and caballeros—and be very greatful that so charming a link has brought past and present into a happy union.

PRICE OF CHINESE BABIES.

Five Costing Twenty-five Dollars are the Property of a Philadelphia Women.

[Philadelphia North American:] From far-off Canton, China, comes a photograph showing just how a real Chinese baby, bought for 20 cents and clothed, educated and fed for $5 a year, looks with a real Irish handle to its name.

Though Sister Marie de Loures, an American nun who has charge of these seven queueless Chinese and who sent their picture to the Rev. Dr. William Garrigan, didn't say anything about it in her letter, it is altogether probable that every one of the outfit has been nicknamed by this time. Their names are Patrick, Bridget, Teresa, Margaret, Mary, John and Johanna.

Five of the youngsters in the photograph are the property of a Philadelphia woman. The whole quintet cost her $25, and she expects to retain the children until maturity by paying $5 a year each for their support. The entire cribful will probably be settled down into married life before they are 14 years old.

Since Sister Marie has introduced it, becoming foster parent to Chinese babies at the $5-a-year-rate and having the youngster christened with your favorite name promises to become one of the most popular forms of charity for benevolently disposed Americans. Sister Marie had 500 Chinese children in the Immaculate Conception House at Canton and 90 per cent. of them are girls. Many of these have been rescued from rivers, where they were thrown by their poor mothers, and others were bought. Boy babies cost more than girls, some of them bringing as high as 50 cents.

INCREASING MUNITION SUPPLY.

Government Arsenals are Increasing Their Production, Heretofore Limited by the Supply of Powder.

[Philadelphia Public Ledger:] Government arsenals are today working at full time and turning out more ammunition and arms than in ordinary times. This became known here today, although it was announced that the rush had no significance other than precaution made necessary by a situation that might develop.

The capacity of the United States for turning out munitions of war, arms, supplies of all kinds, powder, ammunition, etc., has been increased since the European war began in a measure that, if it could be accurately stated, would astonish the world, and perhaps most of all the American people. Just one item in the long list of necessaries of war will suggest by a comparison of antebellum with the present capacities, the wonderful advance that has been made.

The statement is made by the government authorities in charge of maintaining our government supplies of these things, that at the beginning of the war in Europe the capacity for turning out small arms ammunition—the most important of all—was probably 10,000,000 rounds a week. That, however, was cut in half by the impossibility of getting powder enough to load the shells. With the powder, the 10,000,000 figure could have been touched, but there wasn't powder for more than half that number.

Today, according to the best authority, which is in close touch with conditions in both government and private establishments, there are five big plants turning out small arms ammunition, and all of them hold big contracts or orders. They could, it is declared, turn out 1,000,000 rounds each per day; that is, 30,000,000 rounds a week for the five plants instead of 5,000,000 before the war.

BRITISH ARMY SWORDS.

Vary in the Different Branches of Service, Special Ones for Rifle Regiments, Straight Ones for Cavalry.

[New York Times:] Swords in the British army vary to a very great extent, and practically every branch of the service has its own type of weapon. The difference is not so much in the shape of the blade as in that of the hilt.

The sword used by the infantry has a large ornamental guard, bearing the royal cipher and crown. There is a slot at the top of the guard for the sword knot, really a leather loop ending in a knot to prevent the loss of the sword. The infantry sword is perfectly straight and is sharp on one edge only.

Rifle regiments have a special sword of their own with a rifle badge let into the open-work guard. Very much the same sort of sword, but with a still more open guard, consisting of three curved bars, is used by the royal artillery and army service corps. The royal engineers have a gilt hilt on their swords, a distinction they prize.

The claymore of the Highland regiments has a big basket hilt lined with red cloth and blue ribbons. The officers of some Scottish regiments carry a plain cross-hilted sword without a guard.

Until a few years ago the cavalry were armed with sabers. Nowadays, however, they carry swords of a straight rapier pattern. The guard is a large affair, completely shielding the hand.

EDUCATING THE CHINESE.

In New York They go to the City Schools During the Day and to a Chinese School During Evening.

[Sunday Magazine:] When school is out at 4 o'clock in New York City, Tom, Dick and Mary go off to play; but the Chinese boys who have sat beside them go home for their other books and start right off for school again. This time it is a Chinese school, and they are kept busy until 8 o'clock, learning to read and write their fathers' native language and reciting the principles of the great Confucius.

Each Chinese lad brings to his second school copy-books, ink-pads and broad ink-brushes a foot long. Until 5:30 they copy the difficult Chinese characters and signs. Then they have an hour's recess for supper, after which they return to school and read to the teacher what they have written. To write Chinese a boy must memorize 2000 signs. He must recognize at least 4000 in order to read books understandingly. To acquire a good working knowledge of the language, from five to ten years of study are required.

Said Master Chen Yen:

"Like English the best, easy to learn and speak, all nice letters and syllables, can speak and write out each word from sound as spoken; but in our Chinese cannot write sounds to show meaning, have to draw signs, very hard and slow to master.

"Getting along fine in English, can read, speak, write and figure; expect to go back to Shanghai by and by, to do business in English for papa's export store."

AIR SUPPANTS MUSCLE.

Is Now Used to Drive the Sculptor's Chisel as He Fashions His Statues from the Marble Block.

[Christian Herald:] A Chicago sculptor has installed in his studio a pneumatic chisel by means of which the work of outlining marble statues is greatly simplified. The old method of carving with mallet and chisel is not only laborious, but rather awkward for the sculptor, since only one hand is left free to guide the chisel. In the case of the pneumatic chisel, both hands may be used for this purpose. The pneumatic chisel is driven by compressed air at a pressure of 77 pounds per square inch, operating through a flexible tube, the air being compressed in a large tank by means of an electric motor. The air passing through the tube has the effect of driving the chisel back and forth against the stone as if it were hit by a mallet. The chisel, of course, is used only to outline the statue roughly, the finishing work all being done by hand. The pneumatic chisel can do the rougher work, but when it comes to carving the features so they will speak, and putting the breath of immortality into the stone, the artist must take the mallet in his own hand, that his soul may get closer to his work. In his creative force, man emulates, though faintly, the divine architect. "So God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him."

THE DASHEEN.

A Chinese Substitute for the Potato is Said to Have a Nutty Flavor and be Very Prolific.

[Dayton News:] We have never seen a dasheen, and know nothing about it, but we are prejudiced against it. It comes to take the place of the potato we are told, and we are so attached to the spud, and are so familiar with its history and its utility, that the dasheen will have "to show us," as they say in Missouri, before we adopt it for the tuber, which has for so long a time held a place in the economy of the world of food.

The dasheen is a production of China, and is being cultivated successfully in this country, according to the reports. They are said to yield 50 per cent. more starch than our ordinary potatoes, and are very palatable, according to the reports—"having a nutty flavor, which is pleasing to many appetites," is the way it is expressed.

The tuber, for, like the potato, the dasheen is a tuber, is grown in hills, something like the potato, but gives a more abundant yield. The crop easily runs to 300 bushels per acre—and only an exceptional plato crop runs so high. It does not ripen until October, and is not injured by the early frosts.

The dasheen may be chipped and cooked like potatoes, or baked after being parboiled. But the most delightful way of preparing it is to cook it with butter and cream, after the manner of escalloping potatoes.

The Horse Chestnut's Name.

[Chicago Herald:] Why the horse chestnut is so called is a debatable point, but at least one passable explanation of the name may be found in a peculiar characteristic of the tree. If, when it is mature, a leaf be broken off cleanly at the point where its stem joins the branch it will be discovered that the base of the stem is the exact shape of a horse's hoof, and if one looks further one will see plainly marked upon the "hoof" the nail marks of the horse's shoe.

The similitude of hoof and nails is at least remarkable. It might be supposed, in reference to the name of this tree, that horses were fond of the fruit, but one believes that this is not the case; nor does any other creature, except perhaps the rat or mouse, attempt to eat this natural and abundant product.

BIG SCOPE TO TENOR'S PLANS.

CONSTANTINO OPERA PROJECT FAST MATURING.

Famous Singer Would Eliminate Impresario Expense, and have Managing Board of Chief Subscribers—Hopes to Give Free School Children's Performances.

Plans for Signor Florencio Constantino's opera company, which promises to provide Los Angeles with many a delectable dish in the musical way before the close of the year, are steadily shaping. The project is incidentally assuming much larger proportions than at first anticipated.

Signor Constantino is a man of big ideas, and he is laying the foundation for the bringing of a big message not only to lovers of art, but to the people at large as well. "As an increasing number of artists are coming and will come from the people, it should be our endeavor more and more to bring art to the people," is the keynote of his scheme, as stated by himself.

His plan's most important phase is its idea for the elimination of impresarios and agents, and in consequence, he contends, of a large financial drain. The business in connection with the enterprise will be carried on largely by the chief supporters, who will lend their efforts for the love of art, and, perhaps, a single salaried technical manager.

One of the most important innovations contemplated by Signor Constantino is a free performance every week for the school children. Every artist who becomes a member of the operatic organization must agree to offer his services gratis on these occasions. This feature is part of Signor Constantino's scheme to make opera an educational institution, as well as a form of entertainment.

Another novel feature of the plan will be the giving of four gala performances a week and four popular performances. The scale of prices for the former will be somewhat higher than for the latter, but a larger number of prominent stars will be presented. In this way Signor Constantino plans to make an appeal to all classes of people.

The noted tenor, on account of his experience and wide acquaintance with operatic artists, will be able, he declares, to secure high-class talent at comparatively a low cost. He himself, artistic singer that he is, would be an adequate leading light for any operatic organization.

Louise Rieger,

Artistic soprano, whose concert on the 27th inst. at the Hollywood Woman's Clubhouse will prove an enjoyable musical event.

Moreover, Signor Constantino intends to import as little talent as possible. For chorus, orchestra and ballet he will draw almost entirely from local resources. The chorus will number about thirty and the orchestra some thirty-five. Conductor will be Chevalier Fulgencio Guerreri, who wielded the baton over many a performance given here in the past by the Lambardi forces.

The ballet for the organization has already been trained. Arrangements are now being made for the formation of the chorus, and rehearsals of this body will start shortly.

The backing for the organization is assured, according to Signor Constantino, and those who will support the company have agreed to leave any profits which may perchance accrue to go toward the establishment of permanent opera.

Signor Constantino has recently become associated with a local dramatic school in order to present a course in opera. It is his purpose later on to draw a portion of his talent from the students of this educational institution.

No attempt will in all probability be made to give operas on which royalties have to be paid, at least during the first year, on account of the added expense. Later, however, it is hoped to present many of the more important modern works.

Among the novelties which Signor Constantino hopes to give during the coming season are Boito's "Mephistophele," which will prove new to this section, and perhaps the little-heard "Le Prophete," by Meyerbeer, and "La Juive," of Halevy. "Lohengrin" is also scheduled for production. Old favorites, such as "Il Trovatore," "Rigoletto," "Lucia," etc., are necessarily assured.

Mrs. Rieger's Recital.

Popular local singer,

Molly Byerly Wilson, who has just completed arrangements for a five months' concert tour, in the course of which operatic numbers given in costume will be a feature.

Mrs. Louise Rieger, soprano, formerly with the Boston Grand Opera Company, assisted by Miss Wilhelmina Rector, pianiste, of this city, will give a recital tomorrow evening at the Hollywood Woman's Club House. This will be Mrs. Rieger's last appearance before her departure for the East in October. Upon her return to New York she expects to engage in concert and recital work.

Mrs. Rieger has appeared in concerts in Paris and London. She was heard locally with the Ellis Club last year and at the opening of Trinity Auditorium, when her unusual capabilities and artistry won her great praise. Miss Rector is well known in the musical and social world of this city.

Other concerts in the series will be respectively devoted to German, French, English, Scandinavian and Italian music.

Mrs. Maybery, formerly of New York, is said to have a voice of richness, extensive range and dramatic power, admirably suited to the selections she will sing.

The public is cordially invited, and a silver offering will be taken at the door. Following is the programme:

Overture, "A Life for the Czar"	Glinka
"Cradle Song"	Iljinsky

Arranges Concert Tour.

While in San Francisco last week, Molly Byerly Wilson, contralto, consummated arrangements for a five months' concert tour, with engagements which will take her over a large part of the United States. Western dates will begin at Chicago November 8, where the tour will extend to the Pacific Coast and back again via northern and southern routes, after a number of engagement are filled in California. Beginning the first of the year, the tour will include the Central and Southern States, and thereafter the Atlantic Coast States.

A feature of Miss Wilson's programmes planned will consist of operatic selections rendered in costume.

Franz Programme.

In commemoration of the 100th anniversary of Robert Franz, Miss Margaret Goetz, at her first repertoire recital for this season, presented a programme of some fifteen of the master's songs, as well as a group of his harmonizations of the Bach chorals, at Blanchard Hall last Wednesday. She was assisted by Mrs. Gertrude Ross, painiste.

The Franz songs included many of the popular favorites of the composer, as well as some of his comparatively little heard work. Instructive and illuminating talks added greatly to the interest of theprogramme, which met with the warm approbation of the audience.

The next repertoire recital, October 7, will be devoted to American composers, songs on the programme of Emmy Destinn.

Miss Goetz has been giving these repertoire recitals for a number of years with great success.

Noted Musical Visitor.

A noted musical visitor in this city is Hugh Allan, who is stopping at the Kendis apartments on West Sixth street, and who has appeared several times locally in concert. Mr. Allan is known as the "baritone with tenor notes."

He has been engaged to appear with Mary Garden in concert this season, the tour to commence with a recital at the Biltmore Hotel in New York. Prior to his departure for the East Mr. Allan will be heard at the Amphion Club in San Diego, October 13; at the Friday Morning Club here, in Russian songs and others in Neapolitan dialect, October 22, and in a recital at the Kendis apartments October 26.

He will return to this city in February. He has sung with the symphony orchestras in many large eastern cities.

Chamber Music Recitals.

The Fuhrer de Zielinski trio is planning a series of chamber music recitals to be given at the studio home of its members during the winter. As usual, this organization will devote especial attention to the modern school of music, especially the modern Russians.

The arrival of a very interesting new quartette for violin, 'cello, viola and piano has caused them recently to invite a fourth member in for occasional work, Sydney Peck, a very capable viola player. The personnel of the original trio is as follows: Miss Bessie Fuhrer, violin; Miss Lucy Fuhrer, 'cello, and Jaroslav de Zielinski, piano.

Another Visitor.

Mme. Alys Larreyne of Paris, known as the "most beautiful woman on the French stage," is among the musicians of prominence visiting in this city. Mme. Larreyne came to the Coast to be present at the wedding ceremonies of her sister, Mrs. Carlos C. Close, who was married at the Stanford Memorial Church two days after she graduated from the college of law at the university last May. Mme. Larreyne made her debut in Paris as Elsa in "Lohengrin," and later was heard as Marguerite in "Faust." She has sung frequently in concerts in Paris and London.

Her first concert appearance on this Coast was at San Diego, where she sang to the accompaniment of the Spreckels organ.

Philharmonic Notes.

Edoardo Ferrari-Fontana, the distinguished lyric tenor of the Metropolitan Operahouse, who will be heard here this season in joint recital with his famous wife, Mme. Margarete Matzenauer, contralto from the same organization, is one of the striking personalities in the musical world. He has contrived to maintain his own individuality and the personal favor of the public in spite of the fact that he married a genuine idol in the world of opera.

The eminent singer is one of many artists who participated in the war. As a member of the Eleventh Regiment of Cavalry, in the Italian forces, he fought during the first month of his country's fortification in conflict, receiving the Order of Commendatore from the King of Italy, this being the same order as bestowed on Caruso. It is a signal honor in Italy. He was released from army duty under the government order covering singers and instrumentalists of note.

It was during a sojourn in South America, where he acted in the diplomatic corps at Montevideo, Uruguay, that he first considered studying music seriously. Singing as an amateur he attracted the attention of the opera comique manager of Montevideo, who offered him a contract. A season of this followed, after which he returned to Rome, singing in similar organizations and acting without musical accompaniment. He first came to this country to visit, with his gifted wife, Mme. Matzenauer, and during this sojourn signed a contract with the Boston Opera Company.

Eduardo Ferrari-Fontana.
Tilly Koenen.

Two leading luminaries

Of the coming Philharmonic courses, the first of which will open next week, with a concert by Emmy Destinn at Trinity. Tilly Koenen will sing here early in the winter, and Ferrari-Fontana will appear in joint recital with Mme. Matzenauer.

Emmy Destinn, the distinguished Bohemian soprano, who will be heard here in recital October 5 and 9, arrived in this country yesterday from her summer sojourn at her home in Prague. This great artist's resplendent vocal triumphs at the Metropolitan Operahouse during the past seven seasons have gained her a position inferior to none whose name is inscribed in the history of that famous institution.

Her two programmes in this city will be entirely different, including numbers from her favorite operas, and several arias from works never heard outside of St. Petersburg. There will not be any students' tickets for this concert. Single-seat sale will open tomorrow at the Trinity box office.

Tillie Koenen, the well-known Dutch contralto, will return to Los Angeles again this season. Her singing will be remembered with pleasure from her visit here several years ago when she appeared as soloist with the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra and also as a Philharmonic artist.

Since her previous visit here Koenen has enjoyed a continued vogue in Europe, her recitals in Dresden, Berlin, Vienna, Budapest and a half-dozen other important cities always evincing her extraordinary popularity.

Mme. Thorner Concert.

Among the local soloists of prominence who will shortly be heard in recital is Mme. Helene Thorner, dramatic soprano. She is to sing at Trinity in October. This is her second season in Los Angeles, and her attainments have been demonstrated to be of a very high lyrico-dramatic order, when she appeared last year in concert and in the spring with the Ellis Club. Previous to coming to this city she was engaged in concert and recital work in the East.

Music Notes.

The forces of the Boston Opera-Pavlowa ballet troupe are being gathered together for the coming season which will open in Chicago October 4. The total membership of the company will be 250 persons. Besides the Chicago appearances the troupe will also visit larger middle western and eastern cities.

The success of his recent benefit concert in San Francisco, at which he realized over $9000, has inspired Paderewski to lay plans for further work of this nature next month in the East. He will give at least three concerts, the entire proceeds of which will be devoted to the cause which he espouses. These will be in New York, Boston and Chicago. His programmes will be taken up entirely with the composition of Chopin.

Fritz Kreisler has been exercising his well-known talent in the field of transcription, while spending the summer in Bar Harbor. Among other things he has rearranged a Rondino of Beethoven, one of the master's quite-forgotten compositions, as well as a fascinating Spanish dance by Granados, the Spanish composer, whose opera, "The Goyescas," is to be performed next winter at the Metropolitan Operahouse, and a posthumous mazurka of Chopin. His own "Caprice Viennois" he has remodeled into a vocal number called "Cradle Song 1915."

A mighty concourse of melody makers is scheduled for tomorrow at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, where members of the American Federation of Musicians from all parts of the Pacific Coast will assemble to show appreciation of that day's being designated in honor of their organization. It is expected that at least 1000 practical instrumentalists will be present, individually and in bands, and a programme is in process of arrangement that will tremendously augment the average attendance at Jewel City.

Eugenia Jones, one of the attractive young whistlers from the California School of Artistic Whistling, took part on an elaborate programme at Huntington Park Thursday evening. The entertainment was given by the local Improvement Club at the new clubhouse.

One of Havrah Hubbard's famous opera talks, covering, in this case, "The Love of the Three Kings" (Montemezzi) and "The Secret of Suzannee" (Wolf-Ferrari,) will prove a feature of the Dominant Club's tea and programme to be given next Saturday afternoon at the Ebell Clubhouse.

POLITICIANS, STATESMEN.

Congressman Asher C. Hinds, Republican, of the First Maine District, has announced his retirment from active politics because of ill health. He will not be a candidate for renomination at the primaries next June. Previous to his election to Congress, Mr. Hinds was parliamentarian of the House.

Henry A. du Pont, United States Senator from Delaware, is a candidate for re-election.

Mr. Bryan was in Washington last week, and called at the Department of Justice and recommended the appointment of William H. Thompson of Grand Island, Neb., as a Federal judge of the northern district of Nebraska, vice Judge William H. Munger, deceased. Mrs. Thompson for many years has been chairman of the State Democratic Committee and a political supporter of the "peerless leader."

"Uncle Joe" Cannon will be the Republican candidate for Congressman-at-large from Illinois if the party wants him to make the race. This is what "Uncle Joe" indicated at the Iroquois county fair at Watseka. He declared that the party has done much for him and that he is willing to follow its dictates, even to stepping out of the way for a candidate other than himself.

Of Senator James Hamilton Lewis of Illinois, who was the principal speaker at a Democratic rally in Jersey City, the New York Sun says: "Whatever the Senator's theme is when he takes the platform, it is worth any man's while to see him in action. His eagle eye, the spread of his whiskers, his well tailored figure a diversified vocabulary, and the thunders of his elocution combine to furnish a rare treat."

Speaker Champ Clark has ignored an invitation of the Business Women's Equal Suffrage League to speak in St. Louis at the opening of a new campaign for suffrage. An invitation was sent to the Speaker in midsummer and members were so confident he would accept and launch their crusade for them they raised $100 to pay his expenses to St. Louis and entertain him while there. Mrs. Clark and Mrs. Genevieve Champ Clark Thomson, the Speaker's daughter, have been looked on as ardent suffragists and the Speaker has been regarded as favorable toward the "cause."

Mayor C. W. Thomas of Jefferson City declares that he is to be the next Governor of Missouri. In an inter-Mr. Thomas said: "You are probably Mr. Thomas said: "Yo uare probably unaware of it, but you are speaking to the next Governor of Missouri. Jefferson City normally is Democratic by a majority of 1000, but I have been elected Mayor for three consecutive years. Think of it, a Republican Mayor in a Democratic stronghold, which Jefferson City is, because the Democratic State headquarters are there! So this explains why I am being boomed as a gubernatorial candidate. I do not hesitate to predict my election."

OVER THE SEA.

Aside from Dr. Dumba there are present in America only three members of the official Ambassador's family. These are Counselor Baron Erich Zwiedinek von Sudenhorst, Second Secretary Chamberlain [illegible] Hedry de Hedri et de Genere Aba, and Attache Alfred zu Hohenlohe-Schillingsfurst. If any one of these is made charge d'affaires it will be mighty hard on the newspapers—especially if Mr. Hedry de Hedri et de Genere Aba is the lucky man. The German Embassy with its Von Papen and Boy-Ed is much more human.

Lord Michelham, who has offered $5000 reward to any British aviator who destroys a Zeppelin while in the air, is said to be one of the wealthiest men in Europe. He owns the famous house at Strawberry Hill which once belonged to Horace Walpole, and his family collection of jewels is one of the finest in the world. Lord Michelham subscribed more than $5,000,000 of the war loan.

Gen. Jecoff, the new Bulgarian Minister of War, is the youngest general in the Bulgarian army. He is a graduate of the Nicolaievskaia Academy (Petrograd Military School.) He was the director of the military academy at Sofia from 1905 to 1912, and during the war of the Balkans was chief of staff of the Second Army, commanded by Gen. Ibanoff. It was Gen. Jecoff who directed the operations that resulted in the capture of Adrianople.

M. Goremykin, premier of Russia, whose retirement has been announced and denied during the past week, was appointed on January 30, 1914. He has always been regarded as a bureaucrat and reactionary. It was his influence, it is said, that caused the downfall of M. Witte as a power in Russia. Only recently the Czar bestowed upon him the Order of St. Andrew, highest of the Muscovite decorations and a mark of signal honor. He is 77 years old and one of the richest men in Russia.

Admiral Li of the Chinese navy is a Christian, and his firm adherence to his principles has of late months made his official life unpleasant. He incurred the displeasure of President Yuan by refusing to obey the order that all officials connected with the boards of the army and navy should go to the Temple of the War God to worship in the old Confucian manner.

Mr. Davidson Dalziel, M. P., the new proprietor of the London Pall Mall Gazette, is also the owner of Reynolds's newspaper, a Sunday paper which for many years was rather malodorous to the minds of Londoners. It stooped to all sorts of violence in doctrines and got into trouble during the reign of Queen Victoria for proposing the setting up of a republic. Mr. Dalziel has had his hand in the press for many years in one way or another—a news agency with his name having flourished for a time. During the war he has been a partner with Sir Arthur Markham, M. P., in heckling and annoying Mr. Asquith and his ministers.

Raymond Poincare is by no means an easy man to describe. He is the only French President, who looks the part of a ruler. In his person are centered, as it were, the aspirations of France, for he is a native of Lorraine. He was a captain of Alpine Chasseurs in his younger days and shows the result of his military training in his erect and vigorous bearing. Were you to see him apart from his official surroundings you might well take him, with his air of command and authority, for a great employer or a captain of industry.

UNITED STATES SIZED UP.

Chinese Author Says His Country Can Expect Little Help, and America May Regret Past Inaction.

[Boston Transcript:] Some interesting Chinese views as to American interest in the Far East appear in a book which has been written by J. Wong-Quincey under the title "The Great World War from the Chinese Standpoint." The author's father was, while a child, adopted by the famous British general, Charles George Gordon, known as "Chinese" Gordon, while he was in command of the "Ever-Victorious Army" which in thirty-three rapid engagements quelled the Taiping Rebellion in [illegible].

"We deceive ourselves," says the writer, "if we are led to expect any substantial asistance from the United States of America. For all practical purposes, America will remain a negligible factor in the Far Eastern question as we have it today. Until some radical change is brought about in the Far Eastern situation, she will continue to fill the honorable role of a mild upholder of universal peace and good-will among nations; and it is difficult to blame her for it. We have seen that the position of America in world politics is essentially a defensive one; so long as she, herself, is not unduly threatened, so long as she obtains free play for her commercial enterprises, she sees no reason to meddle seriously with the affairs of other nations.

"America has no inordinate ambition for colonial expansion, so we are not in a position to offer her anything which can induce her to undertake our perils and share our burdens. No doubt can be entertained about the sincerity of America's good-will towards China; but good-will alone is a factor which counts for little in international diplomacy as we know it. However, it is conceivable that the Japanese menace in the Pacific may, in the near future, become increasingly pressing, and when it is too late to interfere the United States may have reason to regret her past inaction. America could well have intervened in Korea; again she was presented with an opportunity to check Japanese designs on Manchuria, and now for the third time her interference is virtually invited, but it is feared that she will continue serenely to preach, while the fate of great nations in two [illegible] hangs in the balance.

"While we are hoping devoutly that this great world war will have a purifying and salutary influence upon international politics of the future, he proceeds, [illegible] muts, at the same time, be prepared for the worst. The fact must be driven home to our national consciousness that the old methods of procrastination and of playing one [illegible] against the other are mere [illegible] shifts which must, in the long run, end disastrously for ourselves, and in place of temporary expedients, now is the time to frame and pursue a foreign policy at once bold, clear and definite, and to maintain a continuity of purpose which shall be above all party politics, and shall secure for our nation that measure of safety which will enable us to develop our resources without fear of molestation."

If you have corns, bunions or chilblains have your appendix cut out. This, in brief, was the advice of Dr. James R. Price of Chicago in an address delivered before the convention of the American Association of [illegible] Surgeons. Dr. Price also said that removal of the appendix stimulated the circulation of the blood and improves the general health.

A beautiful German woman is given an important commission and becomes the hostess to French officers just back of the firing line, ably impersonating a French countess. She is a very clever woman—but the alleged friend of her alleged husband is not easily seduced.

"Playing Dead" is not without interest, but depends on the grossly-preposterous idea of a man pretending to be dead so his wife may marry an affinity, and concludes with a merry climax despite a narrowly averted tragedy.

"Billy and the Big Stick" has one situation worth reading, re-reading and remembering. The President of Haiti insists on cheating Billy out of his salary, but when Billy gets a moving-picture actor who doesn't understand French before the President, who doesn't understand English, and acts as interpreter, fireworks result which threaten to embroil the United States—and Billy gets his money.

"The Frame-Up" is complicated, shows how easy it is for a district attorney to be honest when enemies are trying to "get the goods" on him—and why he is so.

"The Boy Scout" is twaddle of the sort Mr. Davis's detractors accuse him of always writing. "The Card Sharp" is a serious effort, but with an ending that doesn't surprise—as is obviously, laboriously intended—anyone schooled in modern climaxes. A card sharp is exposed in the smoking-room of a steamer and tries to "square himself" by saying he is the brother of a distinguished and wealthy New Yorker.

None of the five, in fact, gains anything by being inevitably contrasted with the one story that is not homogeneous with the "pot boiler."

CLEVER, SATIRICAL SKETCHES.

MARIA AGAIN. By Mrs. John Lane. John Lane Company, New York.

IT'S trite to speak of a "sense of humor." But Maria hasn't it. Mrs. John Lane has. Anyone who read "According to Maria" knows that. "Maria Again" is even better. It is streaked with brilliant, up-to-the-minute satire.

The chapter "On Sales" is a classic; a short story better than some of O. Henry's good ones. Maria receives a ten-pound legacy to purchase a mourning ring for a departed aunt and goes bargain hunting.

Literary ladies, those who make a social display of opera patronage, the wives seeking emancipation, the benevolent ladies organized to reform burglars—about these and others play the lambent flames of Mrs. Lane's amusing irony.

Her touch is light and quick and skillful; each of the nineteen chapters is a detached situation that usually has the technic of a short story as well as an abundance of clever twists and witty comments.

Maria has valuable opinions on Shakespeare in the moving pictures. According to her the trouble with Shakespeare is that he talks too much and without his poetry he's just grand.

Also she discourses on wedding presents, on love before and after marriage, on the advantages of having friends with motors—for if you must make new friends, why not consider the motor?—on growing old.

Indeed, indeed, Maria is loquacious and flighty, but her opinions usually illuminate a rather unsuspected phase of the subject; her humorlessness is one of the amusing features of her staccato polemics. But with all her eccentricity, Maria is not freakish—seems to be a very normal woman, in fact—and many an apathetic man, not tinctured with the cleverness of Mrs. Lane, has looked at the normal women about him and wished in vain for the magic mirror of satire which she gracefully flashes from side to side.

ANOTHER "VIRILE" ROMANCE.

HARDING OF ALLENWOOD. By Harold Bindloss. Frederick A. Stokes Company.

THERE'S a faint glimmer of originality in one minor incident in "Harding of Allenwood." The remainder of it is hackneyed fiction, written largely on the spurious conception that a Canadian, frontier, northwestern, open-air theme is necessarily virile, "big," red-blooded. Harold Bindloss throws out fiction by the buckets full, and all stories are of one pattern, the pattern that amateurs design when they first decide to be geniuses.

Harding, a "virile" fellow of the kind that make aristocratic girls keep him in their mind's eye after the first glimpse, takes up land in Canada near the exclusive gentlemen's farming colony at Allenwood.

As is quite natural in Harold Bindloss's fiction, Harding almost at once gallantly proves of valued assistance some three or four times to the blue-blooded heroine or her family. Later on he makes good an indorsement that her gambling brother has forged to a note; he sets another and younger brother on the straight and narrow path; he saves the colony from the clutches of a conspiring land agent; he pounds—figurative, of course—the idea of farming efficiency into the heads of the gentlemen failures; then he asks the blue-blooded damosel for her small, white hand as a permanent acquisition.

Lo! Then it is that Harding lets it be known that he is something more than an honest and rugged son of the soil, than a horny-handed, thrifty pioneer. He is the son of a gentleman, a gentleman in the same caste as her own aristocratically-choleric father.

Then—and here is where the originality shows up—she admits that it does make a difference to her, implying that it is so much easier to love him now that she knows his father was a gentleman. She is the first heroine we ever met who had the honesty to say it—scores of them, however, have futilely essayed to conceal their snobbishness with a denial.

Of course, she can't help being a snob any more than it seems Mr. Harold Bindloss can help writing about snobs, making heroes and heroines of them, carrying his fictional blue print into Africa, into Alaska, but usually keeping it in Canada, and using the same manikins in the same roles with only a change of scenery and head-dress.

Christian Reid, who in private life is Mrs. Francis Fisher Tiernan, ranks among the women authors of America who have been longest practicing the art of fiction. Her first novel, "Valeria Alymer," appeared in 1870 and since then she has written and published more than thirty volumes of fiction. Her latest novel "A Far-Away Princess," brought out this winter by the Devin-Adair Company, New York, tells the love story of a French woman who has won fame on the stage in the title role of Rostand's "La Princess Lointaine."

INTERPRETATIONS BY BRAINY MEN.

PROBLEMS OF READJUSTMENT AFTER THE WAR: "The War and Democracy," by Albert Bushnell Hart, Professor of the Science of Government at Harvard; "An Economic Interpretation of the War," by Edwin R. A. Seligman, Professor of Political Economy at Columbia; "The Crisis in Social Evolution," by Franklin H. Giddings, Professor of Sociology and the History of Civilization at Columbia; "The Relation of the Individual to the State," by Westel W. Willoughby, Professor of Political Science at Johns Hopkins; "The War and International Law," by George Grafton Wilson, Professor of International Law at Harvard; "The War and International Commerce and Finance," by Emory R. Johnson, Professor of Transportation and Commerce at the University of Pennsylvania; "The Conduct of Military and Naval Warfare," by Caspar F. Goodrich, Rear-Admiral, U.S.N., Retired. D. Appleton & Co., New York.

THERE'S enough material for rumination to last a healthy man a lifetime in this symposium of cold, clear, deep-thinking, objective, analytical discussions of war problems.

Prof. Seligman's "Economic Interpretation" alone sends the chromatic books to the rubbish pile and digs into economic origins.

"To say," he remarks, "that either Great Britain or Germany is responsible for the present war, seems to involve a curiously shortsighted view of the situation. Both countries, nay, all the countries in the world, are subject to the sweep of these mighty (economic) forces over which they have but slight control and by which they are one and all pushed on with inevitable fatality. England, no less than Germany, Austria no less than Russia, cannot escape this Nemesis. How idle is it, therefore, to speculate as to what the particular torch may have been which set fire to the conflagration!"

Prof. Hart in "The War and Democracy" shows how like ropes of sand were the restraining influences of the national legislatures of the belligerent country, and how at the first blast of war the military autocracy of every country abrogated practically each hard-won democratic prerogative.

Prof. Wilson in "The War and International Law" denied that international law is discarded or in contempt, instances manifestations of its power and emphasizes the strenuous wooing for neutrals' favor engaged in by all the nations at war, each representing that it abides by international law even though its enemy is an atavistic barbarian.

Prof. Giddings makes an analysis of racial cultures in "The Crisis of Social Evolution;" Prof. Willoughby discusses the duties of state and individual, and the various interpretations placed upon these duties in different countries in "The Relation of the Individual to the State".

Prof. Johnson pries into the commercial and financial issues, and rather squelches the American patriot who believes the world's trade will tumble effortlessly into our hands, in "The War and International Commerce and Finance"; and Rear-Admiral Goodrich gives a brief, cursory sketch of "The Conduct of Military and Naval Warfare"—admitting that he is silenced in many things that he would like to say by President Wilson's orders on neutrality.

"Problems of Adjustment After the War" is a book eminently worth while for those who wish to get away from the trite, stupid, "patriotic" interpretations of the war and who seek discussions that have substance in them.

PSYCHOLOGICAL STUDY.

HUMAN MOTIVES. By James Jackson Putnam, M.D. Little, Brown & Co., Boston.

THE author of this book is well qualified to interpret the meaning of human motives, having been for many years professor of diseases of the nervous system in Harvard University. Thus he was given abundant opportunity for studying abnormal, as well as normal, deportment, and the motives governing it.

"Motives are at best such mixed affairs," he asserts, "and the chances are so many for deceiving ourselves as to the deeper bearings of our thoughts and acts, that the temptation instinctively to take advantage of one or another of these opportunities is almost irresistible."

Nevertheless, Dr. Putnam believes that most normal persons do not take advantage of these temptations. "I believe," he says, "on the one hand, that men are more strongly bound than they usually recognize, by a sense of obligations definable as 'ideal.' Whatever name one may choose for these ties, they are virtually religious in their nature. . . . The sense of these obligations, even though unacknowledged or denied, make itself felt through the host of lesser motives."

The earlier chapters of the book deal with the two main sources of motives, and the relation of the individual to the creative energy which underlies the universe. The psychoanalytic movement is then considered at some length, and the interest and usefulness of this movement called to the attention of educators specifically. The final chapter points out that human progress is to be regarded as equivalent to the discovery of new relationships between the "inner world of one's own spirit and the world of empirical experience."

"Human Motives" is obviously the product of a trained observer of mature mind. It is full of useful suggestions, and there is a broad-minded, sympathetic interest in fellow creatures through it all that makes it peculiarly pleasing. The author is willing to point out our shortcomings, but is not inclined to censure us severely for them.

"Children love fairy stories," says Dr. Putnam, "and love to invent them for themselves; and they often go on—still as children, more mature in years but still immature in fact—telling themselves fairy stories to the end of time."

"HIGHER MATHEMATICS."

THE THEORY OF TRANSFINITE NUMBERS. By Georg Cantor. Translated and with Introduction and Notes by Philip E. B. Jourdain, M.A. (Cantab.) The Open Court Publishing Company, Chicago.

IF ONE enjoys the perusal of exceedingly abstruse mathematical theorems and speculations, the study of Cantor's "Theory of Transfinite Numbers" will delight his soul. Editor Jourdain, in an elaborate introduction to the author's work, reviews the successive steps of Fourier, Dirichlet, Cauchy, Weierstrass, Riemann, Hankel and Gauss in dealing logically with an immense complex of data, and reveals the influence those great minds of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries exerted on the researches of Georg Ferdinand Ludwig Philipp Cantor, who was born at St. Petersburg in 1845, lived successively in Wiesbaden, Frankfurt, Darmstadt and Berlin where, as extraordinary professor, he held the chair for a quarter of a century.

By an "aggregate," says Cantor, we are to understand any collection into a whole, M, of definite and separate objects, m, of our intuition or our thought. In signs we express this thus: M equals (m.)

Now the following explanatory paragraph ocurs in Mr. Jourdain's introduction: "Is not an aggregate an object outside of us, whereas its cardinal number is an abstract picture of it in our mind?" He then remarks: "In an ordered aggregate of any number of dimensions, such as the totality of points in space, as determined by three rectangular co-ordinates, or a piece of music whose dimensions are the sequence of the tones in time, the duration of each tone in time, the pitch of the tones, and the intensity of the tones, then, if we make abstraction of the nature of the elements, while we retain their rank in all the n different directions, an intellectual picture, a general concept, is generated in us, and I call this the n-ple ordinal type."

From the above simple formula, Cantor builds up the most intricate and bewildering equations imaginable, yet so rational and practicable in solving involved problems in the domain of modern physics where heat, electricity, chemical action, motion and power are the elusive elements to be dealt with, that they serve the civil engineer, the chemist, the electrician, the astronomer computing the orbits of rushing comets and enable him to simplify and shorten his work and deduce unerring results.

W. H. K.

"THE VALLEY ROAD."

"The Valley Road," by Mary Hallock Foote (Houghton Mifflin Company,) is largely a California story with the Russo-Japanese war in the background and the San Francisco disaster a factor in the plot.

The story is very quiet, and centers about two related families, one of which is wealthy, the other poor. Tom Scarth succeeds his father as engineer on a tract project after spending some years in Korea, where he met Mary. The death of the president of the land company causes a disturbance in Tom's fortunes, but through the San Francisco fire he is again brought in contact with Mary, and a destiny is worked out.

COMMENT AND OPINION.

Blast: A Belligerent Quarterly.

Blast has deceived its enemies. It has not died. A somewhat belated, emaciated, thin Blast has appeared more than a year after the initial number—a fat, bold, arrogant number it was, clouting, even as Samson, its thousands of Philistines with the jawbone of an ass. Or maybe it was only the bourgeoise that were clouted. Anyway, there was much clouting, a swarm of bombastic oaths, a pandemonium of alphabetic trumpeting, all more or less for the purpose of showing how stupid were those people who didn't see merit in a variation of Cubism that is called Vorticism.

The second number of Blast is, as pointed out, belated, emaciated, thin—but full of fight as ever. Perhaps a little fuller.

Wyndham Lewis, publishing through John Lane Company, remains the editor, chief contributor and artist. He is assisted by prose and efforts at prosody by Ezra Pound and others. Gaudier-Brzeska, one of the leaders in Vorticism, is represented in Blast for the last time. After two promotions for gallantry, he was killed in a charge—a victim of the war.

In his final article to Blast he wrote: "This war is a great remedy. In the individual it kills arrogance, self-esteem, pride. It takes away from the masses numbers upon numbers of unimportant units, whose economic activities become noxious."

"Spoon River Anthology."

Some people are pleased to see in Mr. Masters's "Spoon River Anthology" (The Macmillan Company) the awakening of a new and virile poetic expression. Certain it is that Mr. Masters has been favored by much critical commendation as well as the less respectful praise of imitation.

One enthusiastic popular author, whose opinion, however, on such matters is of no particular importance, has called it one of the six best books of fiction in the English language.

The mere fact that anyone presumes to select the "six best books" in the English language shows what fools some mortals be. Anyone who can even pick out the six books that they like best must have a limited and static appreciation of good books.

The "Spoon River Anthology" is an admirable work. So are the "Collected Plays and Poems" of Cale Young Rice. Why should anyone attempt an arbitrary comparison to ascertain the relative "greatness" of either? For no sensible reason at all.

Mr. Masters's work is original, fresh, strong. But if it is set up as a standard and imitated it will soon become as tiresome as Wilde's paradoxes or diagramed love songs.

A few years ago the elect (self-chosen) "raved" over the "Rubaiyat." Now it has become commonplace. To quote a line is to show yourself "middle-class." The self-elect sniff contemptuously at the "Rubaiyat" and mention with esoteric aplomb the "Kasidah."

In time the "Kasidah" will be dishonored by popularity, and the self-elect will hasten with skirts high from those things appreciated by the herd and find something else upon which to show their superior esthetics.

At present Mr. Masters bids fair to have a "Rubaiyat"-vogue in a mild way. Too many people are reading and appreciating the "Spoon River Anthology." It will no doubt become quite "common." Perhaps even shop-girls will be quoting it, even as they are now said to quote: "Come, fill the cup and in the fire of spring. . . ."

Mr. Masters will probably be glad of it; but the people who now "rave" over Mr. Masters—what of them? Shakespeare even has become "common" through general appreciation; and we are learning every day from some culturette that Shakespeare only wrote for the mob, anyway.

"Mrs. Kessler" Speaks.

There are some people, "awfully middle-class, of course," who really like Shakespeare, who still read with deep feeling the "Rubaiyat," who have read the "Kasidah" for fifteen years and who are just "common" enough to wish that all the shop-girls on earth could quote from "Spoon River Anthology."

Anyone who cares to can attribute lots of flaws and defects to the soliloquies from the Anthology, but some people who don't care to must acknowledge the element of greatness in many of them. And no doubt shop-girls, and especially washer-women, could find as much as some of the aero-static intellectuals to appreciate in these remarks by Mrs. Kessler:

"Mr. Kessler, you know, was in the army,
And he drew six dollars a month as a pension,
And stood on a corner talking politics,
Or sat at home reading 'Grant's Memoirs;'
And I supported the family by washing,
Learning secrets of all the people
From their curtains, counterpanes, shirts and skirts.
For things that are new grow old at length,
They're replaced with better or none at all;
People are prospering or falling back.
And rents and patches widen with time;
No thread or needle can pace decay,
And there are stains that baffle soap,
And there are colors that run in spite of you,
Blamed though you are for spoiling a dress.
Handkerchiefs, napery, have their secrets—
The laundress, Life, knows all about it.
And I, who went to all the funerals
Held in Spoon River, swear I never Saw a dead face without thinking it looked Like something washed and ironed."

GUIDE BOOKS FOR TRAVELERS.

Keeping in mind the fact that tourists want to know where to go and how to get there, William-Harman Black, a seasoned globe trotter, has recently published through the association for New York, "The Real United States and Canada," and "The Real Round the World Guide Book." The first of these has six transcontinental tours mapped out in detail and about 175 side trips, all of which include information as to hotels, their rates and places of interest to visit.

The "Real Round the World Guide Book" contains an actual diary and expense account of an independent 100-day trip around the world over the northern route via the Trans-Siberian Railway, and full particulars of an eastward, and a westward trip by the southern route through the Suez and India. All the information is considered vital and much considered valuable for travelers is given.

The fact that Baedeker's Guide for the United States has not been revised since 1908, coupled with the additional fact that the war has shut off the supply of Baedeker's makes Mr. Black's book timely.

PERSONAL—

MRS. MASSON,
the noted palmist, of London, England, may be consulted at 322 SOUTH SPRING STREET, by those desiring CAREFUL, CONSCIENTIOUS AND SCIENTIFIC HAND READINGS, FROM ONE OF THE FOREMOST PALMISTS OF THE DAY.

The earnest student and thinker will soon learn in his investigations along psychological lines that that which pertains to occult phenomena proper can readily be distinguished from crude and oft-exposed SLEIGHT-OF-HAND TRICKS, the most common of which is the telling of the subject's name, age, etc., AFTER HE HIMSELF HAS WRITTEN THAT information.

PALMISTRY HONESTLY PRACTICED WILL NOT tell your name, but it WILL give you information of considerably greater value in every-day life. Your vocation, your present line of work, matters of health and domestic life, financial conditions and ways and means of climbing out of a rut of ill luck into wide paths of success and prosperity, can all be told you through scientific palmistry, WITHOUT A SINGLE QUESTION, WRITTEN OR VERBAL.

MRS. MASSON DOES NOT APPEAL TO IGNORANT SUPERSTITION, BUT TO THE FINEST INTELLIGENCE.

THE STRATFORD.

APARTMENT HOTEL.

IS NOW ENTIRELY RENOVATED.

Four doubles and three singles and two hotel rooms are left, these are the best in the house, with sun all day.

Out-door life is the only life in California; with our large grounds and numerous porches, unlike anything in the city, it appeals to every one; inspection of this beautiful spot is the only way to describe it; all other accessories in the house are its equal. What we have and give cannot be duplicated. The children enjoy the play grounds, while the tennis court is always busy.

Remember what the word home means, we live it and have it every day at the Stratford.

"A HOUSE OF HARMONY."

Our entertainments will be numerous this winter. A cordial invitation is extended to all for inspection by the host and hostess, MR. AND MRS. ELMER WOODBURY, at Sixth and Burlington.

If we cannot or do not make you satisfied and comfortable, we don't want you to stay with us. We have a very few single apartments at $30; others higher, doubles at $50 and up.

Elegantly furnished, liberal service, free water, light and heat; private phone in each apartment; all outside rooms.

Besides housekeeping apartments The Belmont has single rooms with bath and hotel service for bachelors, at $30 and up.

The constant aim of the management is to make The Belmont

TO OWNERS OF GARAGES AND SUPPLY STATIONS.

Gentlemen: I have an attractive proposition to offer a few representative garages and stations. Air-in-al seals punctures automatically and instantly, is non-injurious, prolongs life of rubber, retards blow-outs, reduces friction, guarantees even pressure in all four tires and security against puncture. It is easily installed, and in case of accident, is easily removed from car or clothes with cold water.

The New York Fire Department uses it exclusively. England, France and Russia gave one order for $250,000 of Air-in-al. It is in hundreds of thousands of cars in America and Europe. It is indorsed by the largest rubber manufacturers and all users. It has stood these tests for over three years. Write for proposition while this communication is in your hand, or phone A. D. BASSETT, exclusive general agent for California, 333 W. Pico, corner Grand. Phones: Main 3605, F4186. (Service station at same address.) Send for testimonials and literature.

MR. OWNER—
Are you trying to sell your car? If so, are you employing the best methods to do so? Is your car properly advertised? Is your car properly displayed? Is your car in good condition? Is your car in the hands of a competent salesman, or is your car in some out of the way barn, or garage, dirty, neglected, out of the line of travel, not ready to demonstrate, and in many ways unfit to show? If so, it is time for action on your part. Phone F3961, or if you can, visit our salesrooms—the largest used car establishment on the Pacific Coast, centrally located, and every car properly displayed.

Our leader this week, for the laying hen, for the moulting hen, for the whole flock is CO-OPERATIVE DRY MASH.

This mash has proven successful for so many poultrymen, whose experiences are unlimited, that we felt it our duty to the poultry fraternity to pass the good word along. Hear what one of the pioneers of the San Fernando Valley has to say:

Mr. B. R. Hollyway, Van Nuys, Cal.

"We began using Co-operative Dry Mash November, 1913. Have used no other since that time. Use Co-operative Chick Feed and Growing Feed with excellent results. Before we adopted Co-operative feeds we had used all brands of mash, also mixed our own, but never secured the results we have had with Co-operative Dry Mash. We were the first to adopt its use in this valley and our introduction has enabled our dealer to develope a sale of more than 60 tons per month and growing all the time. The Holly Poultry Ranch, 2000 layers, hatching capacity 31,000 eggs."

These letters come unsolicited but their light is too great to hide under a bushel.

Mr. Poultryman, demand Co-operative Dry Mash of your dealer, if he won't supply you we will. Send for feed circular.

"AMERICAN FACTORY REBUILT" means a class of typewriters such as no other concern does or can rebuild as we do. It is an identifying term used to distinguish our machines from the great mass of typewriters which are offered under the name "REBUILT." It means that when you purchase an "AMERICAN REBUILT TYPEWRITER" you get a "FACTORY" constructed machine with new parts where necessary—a machine equal to NEW in mechanical quality. Take these points into consideration when you compare prices.

NIPISSING GETS OPTION ON MINE.

Day Property Passes to Six-million Corporation.

Government Testing Out New Cyanide Process.

Mammoth Gives up Bond on Golinsky Holding.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PLACERVILLE, Sept. 24.—The Nipissing Mining Company, operating at Cobalt, Can., has taken a bond and option on the Day mine for a reported price of $100,000. A contract has been let for the sinking of an exploratory shaft, and it is understood a diamond drill will be installed to prospect the vein system.

The Day mine is a large milling proposition. Large quantities of ore assaying around $20 per ton are blocked out, but the product is largely of base character, requiring special treatment.

It is said that the new operators will drive a lower tunnel to open the ore bodies to an approximate depth of 1000 feet, and that considerable machinery will be provided. Satisfactory mine development will be followed by the building of a large reduction plant, probably of the cyanide type. The Nipissing is a $6,000,000 corporation and has distributed dividends aggregating $13,140,000 to stockholders.

A new ore shoot has been encountered on the 3200-foot level of the South Eureka mine, at Sutter Creek. It was found while driving for the main ore body. Within 100 feet the management expects to pick up the main ledge, which is yielding good ore in the 3100 workings. At present thirty stamps are dropping. An assessment was recently levied to defray the expense of sinking the shaft deeper.

The Brunswick Mining Company, operating at Grass Valley, has distributed its ninth dividend, aggregating $24,000. Mine conditions are pronounced exceptionally pleasing, with the outlook favorable for a long period of profitable operations. Building of a twenty-stamp addition to the old twenty-stamp mill is proceeding vigorously, and a new electric hoist and other mine equipment is being installed. With forty stamps in commission it is expected the company will largely increase its dividend disbursements. The working force numbers 150 men and late developments in the lower levels have been highly satisfactory.

The Union Hill mine, adjoining the Brunswick, is developing well. The full complement of twenty stamps is in commission, and the monthly output ranges from $12,000 to $15,000. While occasional bunches of specimen rock are found, the ore going to the stamps averages around $7.50 per ton. Arrangements have been made for extensive work in the westerly portion of the mine below the 300 level virgin territory. The company is also producing some tungsten of high grade, small quantities valued at $300 per ton having been recently shipped.

FOR BETTER RECOVERY.

Much interest has been aroused among mother-lode operators by the news that the United States Bureau of Mines is experimenting with a process for more complete gold extraction from mother-lode ores. An improved cyanidation method is being investigated, it is understood, and the general milling practice will be a distinct departure from the simple amalgamation and concentration generally employed. The bulk of ore coming from mother-lode mines averages $3 to $6 per ton, and many plants are milling the product at a cost of 30 to 70 cents per ton. They make recoveries of 85 to 95 per cent.

Late development in the Calaveras copper mine, near Copperopolis, has opened continuations of the rich shoots, which fifty years ago, made the property one of the most remarkable in the world. Narrow shoots of ore assaying 18 per cent. copper have been found in No. 6 level workings, the deepest point to which development has been carried in this portion of the property. Considerable ore averaging 10 per cent. copper has been sent to custom smelters in the past few weeks. With copper around 18 cents per pound this high-grade product is yielding excellent profits.

The Mammoth Copper Company has thrown up its bond on the Golinsky copper property after several weeks' of development, and is concentrating its attention to the Mammoth, Stowell, Friday-Lowden and Spread Eagle groups. Heavy ore shipments from the Stowell will soon commence. The smelter is turning out approximately 2,000,000 pounds of copper monthly, including the metal recovered from 7500 tons of Balaklala ore. Eastern reports to the effect that a larger tonnage of Balaklala ore would be shortly handled by the Mammoth Company have met with official denial.

IMPORTANT WORK.

The Bald Mountain Company is engaged in work in the Forest district, which is expected to have an important influence on operations of other companies. A double compartment shaft has been carried down seventy feet and is being deepened to tap the northern extension of the famous Bald Mountain channel. The development of high-grade auriferous material at this point would stimulate activities on several properties.

Humbug, long known as a placer mining camp in the extreme northern portion of California, is coming into prominence as a quartz producer. More than a dozen small lode mines are yielding rock, notably the Old Flag, Ideal, High Waters, Spencer and Boyle. Most of the quartz discoveries were made while the gravel channels were being prospected, and outside capital has recently become heavily interested. Plans for more modern reduction plants are being prepared.

The owners of the Cerro Gordo mine, near Keeler, are again operating the property on company account. The lease of L. P. Gordon and associates expired the 18th inst. During the life of this agreement extensive deposits of rich ore were developed, and heavy shipments of zinc and silver-lead rock was sent to eastern smelters. The parent company is now in a position to take full advantage of the excellent work carried on under the lease management. September is expected to record a banner output of zinc and lead. Larger quantities of silver-lead ore will be shipped in future. The owners have retained L. P. Gordon, former lease manager, to direct operations.

MIAMI TURNING OUT BIG PRODUCT.

MIAMI, Sept. 23.—It is estimated that the total production of the Miami Copper Company for 1915 will be not less than 42,100,000 pounds of copper. In the first six months 18,400,000 pounds were produced, and the estimate for the remainder of the year is 4,000,000 per month. There will be no difficulty, barring accident, in maintaining the production at this rate.

Attention is being paid to the 20,000 tons of tailings now on the Miami dump. It is considered that there is a readily possible extraction of ten pounds per ton from this material.

SHANNON YIELD'S MILLION POUNDS.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

CLIFTON (Ariz.) Sept. 23.—The Shannon Copper Company produced 950,000 pounds of copper in August, for which it received 16.94 cents per pound. The cost was slightly under 13 cents, so that the net earnings approximated $35,000. The total production for the four months ending September 1 was 3,895,000 pounds and the earnings $220,556, or about 70 cents per share on the 300,000 shares of stock outstanding.

HUGE MACHINES TO REDUCE ORE.

TRANSPORTING ENGINES TO MAGNESITE MINE HUGE UNDERTAKING.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PORTERVILLE, Sept. 24.—Traction engines of the heaviest type were required to transport to the mines of the Porterville Magnesite Company in the foothills east of this city, the huge machines which are to be used by the company in the reduction of its ores. These ores are to be manufactured into furnace linings for eastern steel mills.

The largest single machine was the rotary kiln, fifty feet in length and weighing thirty-six tons. Considerable difficulty was experienced in hauling this around corners in the business district.

Five five-ton motor trucks have been delivered to the company and these, it is planned, are to transport to the railroads here about one-hundred tons of raw ore daily. Raw ores will be shipped until the plant is completed.

H. S. Doyle, superintendent of the company, stated that the corporation now has on file orders for the delivery of 20,000 tons of this product, sufficient to keep the mills busy for nearly a year.

GLASGOW SALOONS WELL RESTRICTED.

DECREASE IN DRUNKENNESS IS REPORTED AS RESULT OF REGULATIONS.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

GLASGOW, Sept. 15. — In Glasgow public houses are now permitted to sell liquor five and a half hours a day, only. The places are closed in the morning, when drinking would unfit a workman for the entire day. Treating and the credit system are done away with, and the practice of carrying drink away in bottles is also forbidden.

Although these new restrictions have been in force but a short time, they have already resulted in a considerable decrease in the arrests for drunkenness—especially in the number of arrests of men. During the week preceding the curtailment of the hours when the houses were open all day, 325 men were arrested for drunkenness and eighty-eight women. In the first week that the restrictions were enforced the number of men arrested for drunkenness was 210, but the number of women who were haled before the police courts for the same cause was eighty-four, only four less than in the previous week.

BRITISH BIBLES GO VIA GERMANY.

THESE ARE ONLY SHIPMENTS SHIPPED UNIMPEDED IN THE EMPIRE.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, Sept. 15.—The only exports in bulk which are going through unimpeded to Germany nowadays are sent from the warehouses of the British and Foreign Bible Society, and consist of testaments, psalm books and portions of the gospels. Over a million books of this character have been thus shipped since the beginning of the war. The society is supplying the scriptural reading to all the nations at war.

This, of course, is quite apart from the normal work of the society. The past year has been the busiest in its long history. During August the export included 350 cases, weighing forty tons. For the Russian armies alone 450,000 testaments have been provided, partly by the help of contributions from Sunday-school scholars in the United States. The bulk of the books sent out during the past year have been bound in khaki for field service. Even the German prisoners in Japan, taken at Kiao-chow, have been supplied.

TREAT WOUNDED IN DARDANELLES.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, Aug. 31.—Representatives of the British Red Cross have just returned from a visit to the principal health resorts in the Crimea and Caucasus, where they have been arranging for quarters for convalescent soldiers from the Dardanelles district. It is significant of British confidence in an approaching decision in this war theater that this trip should be made at this time, although no soldiers can be sent until the Dardanelles have been opened.

One of the British delegation expressed the opinion that South Russia would prove an ideal spot for the treatment of wounded

Death of Lieut.-Col. Locarde.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

DUNKIRK (France) Aug. 31.—The death is announced of Lieut.-Col. Locarde, a distinguished French artillery expert. His death is said to have been due to overwork. During the present war he introduced several new forms of high explosive projectiles for close trench fighting. His is also the credit for the invention of the hydro-pneumatic brake, which is the most novel and important feature of the famous French 75mm. gun.

RARE MINERALS, METALLURGY AND CHEMISTRY

You are politely requested to submit samples carefully wrapped and tagged, with letter accompanying stating what tests are desired. Make samples of small size. There is no necessity for big chunks. Correspondents offering matter for analyses with card, or scrap of paper, intended to show that the stuff is from Jim Jones, for instance, with no marks of identification on samples, will, hereafter, receive no attention whatever.

Rare Lead Minerals.

FLAGSTAFF (Ariz.) Sept. 4.—Q.: I am sending you by parcel post a sample of ore from the "Matas property" in the Catalina Mountain mining district, Pinal county, Arizona. This property is made up of thirty-one claims; the work on this property is under way, and shipments of ore will be made in the near future.

In accordance with your custom, encouraging the production of mines, especially of the rarer metals, will you kindly make an analysis of this ore and enter the same in your Sunday edition, as you usually do. This vein is some four feet wide, and it has a strike east and west; there is evidence of strong fissure-vein formation. There is plenty of water; the shipping point is Tucson; the nearest postoffice is Oracle, and distant thirty-eight miles north from Tucson. S.

A.: The writer has known of the property, partly described in your letter, for many years. Lead molybdate (wulfenite;) earthy carbonate of lead; galenite; plumbic ochre; cerussite, leadhillite, mimetite, pharmacosiderite, plumbocalsite, aikenite, pyromorphite, crocoisite, anglesite, plumbo-resinite, and varieties of vanadates, each and all occur at the locality set forth, and in the surrounding territory.

While it would be a pleasure to give you an analysis on the sample it would be of but slight advantage to you, and in no wise satisfactory to the editor of this department of The Times, for the reasons that it would call for at least 100 pounds of the ore, from different ledges and streaks on the entire group of claims, with samples of hanging and footwall occurrences.

The sample carries approximately 16.2 vanadium; lead, iron, arsenic, zinc, manganese, molybdenum, with other matter present. The property should be carefully prospected, and the ores sorted carefully before sale and shipment.

Not Scheelite.

HYNES, Sept. 4.—Q.: Am sending you inclosed samples of rock recently found. Are they scheelite, and if not, what are they? R.

A.: Samples are quartz-baryte.

High Grade Copper Ore.

BISBEE (Ariz.) Sept. 4.—Q.: Under separate cover I am mailing you two samples of copper ore. Will you please state what kinds of copper ore are present, microscopically? F.

A.: Under the glass (of high power) we find: native copper, cuprite, malachite, azurite, chalcocite, chalcotrichite and quartz. The native copper and cuprite appear in crystal forms, and are observable with the naked eye.

Epidotic in Part.

GLENDALE, Sept. 5.—Q.: I am sending you three samples under separate cover numbered 1, 2 and 3. There is a story about No. 1. A man sent a sample of this to an assayer in the East, and received a letter asking that 100 pounds be sent for a further and bigger test. It looks like mica to me, but thought it might be zinc, molybdenite or something of value. The eastern assayer told nothing except that "it contains a valuable mineral." No. 2 is, or seems to be, mostly a metal; does it contain plantinum, vanadium or anything of value; any tin? No. 3 is the yellowish or greenish sample, what is it, and is it of any commercial value? These samples come from near San Bernardino. I read your mineral column with great interest. R.

A.: Your interesting letter is appreciated. No tin or platinum in any sample. The assayer referred to made a perfectly property request on material represenetd by sample No. 1, which carries quartz, biotite, feldspar and ilmenite (titanic iron.) One minute crystal of rutile in the mass, and it is probable that the last referred mineral was suspected by the eastern assayer. Nothing encouraging about it, however, unless commercially valuable rutile occurs at the locality. No. 2 is iron silicate, traces of microscopical pyrite, and trace of epidotic matter. No. 3 is a variety of epidote.

Mispickel in Part.

JEROME (Ariz.) Sept. 5.—Q.: Am sending under separate cover samples of rock found near Jerome, Ariz., which I think is rich in iron and copper. Would you please examine sample closely, and give me your opinion as to the commercial value of such a specimen as a copper producer? R.

A.: If you have quantity sufficient in ore ledges represented by sample submitted, then you surely have a "producer." Traces of mispickel appear in the mass of iron (hematitic,) and the sulphide present runs approximately 17.2 per cent. copper. Not tested for gold or silver.

Trachytic-Lime Conglomerate.

RICHFIELD (Utah) Sept. 6.—Q.: I am mailing under separate cover a sample of feldspathic rock which I would like to have tested for potash, and reporetd on in "nI the Earth" column of The Times. N.

A.: Glad to hear from you. Soluble potash 2.15 per cent.

Spessartite.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 6.—Q.: Will you please tell me in The Times what the resinous specks are in this sample. It comes from San Diego county. What kind of rock is the white part of the sample? L.

A.: The white part of sample is albite (soda feldspar.) The faulted dodecahedral crystals you refer to are garnet (var. spessartite,) and not of gem value.

Quartz.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 7.—Q.: Herewith sample of rock from the hills near Monrovia. Please tell me about it in "In the Earth." K.

A.: White mica present. Free gold absent.

Lime and Alumina.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 8.—Q.: Under separate cover I am sending you two samples, the exact character and value of which we have been unable to determine. The red sample we believe to contain aluminum in considerable quantity, and is from Arizona. The white is from San Bernardino county. "SUBSCRIBER."

A.: We had a friend who worked ten years in Arizona on mineral represented by the reddish sample. He was assured that it carried 35 per cent. aluminum oxide, when the fact is that there is but little oxide in the mass other than hematite. The sample is a silicate of alumina, and in nowise bauxite.

The white sample is a carbonate with aluminum silicate; lime is present, and with sulphuric acid low per cent., alum of commerce can be separated. Barium (as carbonate) absent. Magnesia trace. Alumina present.

While testing the sample for zinc we observed a metallic sulphide which partly forms by heat, when it appears plainly under an ordinary glass; and, indeed, a good set of "eyes" will detect this sulphide without any glass.

Your proper course is to try and obtain some of this concentrate, even if it calls for roasting the ore slightly before panning. We would not test further on this mineral unless protected with a sample of at least 100 pounds.

Quite a Mixture.

COALINGA, Sept. 9.—Q.: I am sending you samples from near Coalinga. Will you kindly tell me: Does No. 1 carry tin? Does No. 2 contain tin, or what is it? Does No. 3 carry quicksilver? M.

A.: No. 1 is a variety of amphibole; tin absent. No. 2 is a very impure lapis lazuli, tin absent, and of no gem value. No. 3 is a greenish and silicious talc; quicksilver none.

Many Minerals.

CORONA, Sept. 9.—Q.: Will you be kind enough to place these pieces of ore, all of them from property adjoining the tin-mine grant. No. 1 copper stained. No. 2 very black rock, looks like a little of yellow-brown tin oxide. No. 3 a greenish black ore that seems to be nearly all metal. There has been considerable work done on Nos. 2 and 3 over forty years. The country has some gold ores, very badly prospected. I also inclose samples No. 5 and No. 6. Is No. 6 infusorial earth? L.

A.: Glad to hear from you. In the impure dumortierite sample No. 1 we found a trace of tin. No. 2 is tourmaline (pyroxene on one side) of non-gem value. No. 3 is magnetic iron, and slag-like, at that. No. 4 epidotic rock, zinc absent; hornblende with pyroxene on one side of sample. No. 5 trace of copper carbonate; bismuth a trace. No. 6 is a low-grade aluminum silicate; clay, if you please.

Tetrahedrite.

TONOPAH (Nev.) Sept. 9.—Q.: I am inclosing in this a sample of mineral that is somewhat of a puzzle to prospectors generally. I am told that the sample, which was taken from a ledge on a claim southeast of Tonopah, is similar to quite a quantity of material that splits through a 30-inch ledge in streaks varying from one inch to four inches in width. In common with many prospectors who have examined the ore I suspicioned it as silver-glance, but assays show but little silver. Many prospectors would thank you to give all information you can on the sample. Thanking you kindly. L.

A.: Glad to get a line from you. The sample is an arsenical variety of "gray copper," as you boys call it. Iron, copper, lead present.

The sample is crystallized tetrahedrons, with cleavage imperfectly octahedral. Color steel black. Opaque, but when in thin splinters the mineral is cherry-red by transmitted light. Of metallic luster; streak brownish steel-black. Somewhat brittle. Fracture imperfectly conchoidal. Hardness 3.85; sp. weight 4.80 Before the blowpipe gives off arsenical fumes; borax added to the mineral powder and blowpipe flame played on the mixture yields a bead of deep green. In powder form, added to nitric acid, a green solution is obtained.

Typical Hornblende.

MORONGO, Sept. 10.—Q.: I found a big ledge of this rock, and do not know what it is. Would you please tell me if it carries anything valuable. H.

A.: Sample, while handsome, is of mineralogic and geologic interest only.

Arsenical Iron.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 10.—Q.: Please tell me what kind of ore or mineral is in the sample. From San Bernardino county, California. T.

ORIGIN OF FAMILY NAMES.

Once it was Only Necessary to Identify a Man but as Population Increased People Took Surnames.

[Wilkes-Barre Times-Leader:] When the human family was small and people lived close together one name was enough to identify a man or a woman. Abraham and Sarah, Ruth and Jacob never troubled about family names.

In the eleventh century the population of the world had greatly increased, the people lived in many different countries and men traveled a great deal, and so as a means of identification they took surnames or family names and these names were handed down to their children. The son of John was Johnson, the son of William was Williamson. Men were also named from their work—John the Smith became John Smith, and locations also gave names to families—the man who lived near water was Bywater, the man who lived on a hilltop might be known as Hill.

The Normans who came into England in the twelfth century used the word Fitz, which comes from the French word fils, meaning son, as a prefix for names. The son of William was Fitzwilliam, the son of Gerald was Fitzgerald. The Welsh word for son is Ap and Ap-Hugh or Hugh's son, became Pugh, and Ap-Evan, or Evan's son became in time Bevan. In other countries names were formed in the same way, and in time all civilized men had family names to distinguish them from other men.

Origin of the Tango.

[Indianapolis Star:] There is nothing new in the step that has been taken in certain high circles, both at home and abroad, in regard to the tango.

As long ago as the December of 1637 the Archbishop of Buenos Aires excommunicated one Senor de la Cuevay Benavides, Governor of the city, for dancing the tango in public.

Even then the dance was anything but new. An authority in the Argentine states that the tango is named after a province in Indo-China and that it originated more than 2000 years ago.

It was the gypsies who took the dance to Spain, whence it reached the Argentine.

One definition of the tango—given in a glossary of South American Spanish— is "gathering dance of gypsies."

The dance has not been improved by being civilized or modernized. As danced by the up-country Argentines and the Spanish gypsies it is exceedingly graceful.

Irish Loyalty.

[New York Evening World:] On the day Great Britain drew sword in the great struggle, John Redmond, Irish leader, with shouts for the fresh-won victory of home rule still gladdening his ears, rose in the House of Commons and with simple, unforgettable words pledged Ireland to the empire.

The pledge has been kept. One hundred and twenty-four thousand Irishmen are now fighting with the allies. Between 6000 and 7000 Irish recruits join the army each week. Drunkenness and crime in Ireland show marked decrease. Emigration last year to America was less than in any twelvemonth since the great famine of 1847.

"The feeling between Ireland and England," the great nationalist told the World this week, "has entirely changed since the war began. Ireland's attitude toward the war has had an enormous influence on what was up to that time opinion hostile to home rule and to Ireland."

Phoenix.

MINERS ARE ON QUI VIVE.

News of Reawakening Fills Arizona Air.

Much Interest Manifested in Zinc Properties.

Northern Syndicate Buys Copper Basin Claims.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PHOENIX, Sept. 23.—From every mining district in the State comes news of increased activity, new development and new exploration. The mines already in operation are increasing their output and bettering their machinery, while many new discoveries are reported, and there is much cleaning out and overhauling of old properties that have lain idle, some of them for twenty years or more.

Not a day passes that several new companies do not file their articles of incorporation, and one of the most encouraging features of the situation is that no mining stocks are being offered for sale, at least locally. The companies that are being organized have either been completely financed or propose to dispose of their stocks outside Arizona. The only exception is that some stocks are being offered in the Oatman district, but those that have been placed on the market here are of companies anxious to install new machinery at proven mines.

The chief feature of the past two or three weeks has been the interest taken in zinc properties. This is probably due, in a measure, to the results obtained at the Golconda, which has been shipping regularly to the Oklahoma smelter and making a large profit. The latest zinc property to come into prominence is the Ruth, located on Indian Creek, six miles south of Prescott.

Plans are being made for the immediate building of a smelter, in addition to the concentrating plant now in operation at the property, and it is hoped that this action will help to greatly encourage the development of many of the smaller zinc properties in the State.

BUY ELEVEN CLAIMS.

Eleven gold claims in the Copper Basin district have been sold to a San Francisco syndicate, headed by W. H. Storm, who is expected on the ground this week to commence active work. The claims have been well prospected and the values are assured. The holdings are located a mile to the northeast of the Commercial camp.

The Cora Bell gold camp near Senator is also experiencing a considerable boom, and several parties have gone to look over the territory this week.

The discovery of practically pure huebnerite in the Eureka district, west of Prescott—3500 pounds of the ore assaying $2500—has caused a stampede into that little-explored country. This shipment will form the basis of a mineral display at the State fair.

In northern Gila county, in the Payson, Oxbow and Rye districts, active prospecting has developed deposits of cinnabar, manganese, vanadium, gold, silver and copper. Construction of a hydro-electric plant near Rye, to be begun at once, will be of inestimable service in opening up and properly developing the undoubted resources of the district.

At the Inspiration property in Miami, additional hoisting machinery is being installed and large additions made to the office and warehouse buildings. The new skips in the west shaft are expected to be completed within ten days and will add considerably to the daily output of the mine.

At the Old Dominion large improvements are under way at the smelter, at the concentrating plant and in the mine proper. Leasers are working and making good money at several of the older claims tributary to the Old Dominion, and extensive exploration work is planned in several of the newer claims acquired by the company. More than 6,500,000 gallons of water are being pumped from the mine daily in an effort to drain it of all water above the sixteenth level.

LABOR TROUBLE.

The only disturbing element is the labor situation at Clifton and the possibility of the trouble spreading to Ray and Hayden. The Clifton operators have declared peremptorily that they will not treat with the Western Federation of Miners in any way and the camp is completely tied up. It is hoped that the trouble will be eliminated at an early date and that a satisfactory working arrangement may be arrived at. The strike is being conducted in an orderly manner.

In the Walker district, near Prescott, a California syndicate recently took over the Black Diamond group from W. L. Comer and D. L. Booker and has shipped in a large amount of machinery and supplies. This is one of the older mines of Yavapai and is said to be capable of great production.

The Dolphin mine, on Turkey Creek, is receiving new machinery and an Overstrom concentrator is being installed. Deep development is to be prosecuted at once on this property.

GROUP CHANGES HANDS.

The Lady Alday group near McCabe was recently purchased by Harvey R. Smith. After cleaning out the old workings drifting was continued, and last week a shoot of eighteen inches of ore was cut that gives values of $70 per ton. In the same drift is a four-foot vein that samples $22 per ton. Further development has been ordered, and the work will be pushed as rapidly as possible.

The Lynch Creek placers in Yavapai county are reported to have been taken over by the Guggenheim interests, and their dredging engineer, Fred Morse, is expected in Prescott within a day or two to look over the ground and arrange for shipping in necessary dredging machinery.

In the McCabe district the old Arizona mine has been purchased by Anderson & Burch and new exploration has disclosed large deposits of galena and silver. This mine, which was one of the large producers of the old days, has been idle for more than twenty years.

English capitalists have taken over the gold properties of the Champion company in the Hassayampa district and will begin extensive operations at once. It is asserted that the same syndicate has secured options on several other claims in the same district.

Long Beach.

PRAISES "KATE" FOR SOBRIETY.

But Her Two Companions are Fined for Guzzling.

Tincture of Ginger Good for Necks or Throats.

Zeppelin Terrors Recounted in English Letter.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONG BEACH, Sept. 25.—Two teamsters and a mule, victims of this city's "extra dry" laws, were arrested on charged of intoxication today. J. Sawkins and Tom Renfrew were the names of the teamsters. The mule's name was Kate. The three had imbibed tincture of ginger originally intended for the mule's sore neck. Judge Hawkins fined the men $10 each and complimented the mule on its temperance.

Sawkins and Renfrew work for a local paving company. They led the mule to the business section, tied her to a post, and bought the medicine for Kate's sore neck. Before they had applied the liquid they noticed, on the label, the notation "93 per cent. alcohol."

Half an hour later a policeman found the three in an alley between Third and Fourth streets, one man on each side of the mule, very much under the influence of tincture of ginger.

As the copper approached, one of the men hastily poured the last of the bottle down Kate's sore neck. But the policeman was not to be deceived. In Police Court the two teamsters said they made the journey back to the drug-store three times for the efficacious remedy for Kate's sore neck.

ZEPPELIN TERRORS.

That the English censorship of press messages is keeping back the real truth regarding raids of German Zeppelins in England is indicated by a letter received from a friend in a city on the east coast of that country by Mrs. Edward Kehl, No. 1346 East First street. According to the letter thousands of persons were killed in one of the recent raids, instead of two score as given out in official messages. The Zeppelin terror has gripped the people of that section, it is stated, and hundreds are leaving their homes.

"We had a terrible week last week," runs the letter, "One night at least half a dozen passed over our heads. They make a noise like an express train, and as the bombs fall and explode, the noise is terrific. When we hear them coming we rush into the street with any article of clothing that comes handy, but we are powerless, even there, for we don't know where any of the bombs are going to drop."

REACH AGREEMTNT.

An agreement has been reached between the Southern Pacific and the East Side residents over the joint crossing of that road and the Pacific Electric at Alamitos avenue, near Broadway. At the end of a hearing before Railroad Commissioner Gordon, Frank Karr, S. P. Attorney, stated that he had received the sanction of President Shoup to the plan of constructing a separate crossing for his road at that point within eight or ten months.

Mr. Shoup stated that in all probability the cost of steel rails would be cheaper at the end of that time, and the cost of building the crossing, estimated at $6500 now, would be cut considerably.

TOBACCO MEN UNITE.

Initial Step in Formation of Merchants' Association is Taken at New York Meeting.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—The initial step in the formation of an organization to be known as the Tobacco Merchants' Association of the United States was taken at a meeting here today of 200 retailers, growers, manufacturers and jobbers of tobacco and its products from all parts of the United States. The purpose of the organization will be to protect trade names and trade-marks; to eliminate trade frauds and protect cutting and the obtaining of needed legislation and the furthering of interests of tobacco dealers generally.

WAR CONVENTION OF LABOR ENDS.

VANCOUVER (B. C.) Sept. 25.—The "war convention" of the Canadian Trades and Labor Congress concluded its deliberations today after the consideration of ninety-five resolutions from delegates and from affiliated unions. Many of these resolutions suggest remedies for evils intensified by war conditions, a score of them dealing with various phases of the congestion in the labor market expected after the war. One, indorsed by the congress, urged that the amelioration of the political, religious and civil oppression of the Jews in certain European countries be taken into consideration when terms of peace were drawn up.

War conditions were not by any means, however, the only subject taken up at the convention. Resolutions passed today ranged from requisition for a law to license private detectives to an equally emphatic demand for "votes for women," throughout the Dominion. The Congress did not touch upon the liquor traffic.

After a warm debate occuying most of this morning, it also went on record as in favor of provincial federations of labor but rejected all resolutions urging the formation of a labor party in Canada.

HOLD BULGARIAN AT TOLEDO, O.

TOLEDO (O.) Sept. 25.—Charged with smuggling 800 or more Bulgarians from Windsor, Ont., to Detroit, then to Toledo, Mike Tonoff, a Bulgarian, was arrested here this afternoon by government officers. The arrest followed affidavits made by some of the men brought across.

The call received from Washington yesterday ordering 100 Bulgarian officers to report at New York preparatory to returning to their foreign county brought about the expose of Tonoff's activities, officers say.

CAPT. MALONE CANCELS TALK.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 25.—Capt. Paul B. Malone, officer in charge of the citizens' military camp at the Presidio, who was to speak on "the citizens' duty in guarding the United States against invasion" at the Commonwealth Club luncheon today, had to cancel his engagement, as he received orders from the War Department at Washington not to address the club on any subject of a military nature.

GREEK CONFAB ON BALKAN CRISIS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

TOLEDO (O.) Sept. 25.—John P. Kelly, county clerk, was indicted by a grand jury on five counts, three charging felonies and two misdemeanors. His bond was fixed at $8500. Kelly is alleged to have worked in conjunction with his chief deputy, P. Peterson, in removing names from the jury box and substituting others.

BREAKS RECORD FOR LOOPS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SPRINGFIELD (Ill.) Sept. 25.—Art Smith, the aviator, is believed by officials of the State fair to have broken all existing records for successive loops in his flight here today, when he made seventeen complete aerial somersaults. As though for good measure, Smith drove his biplane a few hundred feet higher and then turned two more loops.

ELKS LAY CORNER-STONE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

ROANOKE (Va.) Sept. 25.—The corner-stone of the new Elks' national home at Bedford, Va., was laid today. The group of buildings will cost more than half a million dollars and will be dedicated in 1916. Prominent Elks were present today from all parts of the country, headed by Grand Exalted Ruler James N. Richardson of Springfield, Mass.

MUST RECALL DR. DUMBA, PLAIN WORD TO AUSTRIA.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—Ambassador Penfield at Vienna has been instructed to make clear to the Austrian government informally that the United States must insist on the recall of Dr. Dumba, the Austrian Ambassador here, and that his departure on "leave of absence" would not be satisfactory.

From messages exchanged between Ambassador Penfield and the State Department it is apparent that the Austrian government misunderstood the desires of the United States.

It was intimated at first to Ambassador Penfield that the Austrian government might recall Dr. Dumba on leave of absence and might desire safe conduct for him. Dr. Dumba himself telegraphed for such safe conduct a few days later, informing the State Department that he had been granted leave of absence. No action was taken on his request, but it was forwarded to Ambassador Penfield.

Instructions sent to Mr. Penfield were not disclosed, but he had been authorized to make it clear that Dr. Dumba's usefulness as the Austrian Ambassador to the United States has ceased and that if given merely "leave of absence" he would, nevertheless, still remain accredited.

The right of a government to demand the recall of an Ambassador because of his personal acts is unquestionable under international law, and, according to officials, if the Austrian government persisted in refusing to recall Dr. Dumba, passports could be handed to him. There is no indication as yet that this will be necessary, the delay in the Austrian government's decision, it is said, being due to difficulties in cable transmission.

FEAR NO AGGRESSION FROM THE BULGARIANS.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Sept. 26, (12:53 a.m.)—A dispatch from Sofia dated September 23 to Reuter's Telegram Company, quotes the following semi-official statement issued on that day:

"The entry of Bulgaria into a state of armed neutrality is, according to the view in government circles, explained by changes which occurred recently in the political and military situation.

"Bulgaria has not the slightest aggressive intention, but is resolved to be armed to defend her rights. Following the example of Holland and Switzerland, Bulgaria is obliged, in view of the movement of troops effected by her neighbors and the danger threatening her from the fact of the Austro-German offensive against Servia, to proclaim armed neutrality while continuing conversations with the representatives of the two belligerent groups."

CHILDREN KIDNAPED DESPITE COURT'S ORDER.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

EL CENTRO, Sept. 25.—Within five minutes after the court had awarded custody of Elmer Elliott, 8 years old, and his 4-year-old sister, Mildred, to their mother, Mrs. Inez Elliott, acquitted this summer of the murder of her husband after the first trial of a woman in Imperial county for homicide, the two children were kidnaped tonight by their paternal grandmother and an uncle, a police officer of San Diego.

Deputy sheriffs are searching for the fugitives.

The trial of the case terminated tonight after more than fifty witnesses, among them many of the oldest inhabitants of the county, had been examined.

Judge Curtis of San Bernardino, sitting in Extra Sessions, had not yet stepped from the bench when the distracted maternal grandmother rushed back into the courtroom and announced that the children's other grandmother had disregarded the order of the court and, with her patrolman son, had sped away from the Courthouse in a motor car.

Mrs. Henrietta Doran, mother of Mrs. Inez Elliott, told the court that friends of the Elliott family abused her and declared that the mother should never have custody of her children.

On the day that Mrs. Elliott shot her husband, Walter Elliott, in Imperial, she was served with papers to show cause why custody of the children awarded her in divorce court should not be taken from her. Later the children were taken by Andy Elliott, who drove cattle across the valley long before its settlement, over the mother's protest, later petitioning for guardianship. Through his attorneys, Lieut.-Gov. Eshleman and Phil Swing, he attempted to show that the mother was unfit to bring them up.

The attorneys sought to bring out that Andy Elliott had been chosen by Harold Bell Wright as a model for a typical ideal pioneer in the Barbara Worth Hotel paintings. Attorney Seymour, for Mrs. Elliott, put many pioneers on the stand to testify to his client's good reputation and brought out that at the present time she is using her car as a stage, driving the strenuous 125 miles of road from the valley to San Diego herself.

Judge Curtis signed an order directing the Sheriff to take the children and return them to the mother.

A pathetic incident in the trial was the placing of the 8-year-old son on the stand.

"Do you love your mother?" the court asked in a kindly tone. He answered straightaway:

"No, I don't love my mother."

He was not examined to determine if he had been coached, but, asked when he stopped loving her, he said:

"When she shot my papa.""

Mrs. Elliott broke into sobs and attorneys and judge alike were affected.

ELECTION DATE NOT SPECIFIED.

NOW MANHATTAN BEACH CITIZENS ARE SORRY THEY CAST VOTES.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

MANHATTAN BEACH, Sept. 25.—Because no date was specified on notices sent out to the voters, the election held today to issue bonds may be thrown out.

City Trustees early this morning were advised of the defect in the notices and in a hurriedly-called meeting in the office of S. A. D. Clark the officials sought to call off the election.

City Attorney Frank L. Perry, however, advised that the election be gone through with. But tonight defeated factions declare they will have the results thrown out as a majority of the registered vote was not polled on any of the issues.

The vote on the $20,000 bonds for a site for a new City Hall was carried, 113 to 49. The $6000 bonds for fire equipment lost on a vote of 96 for to 65 against, the required two-thirds of those voting not being polled.

The vote at the last election totaled 193, so that the 113 is not a two-thirds majority. It is also far from being a majority of the registration, which recently totaled 437.

Legal action probably will be brought to nullify the election unless the Trustees are advised to make a ruling requiring a new election.

SAUGUS MAN INJURED WHEN BURRO GETS IN ROAD ON HIGHWAY.

SAN FERNANDO, Sept. 25.—A car owned by the Saugus Garage and driven by William Woods crashed into a telephone pole on San Fernando boulevard this afternoon, severely injuring J. M. Ryland of Saugus.

The car was en route to Los Angeles from Saugus. Near Roscoe Station a burro hitched to a cart pulled into the boulevard from a side road. Driver Woods started to pass the cart on one side and then shifted. The turn was too short. The car skidded into the sand at the side of the road and the rear end crashed into the pole. Two other passengers suffered from bruises and shocks. The driver was uninjured.

Mr. Ryland sustained a fractured shoulder, gashed head and fractured leg above the knee. He was brought to this city for medical treatment.

JAMES M'GILL POINTS OUT TO OFFICERS WHERE HE LEFT COMBUSTIBLES.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

STOCKTON, Sept. 25.—James McGill, who, on Friday, surrendered himself to the authorities at Watsonville and made a statement to the effect that he was implicated with two others in the burning of barns in this section, was brought to Stockton today by Deputy Sheriff Frank Thompson, and was taken by that officer and Sheriff William H. Riecks to the farm of Joe Dietz, where a barn was burned on the night of August 25. McGill said that he set the fire.

In Stockton, McGill led the officers to a small hay barn belonging to C. Spaulding, which was destroyed on the night of August 27. McGill said that he set that fire also.

Then he took Sheriffs Riecks and Thompson to the yards of the San Joaquin Lumber Company and pointed out some waste that he said he had stuffed under a pile of lumber, preparatory to setting a fire. He was frightened away before he could put phosphorus on the waste, and never returned.

McGill said that he was implicated, personally, in only three Dietz and Spaulding fires while in this vicinity, but that his two confederates, whom he last saw at Niles, set other fires in this neighborhood.

JUDGE ORDERS CO-RESPONDENT TO FILE ANSWER WITH DEFENDANT.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA ANA, Sept. 25.—Today Judge Thomas ordered all proceedings that he had taken in a divorce case set aside, and he instructed the defendant and the co-respondent in the case to file answers and appear in court for trial. The action was brought by Charles Clapp of Laguna Beach against Cora B. Clapp and Robert F. Brooks, keeper of a poolroom.

Mrs. Clapp and Brooks were summoned into court today. They both denied the accusation made by Clapp. Mrs. Clapp said she had not filed an answer because her husband had urged her that it was the quickest and easiest way to settle their difficulties. Brooks said he had not answered because he got an agreement from Clapp that he would not ask damages for alienation of Mrs. Clapp's affections.

SANTA BARBARA, Sept. 25.—Firing a bullet into his head at his home on Palm avenue late this afternoon, E. Merta, proprietor of the Santa Barbara Meat Market, ended his life. He had brooded over financial troubles for many weeks but gave no indication to members of his family that he planned self-destruction. Shortly before the shooting Mrs. Merta and their four children had left home, expecting to meet him at the market. He entered the house unseen by his wife and, waiting sufficient time to allow his family to be out of hearing, he fired the fatal shot. He was found by the police a few moments later dead on the floor of his bedroom. Merta has been identified with the butcher business in this city for a number of years.

WILL RESUME ARABIC TALKS.

NEGOTIATIONS WITH COUNT VON BERNSTORFF WILL BE STARTED AGAIN.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—Negotiations between Count von Bernstorff, the German Ambassador, and the State Department over the sinking of the White Star liner Arabic probably will be resumed next week. The German Ambassador is understood to have received several messages from his Foreign Office, giving its opinion of the evidence submitted by the United States to show the ship was torpedoed without warning and did not move to attack the under-sea boat.

Ambassador Bernstorff's last advices, it is said, were in accord with intimations in press dispatches from Berlin of a desire to settle amicably the entire dispute between the Uinted States and Germany, but the chief obstacle in the way of a settlement, according to the German Ambassador, is the alleged policy of Great Britain with respect to ramming submarines. Large rewards, Ambassador Von Bernstorff claims, have been offered for the ramming of submarines by merchantmen and there are intimations that before modifying completely her submarine policy Germany will seek through the United States some assurance that British merchantmen will submit to visit and search.

REDUCE PRICE OF RADIUM.

Can be Produced for Thirty-six Thousand Dollars a Gram, and has been Sold for Four Times as Much.

[Washington Star:] Production of radium from Colorado carnotite ores by the Bureau of Mines, in connection with the National Radium Institute, has passed the experimental stage and is now on a successful manufacturing basis.

In making this announcement today, Secretary Lane declared that statements made to Congress concerning the ability of the bureau to produce radium at a greatly decreased cost over other processes had actually been accomplished and that the costs were even less than predicted.

The secretary said he had been informed that the cost of one gram of radium metal produced in the form of bromide during March, April and May, last, was $36,050. This included all expenses incident to production. "When it is considered that radium has been selling for $120,000 and $160,000 a gram," said Mr. Lane, "it will be seen what the bureau has accomplished.

"The public, however, should not infer that this low cost of production necessarily means an immediate drop in the selling price of radium. The National Radium Institute was fortunate in securing through a Colorado steel company the right to mine ten claims of carnotite ores belonging to it, and this was practically the only ore available at the time. Since then new deposits have been opened, but these are closely held, and, according to the best judgment of bureau experts, the Colorado and Utah fields, which are much richer in radium-bearing ores than any others known, will supply ore for a few years only at the rate of production that obtained when the European war closed down the mines.

"The demand for radium will also increase rapidly, for two or three surgeons who have a sufficient amount of this element to entitle them to speak from experience are obtaining results in the cure of cancer that are increasingly encouraging as their knowledge of its application improves.

"Under all the circumstances it does seem to me that it behooves the government to make some arrangement whereby these deposits, so unique in their extent and their richness, may be conserved in the truest sense for our people by extracting the radium from the ores where it now lies useless and putting it to work for the eradication of cancer in the hospitals of the army and navy and the public health service."

WHY WE ARE UNPOPULAR.

Europeans Judge Visitors from the United States by Standards of Their Own Country.

[Boston Transcript.] Now and again when foreigners express contempt for the United States, Americans seem surprised and some of them feel hurt. Yet contempt for the United States abroad is something that the American people have assiduously cultivated for many years. The American takes very much the attitude of the German when it comes to opinions and acts—what he says goes—there is no other way or opinion. Foreigners in their own countries judge the foreigners from distant lands by the standards existing in European countries. The shabby way the United States has treated itself before the eyes of Europeans, in the matter of legations, embassies and consuls has led to the opinion being held in European countries that we are both shabby and parsimonious. An American minister to Berlin, whenever he dined the diplomatic corps stationed there furnished nothing to drink with dinner. His dinners were always brief affairs as his guests adjourned as quickly as decency permitted to the Kaiserhof to get drinks and enjoy themselves in their way—which usually included many sneers at American hospitality. Some years ago when a Democratic House of Representatives had cut the salary of the American Minister to Austria from $12,000 to $7000 a year, the minister moved the legation to a back street. He had to. A traveling American desiring to find the home of his flag in Vienna—the hotel porter did not know the new address—called on the chancellor of the Russian embassy. The chancellor was very polite and replied: "My dear sir, I should so like to oblige you, but really we cannot keep the run of these little legations."

Record of Development at Various Mines.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

TONOPAH (Nev.) Sept. 17.—Rescue-Eula, after four years of energetic development, has finally come into ore of excellent grade on the 950 level. A sorting platform has been installed and rock is being selected for shipment. This find was made on the lower level when drifting was in progress to pick up the ledges that had been cut on the 800.

At first little attention was paid to the vein, but the crosscut was pressed forward, as well as a drift on the ledge. The winze was the first to develop values which barely showed at the point where the vein was intersected. It will require several days to determine whether this is a permanent find.

The drill hole in the Umatilla, which was staretd at the 1200-foot level, is now down 335 feet, and is making about ten feet a day. Some seams of quartz have been cut in the past several days, but they do not have the appearance of carrying values. The formation now is shown by the cores to be Midway andesite.

In the new shaft of the Midway the crosscut which was started from the 1340-foot station is being rapidly advanced, with three shifts at work. It is now out about 125 feet, and at any time the ledge which was cut in the shaft may be encountered. The leasers are very busy in the old workings, and a number of them are shipping profitable ore, the output during the past week being well up to former periods in both quality and quantity.

The best find that has recently been made is on the Laws brothers' lease. They report two and a half feet of ore that will run $50 to the ton.

In the adjoining property thirteen sets of leasers in the old workings of the Montana Mining Company have shipments to their credit.

The final clean up of the Tonopah Extension mill for the last half of August resulted in the shipment of 7116 pounds of bullion, the value of which is given at $56,000. A carload of thirty tons of concentrates was also shipped the same day, the value of which was approximately $12,000.

Much interest is manifested in the development of the vein at the 1540 level of the Victor. During the week the crosscut has been going through the vein, which, to the time of making the report, shows only low grade quartz in the face. Before long drifts will be started and pushed in both directions along the hanging-wall side.

The left drift along the footwall side of the vein on the 1350 level of No. 2 shaft, is evidently reaching the western limits of the high grade portion of the vein. While the grade of ore is even now better than the average, it is not so rich as it was for a couple of weeks.

The report from the Belmont this week shows that an unusually [illegible] proportion of the different [illegible] faces are in ore of better than [illegible] ordinary grade. The raise on the [illegible]cidental vein at the 800 level is [illegible] good ore, though the veins at this [illegible] is narrow. A new raise [illegible] from the back of west stope [illegible] is following from six to seven [illegible] ore that is much better than the [illegible]nary grade. UNITED DEMAND FOR A FEASIBLE HILL OUTLET.

Advocates of Proposed Wide Cut from First to Second and Proponents of More Modest One-street Opening Both Determined that Something Shall be Done. Early Action Expected.

WHEN Councilman Topham, just before going East upon his tour of inspection of viaduct struction in various large cities, gested his plan for an open cut ugh Bunker Hill at First street "started something." This, it is rent from the general discussion has developed, will be brought tly home to the absent city father ediately upon his return early month.

The idea of a single cut at First et has appealed to many for a ber of years. Its revival in the what new form advocated by Mr. ham has met with both approval criticism, most of those interested the project favoring, to judge from expressions of opinion, a wider ing than the Councilman has ested.

This, however, is a mere question detail. One of the first questions will be addressed to Mr. Topupon his return will undoubtedly a direct query as to why he preted the scheme at all at this partime. His prompt departure the viaduct investigation trip is that presented an open challenge the First street cut idea at the of its revival.

The proponents of the very-much plan for a wide open cut extendfrom 140 feet north of First street like distance south of Second street that Mr. Topham's suggestion "out of order." In substance, they that their "motion is now bethe house" and that until their officially approved by the last Council, is disposed of one way, other by the new Council, no plans may properly be up.

The last Council not only considered approved the First to Second scheme, but ordered the city ering department to prepare deplans for it. This was done an assessment district was laid and tentatively approved. Before thing could be brought to the of actual passage of an ordiof intention, the retiring Counstepped out of office.

To speak in parliamentary terms, Business Stability Association and organizations and individuals genwho have been laboring for great outlet including both First streets have said in effect in fairness to all concerned, the Council should at the earliest posmoment take up the "unfinished" of the old.

FOR UNITED ACTION.

Never before in the history of the drawn-out agitation for an outlet Bunker Hill has there been evidence of a unanimity of dethat something shall be Whether it is to be accomby a single cut along one or by a regrading scheme eman entire block in width, the of the hill opening are that the old-time barrier to communication between the center and the whole of west Los Angeles shall be elimand that this great stumbling to the development and upof the city shall be forever It has ceased to be a quesmerely of method.

The proponents of the wider cut as firmly convinced as ever that is the right plan. They hold that the greater and more widely distributed benefits to be derived from two serviceable outlets instead of one and the additional advantage of the large amount of new business frontage that would be created by the leveling of so ample an area as that included between First and Second streets justifies the larger expenditure that would have to be made for this enterprise. They even go so far as to say that the cost per property owner for the more extensive improvement would not be much greater than for the narrower cut, on account of the wider territory to be assessed. Urging these points, the leaders of the movement nevertheless express perfect willingness to unite on another scheme, should it eventually transpire that their own plan cannot possibly be put through.

The same spirit animates those who have made a study of the proposition for a cut on First street alone. As nearly as may be ascertained, the majority of the First street cut advocates are fully convinced of the greater value to the city as a whole of the cut contemplating the opening of Second street as well as their own—providing so large an undertaking can be successfully brought to the point of starting. Many of them, in fact, have announced their intention of "going to bat" for the project that is now waiting for the final action of the City Council.

THE INCENTIVES.

Several factors have contributed to crystalize the conviction that something must be done without further delay to provide a means of communication through the hill. The growing congestion of traffic on Sixth and Seventh streets between Figueroa and Main has become a most alarming problem and it is more and more apparent to thoughtful observers that the only logical relief that is at all feasible at this time lies in the creation of other serviceable avenues of ingress from the west and northwest into the downtown district. Bunker Hill stands in the way of this solution.

The need of one or more great through traffic arteries extending westward through the vast area lying between Sixth street and Wilshire boulevard on the south and Sunset boulevard on the north was never so imperative as now. More building is being done in this area at the present time than in any other section of the city, in spite of the roundabout ways the residents of west and northwest Los Angeles are compelled to follow in getting downtown. Even a single direct route tapping the cross streets of these sections and emptying into the upper business district would be a convenience of inestimable importance to the dwellers therein.

The annexation of the San Fernando Valley and the certainty that the whole of the Glendale-Tropico district will soon be brought miles nearer to downtown Los Angeles by the construction of a bridge across the river at Ivanhoe Station and the linking of Brand boulevard with Lakeshore avenue furnish brand new reasons for the immediate carrying out of the long-delayed hill opening project. Travel and traffic from both of these expanding districts must come to the west of the hill, and unless an outlet is found directly into the business district through an open cut or other outlet, must straggle clear down Figueroa street to Sixth and Seventh streets, adding to their hopeless congestion. The same irrefutable logic applies to the situation arising from the constant growth of travel cityward from the West Hollywood, Beverly Hills and Sherman districts.

THE CHEAPER PLAN.

The plan for an open cut at First street alone is the only one of the various schemes for getting through Bunker Hill that has never come up for official action. Three years ago it was sidetracked for a consideration of the ambitious project of regarding the whole hill. A year later Lawrence Holmes, one of the principal property owners of West First street and the man to whom belongs the credit for first carefully working out if not for originating the idea, voluntarily dropped his campaign for the single street opening to support what he believed to be the still better plan of the proposed cut from First to Second.

Interest in the original scheme evolved by Mr. Holmes has been revived by Mr. Topham's suggestion for a First-street cut. The City Councilman's plan called for a cut to extend sixty feet back of the street on each side and the City Engineer was asked to prepare estimates on this basis. Mr. Topham stated before leaving for the East that his plan as to width was subject to change and that he only wanted to "get the thing started."

Mr. Holmes is emphatic in his insistance that the first hasty estimates as to the probable cost of a cut at First street, as prepared for Mr. Topham, will be materially reduced as the result of further study into the possibilities of the one street project. He declares, however, that he is heartily in favor of the cut from First to Second and that he regards his own plan in the light of the best possible alternative scheme in the event the larger enterprise should prove to be too big an undertaking to be successfully carried out.

The details of the Holmes First-street plan have probably been more carefully worked out than those of any other scheme that has been suggested and, because of the fact that they may come in for official consideration later, they are presented herewith.

DAMAGES REDUCED.

A main purpose of his plan, according to Mr. Holmes, is to reduce the question of property damages to a minor issue in the project. To this end he has tried to design a cut in which neither the property owner, whose ground was lowered to the new street level, nor the owner left on top of the hill at the edge of the opening would be injured.

Mr. Holmes's plan calls for a street of 2 per cent. maximum grade, a slope less pronounced than that now existing on Hill street between First and Fifth. This would necessitate a much shallower cut than if the street were made absolutely level, the maximum depth, at Grand, being seventy

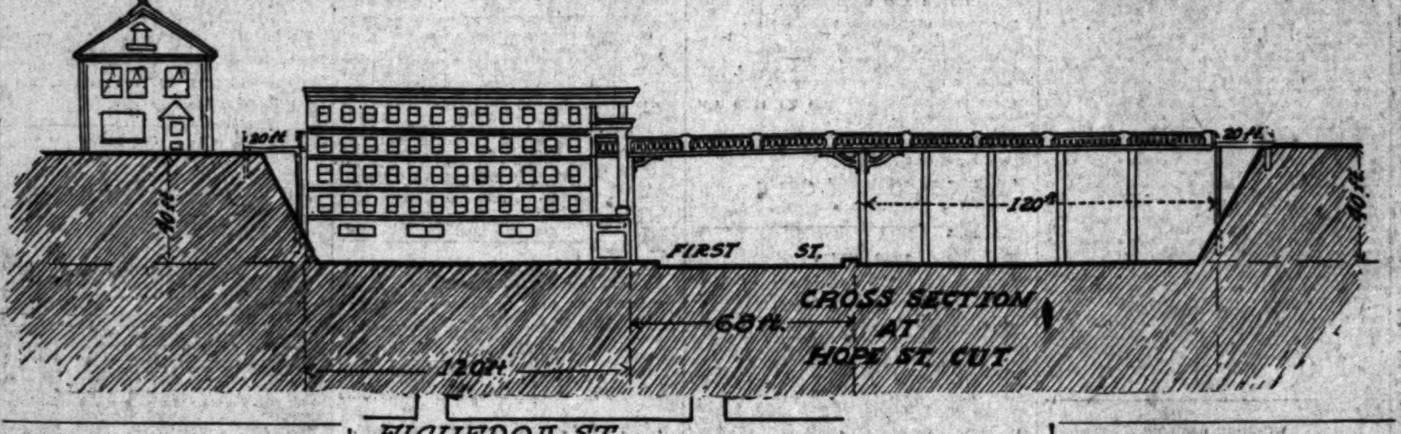
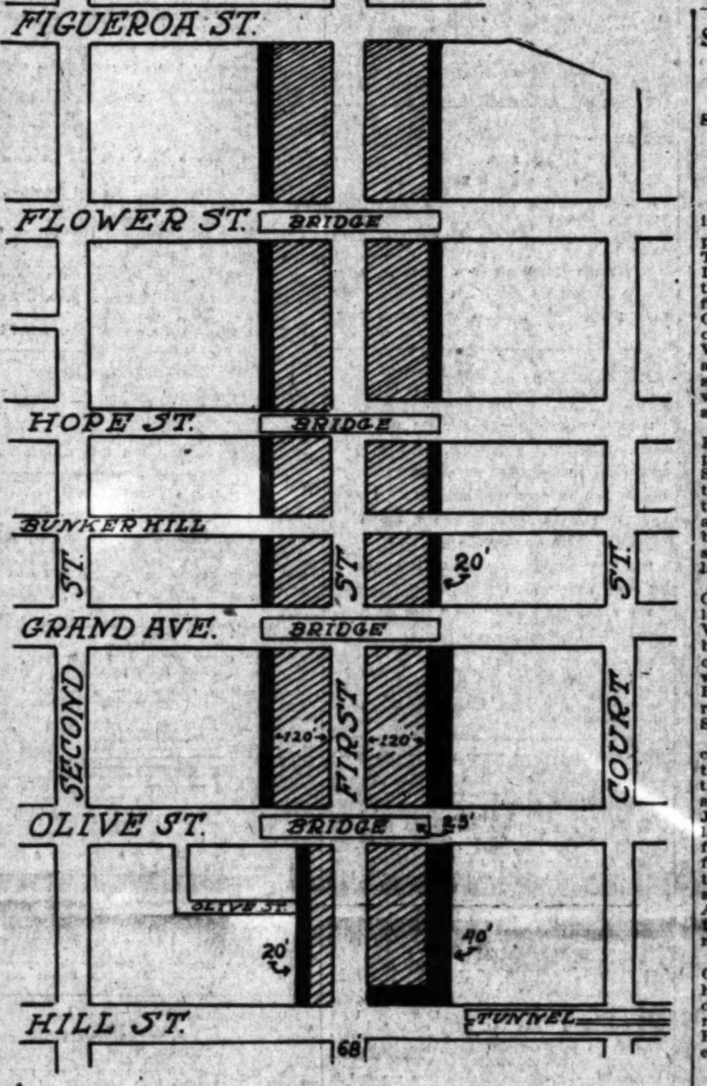
Unique Plan for Open Cut Through Bunker Hill at First Street





An old scheme revived and improved.

The drawings, prepared by Lawrence Holmes, originator of the open-cut idea, are laid out on a scale of 32 feet to the inch, the cross section at Hope street being typical of the method suggested. The Majestic apartment-house at First and Hope is shown as it would appear if brought down to the level of the downtown district. The sketch also illustrates the proposed plan for sloping the sides of the cut and creating a wide sidewalk at the top of the hill back of the First-street buildings. The map takes in the proposed regrading zone.

STRAWS TELLING HOW WIND BLOWS.

SIGNS OF STEADY PROGRESS IN SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA'S BROAD DOMAIN.

Four important realty transactions in San Luis Obispo county are reported by W. B. Bayless of this city. To Judge Thomas F. Stevenson of Des Moines, a prominent member of the Iowa bar, Mr. Bayless has sold a fine estate near Paso Robles. W. C. Grimes of Los Angeles was the purchaser of 200 acres at $60 an acre. W. P. Slawson of Pomona bought 193 acres at the same price. Mr. Bayless sold 670 acres of his own land to Corwin Butterworth for a given consideration of $35,000 cash.

The residents of the Fairview Farms tract near Newport are preparing to hold a fair at Harper next Saturday. A display will be made of the products of garden, field and poultry yards, and entertainment features are being planned. The exhibit is to be held for the purpose of demonstrating what has been done in the land subdivision in the past year.

The California Southern Realty Company announces the opening of a large tract of land in the Palo Verde Valley. Interest in this district has been stimulated of late as the result of the construction of a valley railway branch from the Santa Fe at Blythe Junction. The company will run an excursion to the land next Saturday.

Two packing-houses are now in course of construction at Yorba Linda, the new citrus town in the center of the 3500-acre tract of young orchards sold about three years ago by the Janss Investment Company. The larger of these buildings is 100x150 feet in size and the smaller 70x120 feet. The former is being erected by the Yorba Linda Citrus Association and the latter by the Mutual Citrus Association, two organizations formed to handle the crops of the orchards now coming into bearing.

A forty-acre orange grove in the Orange Heights district of Corona has been exchanged by Perry Cooper of that place for a 400-acre improved ranch near Tulare, owned by L. M. Hoff. One-fourth of the latter property is in alfalfa.

THE M'CARTHY TRACTS.

The McCarthy Company reports the following sales in its various tracts: House and lot on East Fifty-seventh street, to McKinley Swenson, $1700; lot on Hoover street in the Florence Avenue Heights tract, to Lottie May Roos, $825; to P. Pessnerr, house and lot on Seventy-ninth street in Florence Avenue Heights tract; lot in Norton Court addition to Wilton Heights tract, Norton avenue near Elmwood, to J. Emmett Pierce, $1250; to F. R. Reece, four plots in Garden Acres tract, near Inglewood, $1200; to William G. Morris, two plots in Garden Acres tract; plot in Garden Acres to Montijo, and lot on Normandie Avenue Square tract, on Fifty-first place, to C. H. Weisman, $1000. The company also announces that it has four houses under construction at the present time.

ON BONNIE BRAE.

A residence property at No. 677 South Bonnie Brae street was purchased during the past week by Col. Henry Laub from John Goodwin for a reported consideration of $15,000. The site is 50x150 feet in size and is improved with a ten-room residence. Col. Laub will hold the property for investment.

REPORTS LEASES.

Department Manager of Local Realty Firm Places Tenants in Several Downtown Locations.

F. W. Kadletz, manager of the leasing department of W. I. Hollingsworth & Co., reports the leasing of the building at Nos. 147-149 West Pico street for Mrs. Sarah B. Shettler to the Ensign Carburetor Company for a long term of years. This firm was formerly located at Nos. 710-712-714 North Main street, but due to its increasing business it became necessary to secure larger quarters.

Mr. Kadletz also reports the following leases: Store at No. 536 South Main street for Dr. T. S. and Emma L. Up de Graaf, owners, to M. Walsberg, for tailoring establishment; store at No. 901 South Hill street for Mrs. Elizabeth G. Reighard to L. W. Barron & Co. of San Francisco, for ladies' fancy goods, store at No. 1353 West Seventh street, for J. Wiseman Macdonald to M. Drosd, for ladies' tailoring establishment; store at No. 557 South Wall street for D. F. Hill, secretary of the Continental Security Company, to R. P. Flanders, local agent for the Curtis Publishing Company; entire second floor at Nos. 621-623 South Hill street, for Weymouth Crowell to Butler Jacks, for a studio.

A Big One.

DEAL INVOLVES MANY HOLDINGS.

Valuable City Sites Traded for Ranch Property.

Westlake Apartments Enter into Exchange.

Land Comprises About Six Thousand Acres.

One of the largest and most important real estate transactions of the year, a deal involving city holdings and acreage valued in the aggregate at approximately $700,000, was concluded yesterday through the joint agencies of F. M. Sayre and Neil Durflinger. The transfer consisted of an exchange by Mrs. L. J. H. Hastings, one of the large property owners of Los Angeles, of a part of her holdings in this city for a ranch of about 6000 acres near San Diego, owned by Charles F. Mohnike of that place, the latter adjusting a difference in values by mortgage.

The Los Angeles properties transferred, with the values at which they were traded, follow: Newell apartments, No. 718 South Alvarado, three-story brick building of 100 rooms, on lot 60x168 feet in size, $125,000; Westrada apartments, Alvarado between Sixth and Orange, eighty-two-room frame building, 50x168 feet, $75,000; southeast corner Sixth and Coronado, 100x120 feet, improved with flats, $55,000; two flat buildings on Rampart between Sixth and Seventh, 60x120 feet, $16,500; two flats, east side of Burlington just south of Sixteenth, 50x170 feet, $11,000; 200 feet on west side of Vermont near Thirty-eighth, improved with twelve-room residence, $35,000; five fifty-foot lots on Menlo avenue facing Exposition Park, $25,000; southwest corner Menlo and Thirty-ninth, 100x125 feet, $12,500.

The acreage property was a Spanish grant known as the Los Penasquitos Rancho and has long been used for the raising of beef cattle and horses. Mrs. Hastings, it is understood, will highly improve the holding with the view to making of it a modern stock and grain ranch. Mr. Mohnike, who has extensive interests in the San Diego region, including large lemon groves at Chula Vista, will make his future home in Los Angeles in order to be able to look after his newly-acquired properties.

Mrs. Hastings was represented in the deal by Mr. Sayre and Mr. Mohnike by Mr. Durflinger.

COSTLY HOUSES CHANGE HANDS.

SEVERAL HIGH-CLASS RESIDENCE PROPERTIES SOLD IN LA FAYETTE SQUARE.

The Crenshaw Investment Company reports having sold a fine residence in the La Fayette Square tract to G. Herb Palin, one of the leading advertising writers in the United States, and originator of many nationally-known publicity campaigns. The house is at No. 1751 Buckingham road and was purchased from the Atlas Building Company at a given price of $17,500. In design the place is a modification of the Italian villa type. It contains twelve rooms and four baths. The first floor is in mahogany and old ivory.

In the same subdivision Courtlandt Lawrence, a wealthy oil operator of Tampico and recently of Boston, has purchased from C. D. Wagner a fourteen-room white cement house at No. 1729 Victoria drive, the consideration being given at $15,000. Watt L. Moreland, general manager of the Moreland Truck Company, has purchased of Mr. Wagner an eleven-room residence at No. 1763 Buckingham road, in the same tract, paying a reported price of $12,000.

Another La Fayette square sale is reported by Robert Marsh & Co., who have sold for J. W. Cook to Joseph E. Lobit, recently of Phoenix, Ariz., an eleven-room white cement house at No. 1856 Buckingham road. The consideration in this deal is given at $12,000.

The Crenshaw Security Company reports the following lot sales in La Fayette square: To O. J. Boos, 77x250 feet on Buckingham road, $6250; to Edmund Burke, sixty feet on Virginia road, $3600; to J. H. Smailes, sixty feet on Buckingham road, $3500; to Ame Marie Gouaillarden, sixty feet on Victoria drive, $3600; to C. D. Wagner, ninety feet on Wellington road, $5400, and sixty feet on Virginia road, $3600; to W. C. Pennell, sixty feet on Buckingham road, $3400.

All of the above lot-purchasers have either started houses or are planning to build this fall.

DOUBLES CAPACITY.

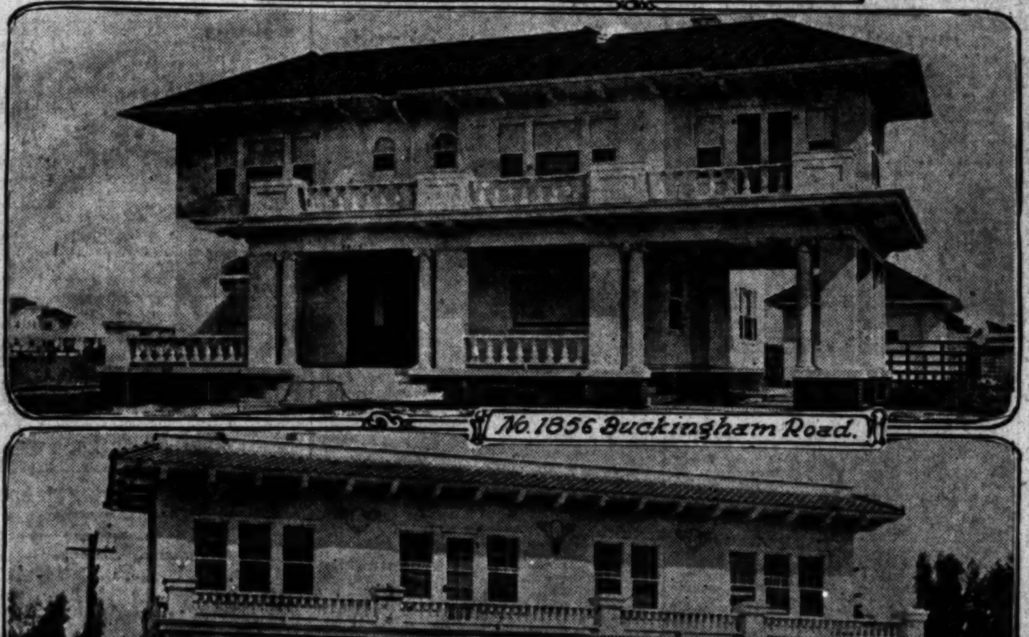
Electric Truck Man Leases Large Building to be Erected on South Los Angeles Street.

The W. Ross Campbell Company, through Richard C. Willis of its leasing department, has just consummated a deal, involving the immediate erection of a new building on Los Angeles street. The site is owned by Dr. Carl Kurtz and is on the west side of the street, between Eighth and Ninth streets, being 101x136 feet in size and extending back to an alley. The plans call for a brick structure of two stories.

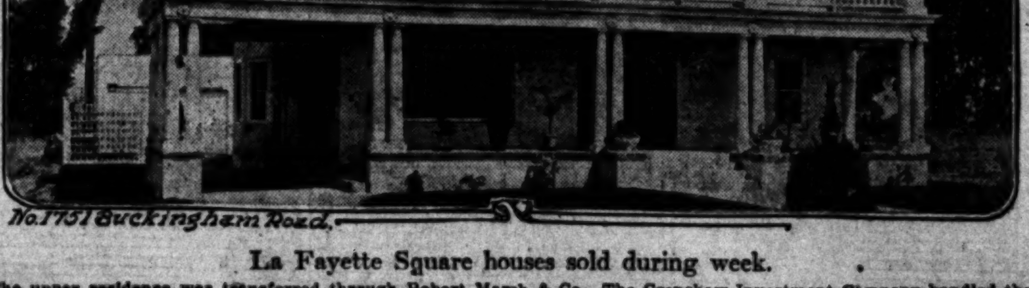
Harry W. Harrison, the lessee, will equip the entire premises as a modern sales and service station for the exclusive handling of electric trucks, electric batteries and allied lines. Mr. Harrison, who has been in the electric truck business during the last two years, has completely outgrown his present quarters, and in moving is doubling his facilities.

Mr. Willis also reports leasing for a term of years the entire two-story and basement brick building at No. 151 North Los Angeles street for Marie Weid to the Okell Mining Machine Company. The premises are being equipped with special tools and a plant for the manufacture and repair of mining machinery and deep well equipment.

The same firm also reports leasing for Secondo Guasti the premises at Nos. 619-621 East Third street to the White Transfer and Express Company. The building is to be used as a freight and loading station for goods consigned to beach points.



No. 1856 Buckingham Road.



No. 1751 Buckingham Road.

The upper residence was transferred through Robert Marsh & Co. The Crenshaw Investment Company handled the sale of the other.

BUSINESS INVESTMENTS—

MONEY. MONEY. MONEY. MONEY.

This is a cold world if you don't make lots of it. If you want to make lots of money, without the usual risk, then this ought to interest you: Prominent motion picture manufacturing company offers ground floor opportunity that won't be open long. They have already produced thousands of feet of high-class features, comedies and dramas; employed well known stars as actors and actresses; now have a market for their films for three years in advance; have practically no debts except current bills, and assets far in excess of amount so far expended. They now consider it advisable to secure additional working capital to further enlarge their successful business. The difference between the cost selling price of their films is tremendous. Do you want to participate in it? If you do investigate without delay. Look over the records—carefully, thoroughly, and you will be convinced. They won't "sell" positions with an investment, but if you want to become active with your investment, and carry your pound, there are plenty openings. In answering please give phone number, and amount that you would care to invest if satisfied. No triflers need answer. Too busy. Address M, box 326, TIMES BRANCH OFFICE.

$1000 PUTS YOU IN BUSINESS—

We own a fully perfected article of common household use, patented and attractive. This is a ready seller, with every home a prospect.

We will give you exclusive territory, furnish you the valuable machine necessary to the manufacture of the article, provided you are capable and energetic, and possessed with sufficient means to finance yourself to the extent of $1000.

We will aid you to secure subagents, and start you on your way toward success, but you must have the above qualifications. We part with valuable rights, so you must meet us part way. Having done so, there is hardly a limit to what you can make honestly, and in a short time; this is a dignified and sincere proposition, as well as your opportunity, therefore respect our position by remaining away unless you mean business.

CITY DANCE A MODEL.

San Francisco will Watch Municipal Social Affairs Here and May Follow Same Plan.

The fate of a municipal dance hall for San Francisco may depend on the impression that the first local municipal dance of the season, to be held in Columbus Auditorium next Saturday night, makes on the San Francisco visitors who are here to report to the social workers of the northern city.

Mrs. Berthold Baruch, one of the local city mothers, in a recent report before the National Purity Congress, emphasized so strongly the success of the dances held last spring under the auspices of the Los Angeles City Mothers' Bureau that enough interest was aroused to make San Francisco wish to do likewise.

City Mother Aletha Gilbert and her advisory board and a number of chaperons will welcome the young folks next Saturday night and no one need be without partners, for all will be introduced. Only the modern dances will be played, as it has been found the young people do not take kindly to an effort to revive the old-fashioned steps.

The dances will be given every Saturday night during the winter at Columbus Auditorium, Flower street near Sixth.

The advisory board of City Mothers includes Mrs. Jefferson D. Gibbs, Mrs. Berthold Baruch, Mrs. Russell J. Waters, Mrs. Frank Owen, Mrs. P. P. O'Brien, Mrs. James Westpheling, Mrs. Bret Harte Harris, Mrs. Harrison Henrich, Mrs. Henry Clay King and Mrs. Andrew W. Francisco.

BIG BOOST FOR RIPE OLIVES.

State Association Plans to Strengthen Industry.

Extensive Advertising Named as Needed Tonic.

Proposition to Handle Crop Now on Trees.

The need of a bracing tonic for the olive industry was set forth yesterday afternoon by Carl T. Worst of San Francisco, in a spirited talk before 100 olive growers. The meeting was the first of the California Ripe Olive Association held in Southern California. It will be followed by others in various towns and cities of this part of the State.

The California Ripe Olive Association was organized last Olive Day in San Francisco, its purpose being to put this industry on a more profitable basis. Education of the people of the East to the food value of the ripe olive is conceded to be one of the fundamentals in the programme of this organization.

At yesterday's meeting, presided over by C. A. Williams, because of the inability of the president, John J. Avis, to be present, there was a general discussion of the aims of the association and the necessity for immediate action, if the crop of olives this year is to be saved.

The special purpose of the meeting was to increase the membership, as it is desired to have a body composed of a majority of the principal olive growers before plans for the handling of this year's crop are definitely adopted.

At least two tentative plans for handling the crop are under consideration. One of these proposes to lease the packing plants now under private control. The other would contract with the packers to put up this year's crop for the association, placing the association's labels on the cans. In each case, it is proposed to carry on a wide selling and advertising campaign in the East while the crop is being packed, so that quick returns may be realized by the association members.

SPEEDY ACTION URGED.

At the opening of yesterday's meeting a telegram from President Avis was read, urging the necessity for immediate action, in view of the market condition. It has been found practically impossible for the individual growers to contract their olives to the packers this season.

Acting President Johnson spoke of the serious necessity for co-operation, and declared that if this movement is to be successful it must not be under the control of the packers nor of any one locality.

"The trouble is not an overproduction, but an undeveloped market," said Mr. Worst in his address. "The United States produces only one-fourth of the olives consumed in this country. The same is true of olive oil. If we properly develop the market for ripe olives, we will control it, as only in California can olives ripen in such condition that they can be pickled. With proper appreciation of the food value of the ripe olive, there can scarcely be an overproduction.

"But it is imperative that this market shall be developed, and that as speedily as possible. There are now about 2000 acres of olive trees coming into bearing per year, and the old trees are yearly increasing their bearing capacity. In 1918 we shall have an over-production if we do not create a proper market.

"We must let the easterners know that the ripe olive is not a luxury, but an economical food product. Why, even the hotels and restaurants persist in carrying the item of olives in the list of relishes, whereas it should appear as a valuable food item. The people need general education along this line. We must provide for a campaign of education through broad channels of advertising, just as the orange growers have done."

ADVERTISE EXTENSIVELY.

The talk of R. C. Merryman was on this same line. He stated that no packer has made any money in olives during the past year, but that by an organization similar to the California Fruit Exchange it is possible to save this year's crop and put the industry on a profitable basis. He said that $350,000 will be spent this year in advertising California citrus fruits, and that a similar service should be performed for the California rip olive. "Advertising is our salvation," said Mr. Merryman.

Various other olive growers participated in the general discussion, during which many interesting facts were brought out. It was stated that the output of domestic olives last year was 1,500,000 gallons, and that there was produced about the same amount of olive oil. The production of ripe olives was 8000 tons. There are from one-half to two-thirds as many non-bearing olive trees as those bearing, so the question of increasing the market is one for immediate and serious attention.

After applications for membership in the association were received, the announcement was made that a series of meetings in various Southern California localities will be held at once. The first of these will be in San Diego next Saturday, in connection with "Ripe Olive Day" at the San Diego exposition.

Meetings will be held in Pomona, Chino, Ontario, Riverside, Perris, Hemet, Elsinore, Wildomar, Temecula, Fallbrook and Escondido, for the purpose of immediately increasing the association membership. As soon as this itinerary is completed there will be a central meeting held in Los Angeles, at which time plans will be adopted for the handling of this year's crop.

The roster of officers for the California Ripe Olive Association is as follows: John J. Avis, president; A. B. Miller, vice-president for Southern California; L. F. Bremner, vice-president for Central California; W. P. Hammon and W. N. Woodson, vice-presidents for Northern California; R. L. Underhill, secretary; George C. Mansfield, director of exploitation. The main office is in the Sheldon Building, San Francisco.

BIG ONES BUSY.

Standard and Union Oil Companies Maintain Lead in Development Work in Fullerton Field.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

FULLERTON, Sept. 24.—While new wells are going down in all parts of the Fullerton field, the Standard and Union oil companies lead in development work here.

The bringing in of good producers by the Standard within the city limits, has created a new demand for oil leases, but as practically everything in the vicinity in under lease it is almost impossible to get a piece of property. It is said that those who have secured lands in the city limits will begin at least two or three new wells within forty days.

It is reported today that the Fullerton Great West Oil Company, owned mostly by residents of San Diego, expects to bring in another new well within a few days in the North Placentia field.

The Brea road, north to the city limits, and passing through the new oil district, has just been paved at an expense of $40,000 and is open for traffic.

The following notice has been filed with the county recorder: "E. L. Doheny, et al, to Charles McComber, quit claims all interest in agreement of lease on lands near La Habra."

On the Cook-Little lease in La Habra the Tri-State Oil Company has its well down 4055 feet.

The old gusher on the Birch lease is still flowing 700 barrels daily.

Amalgamated well No. 40 on the Hualde lease was put down 2950 feet under contract and cemented off in thirty days, which is considered a splendid record.

FUTURE BRIGHT, HE SAYS.

Mining Expert, Who Foresaw Possibilities of Oatman District, Adheres to His Faith in It.

Big things are looked for from the Oatman district by Col. Ed F. Browne, well-known local mining expert, and student of financial conditions. He expresses the belief that there is room for twenty mines in the district, and in this statement echoes a sentiment expressed by him nearly four years ago in an article in the Midwinter Number of The Times. He bases his prediction upon the actual study of conditions in the district made by himself some years ago, and again more recently.

He urges, though, that no company has a right to enter the district and undertake development without being prepared financially to go 400 or 500 feet to reach ore, and believes that the geological features require particular study, on account of the uncertainty in the trend of the veins. He believes that the ore-bearing formation is of unusual extent, longitudinally, in this district.

Oatman.

COOLER WEATHER BRACES THE MINING INDUSTRY.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

OATMAN (Ariz.) Sept. 24.—Mining activity is increasing steadily in this district with the advent of cooler weather. Many of the newer properties are being prepared for vigorous development and extra shifts are being put to work on some of the other estates. The road from Topock is dotted with freight teams hauling in units of machinery for the different operating mines and prospects.

The Big Jim shaft is now down 182 feet and is cutting through another big mineralized formation. Stringers of quartz and calcite said to be indicative of approaching vein material are frequently appearing.

Superintendent J. A. Keating states that he believes the extension of the Black Eagle vein of the Tom Reed company will be crosscut on the 300-foot level before November 1. At the present time sixteen men are employed working three shifts on the property and rapid progress is being made sinking the shaft.

F. W. Reese of Los Angeles has purchased the Gold Road west extension group, which has the westerly strike of the West Gold Road mine and the Monte Vissta group lying west of the Hardy mine. These properties will be taken over by the Gold Road Extension Mining and Milling Company, a recent incorporation.

Bids for the sinking of an additional 200 feet in the present 200-foot shaft of the Cater Gold Mining Company have just been let. A nice body of fair milling ore was uncovered recently in this property on the 200-foot level and samplings taken indicate that this is probably the apex of an ore-shoot.

Henry Bell of the W. I. Hollingsworth Company of Los Angeles has just purchased the Star group of four claims lying south of the Gold Road mine and on the westerly strike of the Gold Road Bonanza.

Strikes were reported this week from the Moss mine, where free gold is said to have been found in the lower workings and on the Gold Reed on the 375-foot level. On the latter property a large body of milling ore is being drifted on with very satisfactory results.

MERCHANT BUYS HOME.

Member of Prominent Broadway Firm Acquires Beautiful Colonial Residence at Seventh and Kingsley.

Hildesheim & Schiller report the sale to Grover Jacoby of a handsome new residence at the southwest corner of Kingsley drive and West Seventh street, recently completed by J. A. Rogers. The house is of colonial design and has plastered exterior walls. It contains ten rooms, with three tile baths. The interior finish is of mahogany, oak and old ivory. The lot is 60x135 feet. The agents give the consideration at $15,000.

Mr. Jacoby, who is a member of the firm of Jacoby Bros., intends to occupy the property as his permanent home. As part payment Mr. Jacoby traded in a six-room bungalow at Venice, valued at $4000. J. L. Walter of Venice assisted in the transaction.

LARGE NUMBER OF NEW HOMES.

BUILDING ACTIVITY IN RESIDENCE DISTRICTS INCREASING RIGHT ALONG.

Plans for an attractive eleven-room residence to be built as his own home have just been completed by W. C. Pennell, a local architect. The house will be of the English type and will occupy a large site on Buckingham road, in Lafayette Square. A contract was let during the week for a twelve-room double house to be built by Mrs. W. H. Field at No. 1931 Ivar avenue. Work is to be started this week on a ten-room house for J. T. McNeely on Irolo street, near Wilshire. Plans have been drawn for a ten-room double house for J. C. Stebbert at No. 3448 Stephenson avenue. Henry Kier has had plans prepared for a ten-room residence at No. 610 Spence street. Mrs. Annie Davidson will start at once a ten-room house at No. 850 South Wilton place. Mrs. Elizabeth Smith is about to start a ten-room house at No. 309 South St. Andrews place.

Architects O. P. Dennis and Frank F. Rasche will superintend the construction of a nine-room residence to be started this week by Henry Balsinger on Western avenue near Sixteenth street. Work will be started tomorrow on a nine-room house for Mrs. A. C. Macliesh on West Seventh, near St. Andrews. The contract has been let for a nine-room house projected by J. C. Crisp on West Eighteenth. Contractors will begin work this week on an eight-room house for F. R. Jones at No. 1137 South New Hampshire. John Akin will start work at once on an eight-room house at No. 521 South Manhattan. Plans have been completed for an eight-room house for Edith C. Birckman at No. 1040 South Wilton. WHEAT PRICES AGAIN DROP.

BEARISH INFLUENCE FELT IN CHICAGO MARKET.

Winter Crop will Only Fall Short of 3,000,000 Bushels of Estimate of Month Ago—Wet Weather Responsible for Early Bullish Sentiment—Meat Quotations Low.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, Sept. 25.—Bearish estimates of the yield in the domestic winter-crop belt made wheat prices today fail to hold an early advance. The market closed heavy, ⅝ off to ¾ up compared with last night and with December at 94⅝@94¾, and May at 97. Corn lost ¼ to 1c net and oats finished a sixteenth down to a like advance, and provisions unchanged to 10c higher. According to a well-known expert here, the winter wheat crop of the United States will amount to 647,000,000 bushels, a total that, despite an abandonment of 2,159,000 acres, is only 3,000,000 bushels less than was estimated a month ago. Announcement of the new figures led to a general rush to sell, as long-continued rains and the large acreage abandoned has caused an impression that the total yield would be seriously diminished. Wet weather northwest with a forecast of more was chiefly responsible for bullish sentiment which ruled the wheat pit at the start. The movement of the spring crop, however, was of such large proportions that threatened delays failed to have a lasting influence on the market. Corn weakened under the weight of free offerings from the country. Later prices were steadied by unfavorable weather conditions. Trade was light. Big reductions in western stocks of meat had a bullish influence on provisions. It was said the total falling off for the current month in stocks throughout the West would be 80,000,000 pounds.

Elgin Butter Market.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

ELGIN (Ill.) Sept. 25.—Butter higher; 125 tubs sold at 26.

COMMERCIAL.

Prices for the new crop of prunes are expected early this week. In the opinion of the leading wholesalers quotations at present are entirely too high and are not warranted by the condition of the market. Holders of prunes have placed a fictitious value on their stock, based upon the sale of a small amount to various European countries at unusually high prices. When the new quotations are published a reduction of 20 per cent. from present figures would not come as a surprise. Several items in the dried-fruit list are more expensive. Evaporated apples have advanced half a cent a pound for all grades and extra choice apricots are now bringing 9 and 9½ cents per pound. The only dates on the market are the Golden variety, which are selling in 60-pound boxes at 9 cents a pound.

California cheese has again advanced 1 cent a pound and eastern Daisies are cheaper at 18 cents a pound. Domestic Swiss can now be secured for 19 and 20 cents a pound and limburger is a little easier. There is no Edam cheese in the market at present and other varieties of the dairy product remain unchanged.

As there was no call on the Produce Exchange yesterday listed commodities did not vary. Egg receipts were small at 114 cases and an advance in the price of local ranch eggs is predicted for Monday. Butter arrivals continue large, the receipts Saturday totaling 46,600 pounds. San Francisco quotations were 26½ for butter, 39 for eggs and 14 for old-style cheese. Local cheese arrivals were 1750 pounds and eastern cheese came into the city to the extent of 30,500 pounds. Although potato receipts were exceptionally heavy yesterday only 1542 sacks were left in Los Angeles, the remainder being shipped to near-by points without removal from the original cars. According to Secretary Pickrell the balance of the receipts comprised 1240 sacks of onions, 40 sacks of beans, 571 sacks of sweet potatoes, 20,079 boxes of apples and 800 cases of eastern eggs.

LOS ANGELES STOCK EXCHANGE.

Heavy Trading in Home Telephone Preferred—Associated Strong—Yellow Pine Active.

Home Telephone preferred was very strong on the exchange yesterday, over 90 shares changing hands at 50.00. Twenty shares of Associated brought 49.75 and 15 shares of Amalgamated sold on a rising market. Renewed interest was evidenced in Yellow Pine when 200 shares sold for 82½. The Oatman issues continued weak, Arizona Tom Reed selling for 22½ and little demand being manifested for Big Jim. Los Angeles Investment recovered a trifle and closed firmer at 37. Completing the day's transactions was the transfer of 2000 shares of Consolidated Mines at 2¼. First National and Security Trust and Savings were in frequent call among the bank securities and Los Angeles Railway Corporation 5s were up at 85.

Notice to Stockholders of the Mexican Petroleum Company, Limited, of Delaware.

Los Angeles, California, September 15, 1915.

To Holders of Preferred and Common Stock of the Mexican Petroleum Company, Limited, of Delaware:

The undersigned, stockholders of the Mexican Petroleum Company, Limited, of Delaware, and other stockholders holding in the aggregate a majority of the outstanding capital stock, preferred and common, are of the opinion that it is for the best interest of all of the stockholders of the Company that the continuity of the present management of the Company be secured in order to carry on without risk of interruption the development of its properties and business along the lines now being followed. In view of the arrangements recently effected in England, which were outlined in the annual report, involving a great expansion of the Company's business, it is believed to be particularly desirable at this time that a continuous policy of management be secured, not only because the measures already adopted by the present management are expected to work great benefit to the Company and its stockholders, but because the management would feel better justified in inviting the co-operation of the English interests requiring large expenditures on their part, if the control of the Company is secured for the period during which the present policies are being developed.

It is, therefore, proposed to create a voting trust for a period of seven years, and the undersigned have consented to act as voting trustees provided the plan meets with the general approval and co-operation of the stockholders.

Preferred and common stockholders are invited to deposit their stock in negotiable form with the Guaranty Trust Company, New York City, which will issue its temporary transferable receipts therefor.

For convenience of stockholders deposit may be made at the Company's office, No. 1015 Security Building, Los Angeles, California.

Such deposit will constitute an assent to the creation of the voting trust and an authorization to the undersigned to deposit such stock under the voting trust agreement if and when executed. Deposits of stock will be accepted only until the close of business on October 15, 1915, unless the time for deposit be further extended for thirty days by the undersigned in their discretion. Upon the expiration of the time for deposit the undersigned will determine whether in their opinion stockholders sufficient in number and interest have deposited their stock to justify the creation of the proposed voting trust. According to the determination then made the Guaranty Trust Company in exchange for its temporary receipts will either, as agent for the voting trustees, issue to holders thereof voting trust certificates representing the deposited stock, or will return the stock without charge.

Copies of the proposed voting trust agreement may be obtained from the Guaranty Trust Company and at the Company's office in Los Angeles, California, upon request. Prompt application will be made to the New York Stock Exchange to list the temporary receipts.

[Signed:]
E. L. DOHENY, President of the Company.
J. M. DANZIGER, Vice-President.

United Demand.

feet. At Hope it would be forty feet and at Olive, twenty-eight feet.

He would excavate the hill back 120 feet on either side of the street, which he would keep at its present width of sixty-eight feet. The future widening of the street would be as easy in the cut as outside of it, he declares, thanks to the ample size allowed for the hill opening.

Back of the base line of the cut Mr. Holmes would have the city acquire twenty feet additional extending along the south side of the opening from Hill to Figueroa. This would make it possible to slope the dirt sides of the cut, thereby eliminating the necessity for expansive retaining walls. For the benefit of the hilltop pedestrians the originator of the idea would span the twenty-foot space between the upper edge of the slope and the base line of the cut with a sidewalk of some description, supported on the south by solid ground and on the north by a series of steel posts running from end to end of the cut. These posts, being back of the buildings on First street would not be obtruded upon the vision of passers by.

The carrying out of this combined sloping wall and sidewalk plan, Mr. Holmes points out, would necessitate the condemnation in most instances only of strips of ground along the sides of lots, leaving the owners ample space for the accommodation of existing buildings or the erection of new structures. Every lot so sliced off would, by the laying of the bordering sidewalk, become a corner.

On the north side of the cut the plan would call for a similar treatment from Grand avenue westward to Figueroa. Between Grand and Hill the side of the cut would be braced by a retaining wall, bordering which would be a forty-foot roadway giving access to the top of the hill from the downtown level.

Mr. Holmes's scheme calls for bridges over the cut at Olive, Grand, Hope and Flower. These spans, he believes, need not be over twenty-five feet in width and should be of simple steel construction, being supported by steel columns of sufficient number to insure stability. Such bridges would not shut out the light from the sides of the buildings and would not be so conspicuous as to be offensive.

Mr. Holmes himself is the owner of the two best-improved corners in the zone of the proposed excavation, namely the St. Mark Hotel at First and Olive and the Majestic apartments at First and Hope. He states that he believes the value of both sites would be quadrupled immediately after they had been graded down to the level of Broadway.

In contrast to the City Engineer's estimate of a cost of about $1,250,000 for a First-street cut, without the damages figured in, Mr. Holmes submits figures to substantiate his belief that the enterprise as he conceives it could be put through at a cost of slightly less than $1,000,000, with all necessary damages included. These estimates are based on what Mr. Holmes declares to have been a careful survey of the situation in all its aspects. Most of the property owners affected have been consulted, according to the father of the plan, and the cost of all land, labor and materials has been tabulated.

JESSON LEADS POMONA HUNS.

VETERAN HALF IS ELECTED TO FILL VACANCY.

Stanton Picks a Tentative Varsity Eleven, with Subs, but Announces that There will be a Good Many Changes Before the Final Selection is Made.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CLAREMONT, Sept. 25.—Ralph Jesson was elected captain of the Pomona football team here this afternoon at a meeting of all the letter men in football to fill the vacancy caused by the transfer of Captain-elect McCulloch to California.

"Juicy" seems to be the logical man for the position, not only because of his recognized ability as a football player, but also because of the hold which he has upon the men who will compose the team. Thus the Huns are assured of a first-class leader for the coming season. Coach Stanton picked his first varsity team this afternoon. The men chosen have shown up best among the men out for football so far this season, but the coach assured them that because they have been given temporary places on the first team is no sign that they will be in evidence when the time for the first big game rolls around. Frequent changes are promised in the personnel of the team. The men chosen are as follows:

Ends, Sugg and Greathouse; tackles, Raitt and Dahlem; guards, Keyes and H. McCulloch; center, Waltz; quarterback, McFadden; fullback, C. Green, halfbacks, Jesson and Elliott. Other members of the varsity squad are D. Sturgess, center; Rapson, quarter; Given and Dowling, half. The coach gave a set of signals to each of the men picked for the team and told them to have the code memorized by Monday, when the first scrimmage is to be held.

WELSH GETS BIG MONEY.

NEW ORLEANS (La.) Sept. 25.—Tommy Burns and Dominick Tortorich today decided to give Freddie Welsh, lightweight champion of the world, $12,000 before he enters the ring if Welsh will agree to box Joe Mandot, local pride, twenty rounds for the championship of the world on March 3, 4 or 6, 1916. This decision came after much consideration. Both Burns and Tortorich went over Mandot's past fights and the amount of money taken in. They figure that Welsh, being champion, will be one of the biggest drawing cards ever presented here. The bout will probably be staged in Heinemann Baseball Park, the largest playing field in the South, and accommodations will be made to seat nearly 20,000 fans.

CHANDLER CAR STARTS ON ITS NON-STOP RUN.

Will Leave Tia Juana this Morning and will not Stop Until it Reaches the Canadian Border if the Driver and Crew Can Help It—Must Fill with Gasoline and Oil on the Run.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN DIEGO, Sept. 25.—Prepared to start on a record-breaking non-stop run from Tia Juana, Mex., to VVancouver, B. C., at an early hour Sunday morning, a Chandler Six touring car with five passengers reached San Diego this evening from Los Angeles. The members of the crew will remain at the Grant Hotel tonight and sleep for the last time before reaching the Canadian border, if the great feat can be accomplished.

The run of the Chandler car is claimed to be the most strenuous task ever undertaken in the history of the motor-car industry. Not only is the motor to be kept running during the tour across the United States, but the wheels of the car are to be kept rolling at all times. The drivers and observers are to remain in the machine during the entire run, eating and sleeping on the road.

Chandler distributors along the route are to furnish the men in the machine with supplies and food as they pass through their districts, and in the mountain passes pilot cars are to go ahead, warning traffic of the non-stop Chandler on the road. According to the schedule as laid out by C. H. Hunter of the Chandler Motor Car Company of California, who is to drive the machine, and Earl V. Armstrong, president of the company, the car will arrive at Vancouver, B. C., early next Thursday morning.

The Automobile Club of Southern California mapped the course for the great run, which iss approximately 1800 miles. Frank Jordan of the Auto Club has secured the latest road information for the motorists and made special arrangements for information to be passed out along the route, regarding detours and construction work along the Pacific Highway.

As a feat of national importance, the record run has attracted the interest of the Universal Film Company, and Joe Waddell has been commis-

Killilay Pitches Cipher Ball in the Opener.

Muff Loses Second Game for Charley Chech.

Ryan, Gedeon, Quinlan Land Telling Punches.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

The crucial series took the form of a double-header yesterday, with the fighting Tigers as the main sufferers from the innovation.

Double-headers in which the home team gets licked, both fore and aft, should be discouraged, if not entirely prohibited by law. From a technical standpoint the games were up to snuff, and good to watch, but to have the boys beaten twice so soon together took a good deal of sap out of our enjoyment, and hurt like a couple of gall stones.

The requiem reads:
First game—Salt Lake 3, Vernon 0.
Second game—Salt Lake 2, Vernon 1.

A postmorten develops the fact that the Bees had just a trifle too much hitting power for us in the opener, while an error decided the second installment.

VERY DARK.

The day was dark and dreary, anyway that you looked at it. Most of the afternoon, clouds hovered over the park. Of course if you must have clouds, that is the proper place for them. Nobody would want them hovering around inside of the grand stand. Can you imagine anything more dismal than the home team getting beaten twice on a cloudy day, especially when we have been trained to love sunshine and victories?

At times it seemed that a fall shower might come down and wash away the double-header and other debris. But along toward evening the clouds dispersed, and the finish found a ripe, mellow September sunset flooding the premises, and enhancing the quiet beauty of the paid ads on the fence.

EXCITING.

The demand for hot dogs and other food munitions exceeded all expectations. How to overcome the shortage is puzzling the management. However, with the approach of cold weather, sausage factories will probably spring up all over the country, and this should tend to bridge the crisis. Even then we may have to

SHATTERS ROAD MARK IN NORTH.

Another California road record was established by the Chevrolet last week when E. Lynn Mathewson drove from San Francisco into Yosemite Valley in 10h. 15m., breaking a record, which had stood all attempts to beat it for sometime.

A pleasure trip had been formed to make this tour into the National Reserve, and at the last minute Mathewson decided he would join it, and as they were leaving Oakland one of his friends suggested that he break Fernando Nelson's record of 10h. 17m., which was made some years ago.

Speaking of the trip, Mathewson says, "As I wanted to catch up with the others it was an extra incentive to move faster, so we were away through the night as fast as we dared, considering speed regulations. The run to Stockton and to the foothills was of no special note, as the road was familiar to me, but beyond the city it was different. I had to depend on the guide. Twice we lost the road and my speedometer showed in comparison with other cars when I got into the valley that I had gone twenty-five miles out of my way. Before leaving Oakland we had made arrangements to be checked in just before we reached the valley. For some unknown reason we were held up twenty minutes at this point.

Finally reaching the government entrance, we found that we could not speed into the valley, although we were in the first car. We had to go in on schedule—the schedule called for a one-hour-and-thirty-six-minute run in. The Chevrolet can easily cover the distance in thirty minutes, so that our time was that much longer than when the record was established and there were no regulations forbidding them to travel as fast as they pleased. We covered the distance in 10h. 15 m., or two minutes faster than the record. Taking out the twenty minutes which the checker has allowed, and the hour and six minutes forced time schedule, our actual time as compared with the Nelson record is 8h. 49m., or one hour and twenty-eight minutes faster than the record."

This run was made in a stock "Baby Grand" Chevrolet, and the start was made with no idea of a record event, but simply of overtaking the main body of tourists that had started on ahead.

Rainy Weather in North.

MEDFORD MAN IN PAIGE MAKES DIFFICULT TRIP.

MOTOR travel between San Francisco and Portland will be more difficult now than at any time since the roads were opened, and it will not be long before the winter rains make the roads into Oregon impassable. This is the opinion of George Deerman of Medford, who drove to Los Angeles last week in his new Paige "36" six-cylinder touring car.

The rains in Southern Oregon come early and when they do, the roads become dangerous quickly, for much of the driving is of necessity through mountains.

Deerman followed the Pacific Highway route, and ran into rain the first day out. However, he met with no great difficulties, due to the fact that the car was equipped fore and aft with Nobby Tread casings.

South of Sacramento no rains were encountered, and the roads were found in excellent shape. He drove to San Francisco, where he spent two days at the exposition and then continued to Los Angeles and San Diego.

On the long drive of more than 1000 miles in the new car no mechanical trouble was experienced. The speedometer registered only sixty miles when the trip started. It now shows 1078.

NEW MACHINE IS ADDED BY CHANCE.

DUPLICATE OF AUTO OWNED BY PEERLESS LEADER AT GREAT SHOW.

Frank Chance, the peerless leader of the old Chicago Cubs, the famous old Chicago baseball machine, has added a 1916 White "45" seven-passenger touring car to his motor-car stable. The White "45" is the latest offering of the line, and with the foreign-type body, is one of the most attractive cars in its class this season.

A duplicate of the Chance machine is to be included in the White exhibit of the Pioneer Commercial Auto Company at the great Broadway Automobile and Flower Show October 23 to 30. The car is full streamline construction, finished in the exclusive White shade of green.

Labor officials are making a determined effort to unionize all the motor repair shops in Boston.

BEAN MONEY TO PURCHASE AUTOS.

With the harvesting of the bean crop in Ventura county motor-car distributors in Southern California are to be benefited immensely. This report was brought to the city by Arthur Bull, outside representative for Hawley, King & Co., dealers in Oakland and National cars. Mr. Bull says the ranchers are expecting to benefit by a ready market for their crops at high prices.

Bull told Manager Reeve Gartzmann that more automobiles will be bought in Ventura county within the next six months than ever before. "It seems the ranchers and farmers of Southern California are going to be the principal buyers, just as they will be this season in all parts of the United States. When in the East recently the factory officials told me the development of the rural trade is going to be the salvation of the industry.

That passenger cars are on the increase in Maryland is shown by figures just compiled under the direction of the motor vehicle commissioner of that State. During the first seven months of 1915, licenses were granted for more cars than the entire registration of 1914, or 22,505, as compared with 18,269 for last year.

Cut Open Chassis

The various enclosed models adapt themselves to all desires. There is the standard limousine for the man who will have a driver. The brougham is the ideal family car for the man who wishes to preside at the wheel. The Victoria seats three comfortably and can easily be converted into an open roadster—the top falling back.

The cooped-up, rumbling affair of the past has given way to roomy and luxurious bodies. Every effort is made to provide for the comfort and ease of the passengers and with the easily-adjusted windows the summer air of the open country can be enjoyed amid the luxuries of the limousine, brougham or Victoria.

Cars such as the Cadillac Eight are propelled by a power of which the occupants are never conscious. It is as if some great magnet from afar were drawing the car toward it, always on and on without vibration, without noise, without effort. In this car is a comfort and luxury never before known to motoring.

The present type of enclosed cars carry a degree of elegance and impression of affluence that cannot be obtained in an open model of the same make, while the additional cost is negligible.

RUESS SETS PACE FOR MOTOR RESERVE SHOTS.

BY EDWARD C. CROSSMAN,

Secretary Los Angeles Rifle and Revolver Club, Instructor Rifle Practice Los Angeles Motor Reserve.

THE Los Angeles Motor Reserve shooters have their place set for them, and they're got to travel or eat dust. One Bill Ruess, who is a pest and an annoyance to all the deer in the Santa Monica range, is the party to show the rest of the reserve how the military Springfield should be handled in order to produce the greatest number of white discs across the face of the black bull's-eye. For the Los Angeles Scottish Billiam put the hoot in shoot.

Said Ruess party came out to the range about the time sensible folks were going home, last Sunday, and announced that in the hour and half yet remaining of daylight, he proposed to learn how to shoot the military rifle instead of his usual sporting rifle, to learn the kneeling and the prone position, to fire fifty-four rounds of ammunition, to put on ten-shot scores at 200 and 300-timed fire, and ten-shot scores at 300, 500 and 600 slow fire. Also that he proposed to make the requisite score of 210x250, and get the highest government silver button, the expert, the score being the same as that required by the State for gold bars, from its militiamen. That was all. No sensible man would have undertaken the contract with a whole day for the job—but still we're not talking about Bill Ruess.

Five minutes of the time went to persuade him that his way was not the way to use the sling, etc. He proposed also to shoot it all offhand, and had to be cajoled to take the position "as issued" by the government. He's a fine student of the game, somewhat less amenable to discipline and coaching than a brindle bull pup.

Presently, after roars of expostulation on the part of said Bill, he got going. His 200 score shot from the kneel, a very, very unusual position for Bill, totaled forty-seven out of fifty. The 300 score, also timed fire, went to the tune of forty-five. Bill began to exude sweat and profanity because a cruel coach insisted on tying a sling around his left arm so it cut well into the hide.

At 300 slow, Bill tried to roar with joy and shoot at one and the same instant, because a shot had come up a bull. Result a three, and a total of thirty-nine. The 500-yard range saw straight bulls until he got the swelled head and tried fancy stunts to relieve the monotony. Total forty. Down at 600 yards, with the targest shrouded in deep gloom from the shadow of the canyon, and the firing point in sunlight, he put on la clean forty-five, with a three for his last shot as the penalty for more carelessness. Total 216 for his first try over the government course, six points over the requisite score for expert, twenty-six better than the score for sharpshooter, fifty-six better than the score for marksman. Only for the fact that the coach could not make him believe in the policy of watchful waiting for every shot, he would have scored over 220. Things came too easily, and like all new hands at the military rifle game, he got too familiar with the wide and aching void that surrounds the tiny black speck representing the bull's-eye.

This is the first score on record in Los Angeles where a man has qualified for the highest button the first time through the course with a strange rifle, and needless to say, the first time a new hand with the military rifle has qualified the first time through for any sort of button. While Ruess is a skilled game shot, it is not military rifle shooting in an unfamiliar position. The Reserve and the Scots are now due to get out and hustle, or gracefully remove the chapeau when they meet the estimable Mr. Ruess.

NEW LINE IS TAKEN OVER.

C. S. Anthony, one of the best known automobile men in Los Angeles, who has been on the local "automobile row" for the past nine years, has just closed a contract with the Bartholomew Company of Peoria, Ill., for the sale of the Glide Six throughout Southern California.

The Glide has been on the market for a number of years and has been popular in the East. The 1916 model is a lightweight six weighing but 2600 pounds. The transmission case instead of being of malleable or cast iron is of aluminum. The oil pan instead of being cast iron is of pressed steel and the flywheel housing is of aluminum.

The 1916 Glide has 119-inch wheel base, Brown Lipe transmission, Spicer universal joints, Westinghouse starter, Rutenber motor, dry multiple disc clutch, Westinghouse ignition, Stewart-Warner vacuum gasoline system, etc. These parts are all standard and are used by many higher priced cars.

The Glide factory is one of the oldest organizations in the automobile industry. The Glide name is founded on many things, such as style, finish, comfort, silence, ease of operation and enduring construction.

A large stock of parts for Glide cars has been secured and a complete service department will be installed. Mr. Anthony, who has handled the Regal for the past seven years, has given this line up and will specialize on the Glide.

The establishment of a branch in Pasadena marks the first step in the expansion of the California Sales Company, dealing in speedometers and kindred products. The policy will be continued until the entire State has been covered. The Pasadena branch will care for the business of that city, Alhambra, San Gabriel and other near-by territory. The branch carries a full line of Stewart-Warner products and will assist materially in the great campaign to standardize the speedometer equipment of Southern California's motor cars. Within a month a branch will be opened in San Francisco to take care of the Stewart-Warner sales in the northern territory.

ASSISTING MOTORISTS.

The Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company is endeavoring to assist all motorists to obtain more mileage from their tires, not only by furnishing a good tire, but by pointing out the abuses which ruin tires. A series of bulletins has been prepared, each illustrating and describing some abuse to which tires are commanly subjected—resulting in ruin. Any motorist may secure this series of bulletins free by writing to the service department, the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, Akron, O.

JAMES L. IRVING.

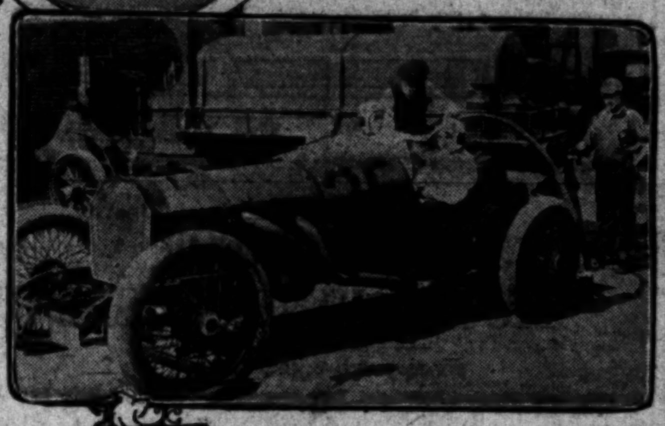
The significance to the Los Angeles motor public in these messages is found in the fact the twelve-cylinder Enger car will be here in time for the Broadway Automobile and Flower Show, which will be held in the old J. W. Robinson store building. It means that this will be the first show in the country in which the Enger will appear and if the event becomes an annual feature, motorists may look to it for the first appearance of new models.

James L. Irving, the Enger distributor, believes that a fall show in Los Angeles ought to be an event of interest to the manufacturers of the country. The new models, types and designs usually are reserved for appearance at the New York show. Often the cars on exhibit never have revolved their own wheels and were assembled specially for show purposes without thought of actual test.

"Out here, where the winters are so open, the manufacturers could put their cars on display and subject them to road demonstrations as a part of their exhibit," Mr. Irving suggests. "It was said that one car builder displayed a car at Chicago last year that did not have a motor under the hood and got away with it. If a fall show in Los Angeles became a permanent feature, builders would be disposed to construct their new cars with the understanding they would be given road tests as a part of the exhibition. This might be extended to include an award of points for the merit of the cars thus developed."

SAXON WILL BE AT SHOW.

The Saxon Motor Sales Company, which has just taken over the Saxon line in Southern California, is to be represented by a full line of cars in the Broadway Automobile and Flower Show. An official of the local company has gone East to the factory to secure special show cars of all Saxon models.



Mel Stringer, in Marmon racer

Owned by Sidney Landers of Texas, taking on supply of Puente gasoline before starting on a drive to Fresno, where he is to compete in the track races next Saturday with Vic Wells as mechanician. Landers's Marmon has been recently rebuilt and equipped with Houk wire wheels and Alloyanum pistons. Above, Stringer, the veteran driver.

NEW SAXON HOME OPENS FOR TRADE.

F. E. Wright, sales manager for the Saxon Motor Sales Company, now has the new sales office at No. 1140 South Olive street fully equipped and ready to handle the big rush of business that is promised for the Saxon.

Ever since the announcement of the opening of the new home there has been a demand for demonstrations and sales were made even before the new place was opened up for business. With the arrival this week of several carloads of these popular cars the sales campaign has begun in earnest.

Speaking of the business they were doing and the big advance that had been made in the automobile industry since he had been connected with it, Mr. Wright says there are four new ideas now being carried out in motor-car design, namely, the high-speed motor, light weight, yacht-line body design and increased riding comfort.

PLUGOFF KEEPS HIS EYE ON THE BUSINESS BALL.

A. D. PLUGHOFF, general manager of the J. W. Leavitt Company, is looking over the Overland business in Southern California and will be here at least a week.

Plughoff has just completed a trip throughout the northern territory. He was accompanied on the tour by one golf bag filled with an assortment of shovels and meat axes.

"How did you find business conditions in Seattle?" "Plug" was asked.

"Things are much better there," he replied; "the last time I went around, I went the first nine holes under fifty, but was a bit unsettled coming in."

"I presume the Overland six is popular up there on account of its power," continued the interviewer.

"She sure is a bear on the hills and in the sand. Speaking of sand, I got into that bad bunker on the sixth hole, and I thought I would never get out. It really is marvelous how much sand a man can dig up with one golf club. Since then I have added a hoe to my set."

"Were you in Spokane?"

"Sure, we had a big sale there. We sold 115 cars there in one week, and I made a 68 on the golf course—or, come to think of it, I think it was the other way."

"San Francisco is booming, but things will never be right until they fill up that Grand Canyon which passes through the course. Play up there very much and you would be well qualified for climbing the Alps."

"How are things here?" asked Plughoff, addressing L. V. Starr, the local manager.

"Rotten," was the reply. "I am all off my game with the wooden clubs. Getting so I am afraid to swing."

"Are we going around to see the agents while you are here?" asked Starr.

"Sure, I got a new club I want to try out; let's go out to Midwick."

JESS WILLARD SENDS COLE EIGHT TO WIFE.

JESS WILLARD, champion heavyweight of the world and the only conqueror of Jack Johnson, while in Indianapolis last week with the 101 Ranch Wild West Show, visited the Cole Motor Car Company's factory and placed an order for another Cole eight. The car was ordered delivered at once to Mrs. Willard at the Willard home, No. 5838 Gregory avenue, Los Angeles.

The conditions surrounding the sale of the car to the giant pugilist were decidedly unusual, and the whole thing did not take much longer than it takes to tell about it.

"I finally selected the Cole eight," says Willard, "and recognized its class, in the same way as anyone with discernment can pick a trained athlete in the pink of perfect trim.

"Picking perfect specimens in men, dogs, horses, yachts or motor cars, there are certain fundamental principles or earmarks which indicate the champion class; and I know the Cole eight belongs."

But this is not all.

Jess drove his car and liked it so well that he arranged a little surprise for his wife. He purchased another 1916 Cole eight touring car and ordered delivery to be made in Los Angeles to Mrs. Willard, who is living in Hollywood. He ordered that the car and a chauffeur be sent out to the little bungalow where Mrs. Willard resides and that the car be given to her as a little surprise present from Jess.

"Manager Ed F. Harris of the Cole Motor Company, Los Angeles, accordingly took the car and a driver out to Mrs. Willard's bungalow and asked Mrs. Willard if he might show her a Cole eight—and possibly demonstrate it to her.

"Oh," said Mrs. Willard, "what a beautiful car; but it would be no use for me to ride in it, as I do not believe that we can afford one."

"Well, if that's the case," said Mr. Harris, "since you appreciate the beauty of the Cole eight so much, I believe that I ought to give it to you; so please consider it absolutely yours, and that chauffeur there will be at your order from now on."

Mrs. Willard gazed at Mr. Harris blankly—and then he told her of the surprise present Jess had aranged for her.

The photograph shows how Willard's family appreciated his gift. The Cole eight made a big hit with Jess, Jr., who is now 22 months old. He immediately showed his preference for the driving seat and the Klaxon horn button on the steering wheel.

"You may think," said Mrs. Willard to Harris, when he was leaving, "that Jess is a great champion—but I know that he is even greater as a husband."

ADVANCE PRICE ON TWELVE CAR.

EARLY ORDERS SAVE "TWIN-SIX" PURCHASERS LARGE SUM ON COST PRICE.

Local Packard purchasers who have already put up their deposits on "Twin-Sixes" had reason to congratulate themselves Friday when a telegram was received by Earle C. Anthony, Inc., from the Packard factory, stating that after September 17, the price of the Packard "1-25" was advanced $150 and that of the "1-35" moved up $200. Rapidly rising prices of metals, due to foreign orders for war munitions, was given as the reason for the advance. The advance, of course, does not affect the price of the cars on which buyers have already paid a deposit, but all future sales will be at the new figure.

Though not the slightest intimation had been given by the factory that such a move was contemplated, Earle C. Anthony, local Packard distributor, stated yesterday that it came as no surprise to him.

"Anyone who has been watching the metal market must know that the cost today of building an automobile is far above what an estimate six months ago would have put it. The price of aluminum, for example, has advanced 20 cents per pound in the last four months. Packard bodies, crank-cases, pistons, etc., are all of aluminum. Figure for yourself what an increase in expense this one item represents. And the price of aluminum is still going up. Copper, zinc, high-grade steels and other metals have all advanced greatly in price. With the small margin of profit which the Packard makers figured year, the advances in the metals would have left

Worm-drive truck owned by Nicolaus and Reeves, Van Nuys ranchers, transporting capacity load of bailed hay.

RANCHERS NICK RAILROADS.

"WE HAVE a private railroad to the city. The county maintains our right-of-way, and all we have to do is furnish our own rolling stock. It means real independence for the farmer for the first time."

This is the way Nicolaus & Reeves, progressive ranchers of Van Nuys, regard their investment last spring in a Packard worm-drive truck which they have used steadily for the past four months in the delivery of the products of their ranch to city customers.

Between land they own and land they lease, Nicolaus & Reeves farm some 300 acres in the fertile San Fernando Valley. Formerly they were dependent on the railroads, and they had to haul with wagons to the depot, and trust their perishable products to the railroads, and the commission man at the other end of the line.

Two years ago they commenced to send their stuff to the city by the motor freighting lines that began this class of work. It proved as cheap as the railroad and much more satisfactory. They figured up at the end of the season and found their hauling charges for the season amounted to nearly $3000, and they determined this year to do their own hauling. A. H. Raymond of Earle C. Anthony, Inc., convinced them that a three-ton Packard worm-drive truck was the sort of vehicle for their needs, and early in May they put the truck in service.

Last week the Van Nuys ranchers stopped in to see Raymond. "Our season is about over," they told him. "We have been working the truck about four and one-half months, and we figure that we have made enough from its operation so that we can lay it up if we want to and never touch it again until next season."

In that four months the Packard has traveled a little over 5000 miles. It has made two-round trips daily from the Van Nuys ranch to Los Angeles, and has transported to the city market practically every ounce of produce of the San Fernando Valley ranch. Nicolaus & Reeves claim that aside from the economy of their new hauling method, the truck has enabled them to dispose of their produce to better advantage, and has given them a far wider market. It has brought them into direct communication with their customers, and the ability to deliver direct to the buyer has proved a great selling help.

Instead of receipts for their hauling bills, the ranchers this fall have instead a valuable piece of machinery that will perform them the same service for years to come, and with which they can earn good wages in hauling work if they desire during the winter season when they have no hauling of their own.

LOCAL MADE POT MAKES SHOWING.

Enthusiastic indorsement of the Ensign carburetor was recently received by the local factory, which has just been moved to new quarters on Pico street, when word was received from Mr. Harry Backstein of New York City, who had his car Ensign-equipped when in Los Angeles last summer and then drove it overland to New York and had also just finished a 1000-mile trip through the New England States when he wrote telling of his appreciation of the Ensign.

"I did not touch the carburetor," says Mr. Backstein, "from the time I left Los Angeles and in fact have not touched the adjustment yet and the only time that I touched it at all was when I showed it to men who were interested in the works."

"On our trip we were as high as 8900 feet, were stuck in quicksand and clay at Blaines Lake in New Mexico for three days with it raining most of the time and in fact had rain almost al the way home, but never once did we give the carburetor a thought or adjust it.'

ALWAYS NAME OIL BRAND.

C. C. Carter, of Austin, Bryant and Carter, is emphatic in his advice to motorists to specify some brand of oil when they are ordering and not just say "some oil."

"So many people, when they are buying oil for their automobiles, drive up to some station or garage and say, 'give me a quart of oil.' In doing this they make a very grave mistake because there are some unscrupulous dealers who will take advantage of this and give them a very inferior grade of oil. There are a number of good motor oils and every owner would do well to specify some one of these oils when he is buying."

ROAD BULLETIN FROM THE AUTO CLUB BUREAU.

San Diego Coast Route.

The Coast Route to San Diego is all in excellent condition with the exception of about ten miles of construction work between San Juan Capistrano and the county line at San Onofre. Of this ten miles, about three miles of the concrete is laid and open to travel although it may be closed at any time and without notice.

For this route, follow the regular road through Montebello, Whittier, Fullerton, Anaheim, Santa Ana, Tustin, Irvine and Capistrano. Leave Los Angeles on East Seventh street, and Santa Ana on East Fourth street. From this point on it is impossible to lose the way.

San Diego Inland Route.

Conditions over this route are rapidly improving but as yet it is hardly the preferable road to San Diego. On account of construction work in the vicinity of Temecula, it is necessary to detour via the Murietta Hot Springs and this road is far from good. The new Temecula grade is finished and cars are going over it but there are some very soft places and very rough road. The balance of the road is in very fair shape.

For this route follow the Valley boulevard from North Main street and Eastlake Park through El Monte, Pomona, Ontario, Riverside, Perris, Elsinore, Murietta, Murietta Hot Springs, Temecula and south, following the main road which is well signed and easy to find.

We wish to give special notice at this time that on and after Monday, September 27, the Basset bridge at Basset and just east of El Monte, will be closed to traffic and all cars (except those owned by residents along the boulevard) advised to detour via the Foothill boulevard from Los Angeles and Pasedan east or vice versa. This also applies to residents living in the vicinity of Covina and Lordsburg.

Inland Route North.

There are practically no changes in this route for the last four months. The proper routing is as follows:

San Fernando boulevard to Saugus, Boquet Canyon to Elizabeth Lake, Willow Springs and over Oak Creek cut-off to Tehachapi thence over the Tehachapi Pass to Bakersfield. State Highway to Delano. Keep straight ahead to the main road from Earlimart to Ducor thence through Porterville and Visalia to Munson and Kingsburg. From this point the State Highway is completed through Fresno, Madera and Modesto to Tracy, Livermoore and Oakland with the exception of a short section under construction between Santa Rita and Livermoore.

Local Roads.

There are practically no changes in the condition of the local riads. All boulevards are finished in Orange county so that it is now possible to reach all of the South Coast beaches over all paved roads. Balboa, Newport and Huntington beaches are very popular drives as they can be made with ease from Los Angeles in three and four hours. A most delightful day's trip can be made to Laguna Beach and return. The swimming and fishing here is as good if not better than at any other spot on the Coast.

Mountain Resorts.

Big Bear Valley and the resorts along the Crest will be as popular as ever this week-end. All of the roads are in good condition and parties should not hesitate to take the trip. Oak Glen and Forrest Home are ideal places to spend Saturday and Sunday if one does not care to take the longer trips into the mountains.

Additional information on any of the trips mentioned will be gladly supplied by the touring bureau of the Automobile Club of Southern California. Information can be secured as late as 8 o'clock on Saturday night and up to 11 o'clock on Sunday.

Coast Route North.

Conditions over this route are about the same as they have been for the past six months. It is still necessary to use the San Marco Pass out of Santa Barbara and is now necessary to detour from King City via Bitterwater and Hollister to Gilroy.

Leaving Los Angeles the road follows out Sunset boulevard to Hollywood, thence through the Cahuenga Pass, keeping to the left at the foot of the hill and following the State Highway north. The paving is finishel through Calabasas and Newberry Park to the top of the Conejo Grade. From this point to Camarillo most of the paving is finished although there is still a little incompleted work. Camarillo to Ventura is dirt road. Ventura to Santa Barbara paved. Santa Barbara to foot of the San Marcos Pass paved. West side of the pass has been oiled and put in good condition but the east side is rough and dusty from the foot of the grade to Los Olivos. Los Olivos to Los Alimos, Los Alimos to Blake paved. Blake to Orcutt dirt. Orcutt to Santa Maria paved. Santa Maria to Arroyo Grande dirt. Arroyo Grande to San Luis Obispo paved. Cuesta Grade is now open for travel north of San Luis Obispo and from that point to the county line at San Miguel the highway is finished with the exception of a short stretch between Atascadero and Templeton. From this point follow the main route through Jolon to King City, here taking the detour through Bitterwater and Hollister to Gilroy. From this point on into San Francisco the highway is finished.

TIRE BRANCH IN NEW HOME.

The new branch store of the Savage Tire Company on West Seventh street is one of the most complete establishments of its kind in the city. The store is conveniently located for motorists, being well in the center of traffic.

One of the best features of the new building is the basement storeroom. This is one of the largest auto tire storerooms in the city. The Savage people find need for such large space, as the Los Angeles branch supplies the employed factory distributors for all the surrounding country, as well as Los Angeles.

"We have room for 5000 tires," said Mr. Reed, "and consequently can keep on hand a good assortment of sizes. We do not expect to keep the warehouse full, however, for at the rate Savage tires are selling, this would be a physical impossibility."

The service department of the new Savage store is complete in every detail. It is well equipped to take care of all tire matters and will surely be appreciated by Los Angeles motorists. A service car is maintained. This will be sent out to any point in the city, free of charge, and is equipped to take care of all the troubles that are likely to be experienced by an auto owner.

The rapid expansion of the Savage Tire Company, which compelled it to seek new quarters, speaks well for the energy and ability of J. H. Reed and his corps of assistants, as well as the merits of Savage tires.

Pasadena society has manifested a great interest in the announcement that an automobile show is to be held inside Hotel Maryland, Pasadena, November 17 to 20. The Maryland is the center of society life in Pasadena during the winter months.

The auto show, with all the latest cars the market affords placed in a magnificent setting on the mezzanine, ballroom and dining-room floors, is the latest offering, and the promise that it will be featured by brilliant society and entertainment events explains the interest displayed by those who make it a practice to patronize special events at this hotel.

GRAND PRIZE FOR THE WHITE.

The White company of Cleveland, O., has received official notification by the superior jury of awards of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition at San Francisco of the awarding of the grand prize for motor trucks to the White. The decision of the jury was based upon the quality of materials used in the manufacture of the White, the design, mechanical construction and efficiency and low cost of operation.

GRAPHITE HELPS OIL, SAYS FROMAN SPEERS.

"BUYING a cheap grade of oil because of the low price is not true economy, but will eventually prove to be a very expensive practice," states Froman Spears, president of the Bekins-Spears Motor Company, distributor for the Haynes light six.

"The principal lubricating mediums commonly used are fluid oil and semi-fluid oils and greases derived from both mineral and animal sources. Graphite, one of the most important lubricants known, is a form of crystalline carbon. The mediums best adapted differ with the nature of the work the parts are to perform. An oil that is suitable for one portion of the automobile mechanism may prove actually injurious to other parts.

"By adding about one teaspoonful of ground flake graphite to every gallon of cylinder oil, it is possible to carry to all surfaces a material that is finer than the most minute pores of the metal and which will gradually cover the metal with a film which heat cannot easily destroy. The benefits derived from the use of graphite in oil are accumulative, for, with continued use, all the bearings, cylinder walls and piston rings are protected by a lubricant which impregnates the metal. All graphite is not lubricating graphite, however, nor is all lubricating graphite suitable for use in cylinder oil. Care must be exercised and only finely ground flake graphite of the best quality should be used.

"Cylinder oil should be derived from a crude petroleum base, because oils of this nature are inorganic and are not liable to decompose by exposure to the air or by heat as are the organic lubricants derived from animal fats or vegetable sources.

"The best cylinder oils are obtained in three grades: light, which has a consistency slightly greater than machine oil; medium, which is somewhat heavier than the light, and is an intermediate grade between that and the heavy bodied oil which has the consistency of warm molasses. The medium grade is best suited for use in summer."

BARSTOW TRAVEL.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

BARSTOW, Sept. 22.—The auto travel through Barstow has been very heavy the past week. Many are returning to their homes in the East.

Sixteen machines from Arizona, eight from Kansas, four from Florida, two from New York, six from Illinois, four from Georgia, and ten from California going East, make a record of fifty machines.

Work on the foundation of the great auto bridge across the Colorado at Needles started this week. It is expected to have the bridge completed by January 1, when it will formally be opened.

Census returns from Iowa this year show that the motor is replacing horse-drawn vehicles all over the State.

FOUR TIMES TO THE EXPOSITION.

Showing a mileage over the 1500 mark, which included camping and fishing side trips, E. Straube, a local motorist, this week completed his fourth round motor trip visit to San Francisco since the opening of the exposition.

Driving his 1915 Hupmobile on every visit, Straube is unlimited in his praise for the merits of the car. The coast route and the valley road, with every detour of either highway, were thoroughly traversed on some one of the four journeys.

At no time did the party experience delay or dissatisfaction with the Hupmobile, and carrying a full capacity of passengers and camping luggage on the last trip, not even as much as the radiator cap was removed in the 1500 miles.

STATE HIGHWAY LATERAL START.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

HANFORD, Sept. 25. — With a crowd of good roads boosters looking on, the first concrete was poured in the construction of the Hanford-Visalia lateral of the State highway Wednesday afternoon, by the contractors, Benson & Son of Los Angeles.

To procure the nine miles of the State highway which lie in Kings county, the Board of Supervisors purchased $105,000 worth of the [illegible]000,000 which the people of the State voted, reselling the bonds at a discount of 5 per cent. In addition, the county bought two miles of right-of-way and has under construction two reinforced concrete bridges — one costing about $7000, over Cross Creek, and a smaller one which will cost about $2000, over the Lakeside irrigation canal. The total cost of the nine miles will be about [illegible] so far as Kings county is concerned. When the lateral is finished the State will maintain it. The lateral will be continued through Tulare county, crossing the main valley trunk line of the State highway system at Goshen Junction and running some miles further east to Visalia, linking together the Kings and Tulare county seats.

ON NAVY BOARD.

Andrew L. Riker has been appointed to represent the Society of Automobile Engineers on the Naval Advisory Board, which will be organized by the United States Navy Department for consultative work in connection with the further development of the navy.

Mr. Riker is one of the foremost automobile engineers in this country. He was the first president of the Society of Automobile Engineers and was prominent in the activities of the mechanical branch of the Society of Licensed Automobile Manufacturers. As an electrical engineer Mr. Riker undertook the development of electric motors for self-propelled vehicles as early as 1888. He was awarded a medal for meritorious automobile design by the French government.

Mr. Riker enjoys the further distinction of having designed and built the first American car to win the Vanderbilt Cup Race, the Locomobile, in 1908. Mr. Riker is vice-president and chief engineer of the Locomobile Company of America, and has been associated with that company more than thirteen years.

SOME RUBBER.

The Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company reports for August the biggest month's business in the history of the company. The automobile tires produced in this month laid flat, end to end, would stretch out over [illegible] miles.

Boosters for the Jackson highway have decided to send pathfinders to locate the route in that State.

COLYEAR TAKES THE REGAL LINE.

Among the changes announced on automobile row last week was the transfer of the Regal agency to the Colyear Motor Sales Company. The Colyear company has heretofore been identified principally with the motor truck end of the business and has been very successful in that direction. They also handled the [illegible] trucks and pleasure cars during the past year.

Curtis Colyear has been strongly impressed by the possibilities of the pleasure car field that he has been casting about for some time for a suitable line of medium-priced cars, and decided that the Regal line, with its three models, would come nearest meeting the popular demand. The new Regal line announced for 1916 consists of three models, a light four of twenty-seven horse power, a standard four, rated at [illegible] two horse power, and an eight-cylinder model.

All models show the new cantilever spring suspension and are equipped with the [illegible] nonstallable self-starting system.

R. A. Whitney, who has been identified with the Regal line for some time in this territory, will have supervision of sales for the Colyear Sales Company.

Glide

1916 Light Six "40"

WE NOW announce the Glide for 1916—the latest development of a long line of unusual cars. A car with no parts cheapened nor details skimped to make a price sensation. A car with the Glide character for maximum service with minimum upkeep for many years—with the Glide distinction in its style, roominess and luxury.

Where We Could Have Saved

We could have bought transmissions much cheaper than the Brown-Lipe, or a Brown-Lipe with malleable iron case. But this would have added weight. So we have an aluminum case, at a greater cost. Another differential than Brown-Lipe would have saved money. So would other universal joints than Spicer. In place of fine leather and curled hair We might have used artificial "dope" or split leather. Or excelsior in place of curled hair—at a big saving. We might have used a malleable-housed rear axle in place of pressed steel. Or straight-tooth gears instead of spiral bevel. These would have saved money but would have sacrificed strength, lightness and quietness.

Instead of 34x4 Goodyear tires—we might have equipped with other tires and saved still more. We might have used smaller tires. We might have taken an ignition and starting system other than Westinghouse—curtains other than Jiffy.

Cost Not Spared on This Beautiful Body

We could have designed a body of the common type instead of our beautiful yacht-like streamline and could have made a great saving there.

In short we could have cheapened here and there and the car would have looked the same. But our aim is to build a thoroughly good car at a medium price. In this we have been successful beyond our expectations. Write for folder.

DETAILED DESCRIPTION OF JOHNSTON'S VICTORY.

McLoughlin, Though Beaten, was Great in His Defeat and the Crowd was with Him, Hoping Against Hope that He Would be Able to Vanquish His Younger Opponent—Brilliant Gathering There.

BY KATHERINE T. VON BLON.
[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—The Californians have proven themselves invincible in tournament tennis. The climax was reached when William M. Johnston, the 20-year-old California lad, won the national championship from Maurice McLoughlin, after a tremendous struggle declared by experts to be the most thrilling witnessed in tennis history.

Never a knight of old fought more bravely nor desperately nor lost more gallantly than "Maurie" McLoughlin, as he is affectionately called here, when he finally succumbed to the superior speed, unfailing steadiness and more astute generalship of William Johnston.

The red-haired Californian is an idol in tennis circles of the East and "The Comet," by which appellation he is designated seems somehow to make everyone in the grand stand his personal friend. He has a wonderful magnetism that seems to reach out and grip you. The fans feel as if he almost belongs to them. It is a very real affection that exists here in the East for the California man and his own State could not accord him more admiration than is felt here.

While the crowd appreciated all the superior points of the winner, yet their sympathies remained with McLoughlin to the end, and they hoped against hope that their favorite might win.

As Johnston placed the final ace that won the match and decided the championship, a girl's voice quivered, her soft, red lips trembled, and her blue eyes filled with tears.

A lump rose in her sturdy escort's throat. "Maurie's beaten," she said. "Johnston's wonderful, but I just can't forgive him for beating Maurie," the girl whispered, as she wiped her eyes, not furtively, but openly, unashamed, and hundreds of other women were as visibly affected.

During the last set McLoughlin, though worn and almost exhausted, exhibited wonderful courage and pluck, for he struggled bravely in the face of almost certain defeat. After the twelfth game it was apparent that "The Comet" was weakening. He could not keep to the pace that his plunging, tearing opponent was setting. He, who had formerly been regarded as invincible, was obliged to take advantage of the slight respite between games, sitting in one of the linemen's chairs, while boys bathed his head, and refreshed him with cold water.

Johnston, while of rather frail build, remained fit and smiling to the end. It was a day of intense humidity, and the players' shirts clung to their lithe bodies, as wet as though they had just emerged from a shower.

It is easy to be great when victory crowns the brow, but McLoughlin was great in his defeat, for he rose nobly above all smaller things and "played the game" like the sportsman he proved himself. When Johnston leapt across the net to shake the hand of the man he had vanquished, the great crowd rose with one accord, and as McLoughlin threw his arm affectionately about his young conqueror's shoulders, a shout went up for the victor and also for the loser, and a lump rose in many a throat. Never was emotion tenser, or feeling at a white heat than at this sensational game.

Johnston's game is not as spectacular as McLoughlin's, but he is steady, and he plays using every faculty. Nothing escapes him, and he knew his opponent's weak points well. For instance, he was aware of McLoughlin's rather weak back-hand stroke because he put the balls in such a position that McLoughlin was obliged to take them in that wise many times. He would delay his stroke a fraction of a second until he could read McLoughlin's move and then crossed him.

The winner has a wonderfully forceful fore hand drive with remarkable pace. His backhand stroke was sure, accurate and speedy. He also had a habit of placing the ball in such a manner as to keep his opponent out of court and then placing the ball near the net. Altogether his court-craft was delightful. He constantly kept away from McLoughlin's overhead, knowing his strength there, and also at the net; keeping him deep most of the match.

Johnston's courage never failed. When he lost his first set to McLoughlin, a weaker man might have faltered, in facing such an opponent, but Johnston undaunted fought grimly on. Not once did he let down. Beneath the stress and moil of it he bore up wonderfully. He also met every crisis with rare judgment, and controlled his nerves perfectly and it was not alone through speed of stroke, eye and foot that he held the advantage over his great opponent.

To me, however, it seemed that McLoughlin was hardly up to his game, for he placed many balls inaccurately, and failed to return many that in former days he hardly would have missed. In many people's minds there was a feeling that the great Californian was not in his best form.

Many of society's most fashionable leaders graced the grandstands and a charming variety of garden and sporting clothes were seen. The new manner of wearing veils a la harem, was the most striking novelty noticeable. One was not quite certain whether one were invading the sacred precincts of an Oriental harem or not, for so many beauties passed with brilliant eyes above heavy veils, drawn just across the bridge of the nose, and fastened over the large hats, and hanging in large graceful folds down their backs. Some wore exquisite lace veils and other wore tiny face veils beneath. Also the Hungarian hussar boots were much in evidence. Some are very fetching of white leather and black patent leather, and worn with dashing sporting costumes they are quite irresistible.

There was such a plethora of enthusiasm over the singles that it seemed the doubles could not bring out the wild excitement of the singles' championship; yet in the first set, when the four were engaged in thrilling rallies, close to the net, with the ball flying so fast between the racquets, that eyes scarce could follow its winged course, men and women rose to their feet, shouting approbation and tribute to the players.

The young bantams, Johnston and Griffin, who captured the doubles crown, owe their success to a wonderfully finished game, and to a speed, remarkable in its aggression. When they added to their pace in an effort to wear down the former champions, "Maurice" and Bundy could not stand the onslaught. They switched their attack from one to the other of their opponents, with such cleverness and bewildering rapidity that one or the other were continually caught unprepared.

Starts on Non-Stop Run.

sioned to make the trip for the purpose of telling the story of the run in film. The car was christened at Universal City yesterday before the start to the border, and the motion picture corporation is taking a great interest in the attempt to shatter all motor touring records.

The touring car being used is a stock model 1916 Chandler Six, with no special equipment except extra headlights for use on the mountain grades during the long dark nights. Before the car left Los Angeles it was inspected and registered as a stock model with the Automobile Club of Southern California and again in San Diego it was inspected by Lewis Falk, officials of the Panama-California Exposition, representatives of the Auto Club and San Diego newspaper men, who pronounced it an absolute stock model.

At the start Sunday morning the self-starter and crank socket are to be sealed with te official seal of the Panama-California Exposition.

Motor enthusiasts of San Diego are expressing different opinions regarding the attempt to put the car through without a stop. Some clai mthat it cannot be done, while others insist that it will be merely a case of driving, with the possible chance of a puncture alone stalling the car and spoiling the run.

The drivers selected Goodyear cord tires for the long drive and contend that these shoes should stand the strain unless some exceptionally rough going is encountered in Oregon and Washington. All along the route Red Crown gasoline is to be supplied and put in the car while the machine is moving.

President Earl V. Armstrong and Manager Don Smith of the Chandler Motor Car Company of California are both in San Diego for the start, and Mr. Armstrong is to be at the wheel part of the time on the run between the Mexican border and Los Angeles.

Accompanying the car as official observer is Al G. Waddell of The Times. J. G. Griffin, who has been identified with the motor car industry for several years and who has just returned from a trip throughout the States of Oregon and Washington, is to act as observer also and guide through the northern country.

Following the completion of the trip the car will return to Los Angeles and form part of the Chandler exhibit at the Broadway Automobile and Flower Show.

HUGE MOUNTAIN LION POISONED.

RANCHER KILLS BEAST BY PUTTING STRYCHNINE ON DEER'S CARCASS.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SAN BERNARDINO, Sept. 25.—Fred Heap, well-known crest road rancher living near Fredalba, killed by poisoning one of the largest mountain lions ever seen in the local mountains, and it is believed that the animal is the one which has been slaughtering inside the reserve during the past seasons. Heap discovered a portion of a deer's carcass which the lion had slain and sprinkled strychnine in it. The next day he found the lion dead. It measured eight feet from tip to tip.

FORMER U.S.C. PITCHER WILL NOT JOIN THE BRAVES.

Louis Cowan, former U.S.C. pitcher wanted by the Boston Braves, has decided to postpone his entrance into professional baseball, and will reject the Stallings offer. He plans to enter U.S.C. law school and become a barrister. Too bad. The world already has too many lawyers, and not enough good pitchers.

CALIFORNIA SEES LITTLE REASON FOR SUGGESTION.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

BERKELEY (Cal.) Sept. 25.—A formal reply by the University of California to Stanford University, in which the former reiterates its refusal to accept the latter's proposition for a joint demonstration of American and Rugby football, was made public today. The letter is the result of a meeting held Wednesday night, when the California Executive Committee unanimously voted to reject Stanford's offer. The letter reads:

"A. S. Hayes, Secretary Associated Students, Stanford University:

"Dear Sir: Your letter of the 17th proposing a joint demonstration of American and Rugby football was considered and acted upon by the Executive Committee of the Associated Students of the University of California on the evening of September 22, with the result that the undersigned was instructed to write you in behalf of the commission, very respectfully declining your invitation.

"The Executive Committee knows of the existence of no issue as to the comparative merits of American and Rugby football and therefore does not see how any useful purpose can be served by the exhibition you propose.

"It was not because of opposition to the Rugby game that the University of California broke off football relations with Stanford, but solely and only because of the refusal of Stanford to adopt the rule debarring first-year students from membership on varsity teams, a rule of athletic eligibility which is enforced uniformly by colleges of high standing throughout the country. Upon your positive refusal to adopt this principle the University of California very regretfully terminated football relations with Stanford University. We sincerely trust that the time will come when Stanford will put itself in line with all other first-class American universities by adopting the freshmen ineligibility rule.

Chalmers Six-40

$1500 Seven Passenger

20% More Power

The Chalmers valve-in-head motor with overhead camshaft is as far in advance of the old types of motors as the self-starter is ahead of the starting crank.

It is generally recognized in the trade and among owners as the 20% more power motor.

THE Chalmers Six-40 is the new motor car at a lower price, equipped with this wonderful new type of motor which has made it necessary for the Chalmers Company to so tremendously increase its production for 1916.

The Season's Motor Sensation

On the hills and country roads where going is hard, this $1500 car will do all for you that it did for A. E. Walden when he established a record at the recent Uniontown Hill Climb, driving a Chalmers Six-40, that was eight seconds better than the previous record for the class.

Within the limits of touring car service its wonderful valve-in-head overhead camshaft motor will give you all the efficiency and "trigger-quick" getaway that this type gave De Palma and Resta when they averaged 90, 98 and 102 miles an hour for 300 and 500 miles at Indianapolis and Chicago.

Comfortable as a Rocking Chair

The new Chalmers Six-40 is as comfortable as a big library rocking-chair.

The leather upholstered seats are deep and luxurious; the sides of the tonneau are built on the "armchair" principle. You ride in the car—not on it.

The leg-room is ample; the rear springs are 57 inches long—longer than any other car in this class—and the result is that the car glides over rough spots with an easy motion that makes motoring a pleasure under every condition.

Made in Chalmers Shops

Chalmers cars are made in Chalmers shops under the most exacting standards. They are quality cars throughout in style, beauty, comfort and performance.

See us today. We will give you a ride over the hills and country roads in this $1500 car that will prove its 20% greater power.

SAXON SIX

A Big Touring Car For Five People

All Models Immediate Deliveries

Four New Ideas

Today there are four new ideas in motor car design:

Light weight
High speed motor
Yacht-line body
Increased riding comfort for all passengers.

All four of these modern ideas you find incorporated under the Saxon "Six."

Light weight comes from right design and right materials. Nickel steel in axles, steering gear and other vital parts is lighter and stronger than ordinary carbon steel. Vanadium steel not only makes better springs, but reduces their weight. Saxon high speed motor design gets more power with less gas out of a small motor than men used to get out of big heavy motors. Besides, this is a six-cylinder motor—with the even pull and marvelous flexibility that only a "Six" can give. Except for starting the car, gear shifting is practically unknown to Saxon "Six" owners.

The yacht-line body of Saxon "Six" exemplifies the latest motor car fashion. Its very lines suggest swift, easy motion.

Riding comfort for all five passengers is found in the exceptional roominess of tonneau and driving compartment. Long resilient cantilever springs make rough roads easy.

If you seek speed—Saxon "Six" has it. This car ran 490 miles from Los Angeles to San Francisco in 13½ hours—15 minutes faster than the "Lark," the Southern Pacific's fastest train.

If you seek power—Saxon "Six" has demonstrated it on every famous testing hill in the country. At Uniontown, Pa., it climbed the twisting three-mile mountain road in four minutes and four seconds, defeating all cars in its price class. If you seek economy—Saxon "Six" has it. 105 "Sixes" driven home from the factory by dealers covered 26,360 miles and averaged 21 miles to the gallon. Today in your touring car, of course, you want a "Six." Don't try to be content with less, when you can enjoy "Six" luxury in a well-proved Saxon for $785.

Electric starting and lighting; demountable rims; Timken axles; 112-inch wheelbase; 32x3½-inch tires, non-skid in rear.

The Form-a-Truck takes advantage of all the Ford good qualities and adds to them a "rear end" equipment that will handle "dead weight" loads of one ton and over.

A Ford engine and transmission, with a properly designed "rear end," are the striking features of the "Form-a-Truck." So ingeniously and scientifically are the changes made that it actually costs less to operate than a Ford delivery car, while the added carrying capacity will cut your hauling expenses in half.

CHICAGO AGAIN IN LAST PLACE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, Sept. 25.—Jim Lavender, acting as relief pitcher, was wild and the league leaders won out, 5 to 4, in the eleventh inning, making it four out of five for the series. The locals came from behind and tied the count in the ninth inning with McCarthy's homer. Demaree settled down after this assault and held Chicago. Today's defeat puts Chicago in last place again. OWNERS SHOULD HAVE OWN OIL.

C. C. Carter of Austin, Bryant & Carter, refining agents and distributors for the A.B.C. brand of oils and greases, is very emphatic in his advice to motorists to specify some brand of oil when they are ordering and not just order "some oil."

"So many people, when they are buying oil, drive up to some station or garage and say 'give me a quart of oil' and in doing this they make a very grave mistake because there are some unscrupulous dealers who will take advantage of this and give them a very inferior grade of oil which in many cases is an oil that was never meant to lubricate the motor of an automobile, which, of course, results in motor trouble, which we all want to avoid."

"There are a number of good motor oils and every owner would do well to specify some one of these oils when he is buying and by doing so will invariably get, or at least be more apt to get what he orders or be told the leading brand of oil carried in case the dealer has not the one you ask for."

WIN GAME IN EIGHTH.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BOSTON, Sept. 25.—It was not until the eighth inning that the Boston Red Sox, 3 to 2 victors over St. Louis today, scored the tieing and winning runs. Then two scratch hits, a sacrifice, two errors by the St. Louis catcher, gave Boston two runs. Severeid was ordered from the game for arguments.

Boston held St. Louis to four hits, one of which, a double by Lavan, turned two previous passes into runs in the sixth inning. Score:

SERAPHS DROP ANOTHER ONE.

SAMMY BEER HOLDS THEM IN CHECK.

Harper Bangs One Over the Fence and that is the Only Score that Comes to the Dillonites—Brant is Hit Hard and Often, but the Oaks Only Get Three Runs.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 25.—With never a falter, the Oaks continue to pile up games on the Angels. It was a case today of overcoming a one-run lead the Angels acquired in the fore part of the game and maintained until the half-way station had been passed, but a little handicap of that sort didn't bother the boys from across the bay. When it came time to move they acted and in consequence cinched the series by a 3-to-1 score.

Considering the way the Oaks banged the ball, the run column was surprisingly small. They banged Brant from the Texas League for thirteen hits, two of these being double-sackers by Hosp, and they passed up numerous chances to put their runs clear around the charmed circle.

Even in their last scoring inning—the seventh—it took four hits to manufacture one run and one of those four was a double.

Sammy Beer, aside from the right-field homer by Harper that came in the second, was fairly free from trouble, till he struck the ninth. Then he faced the situation of a man on third and another on first with nobody out, but a double play, with Terry striking out and Harper thrown out at second, cleared the skies.

Harper, first up in the second, lifted the ball over the right-field fence, and landed the one run that came to Los Angeles during the afternoon.

The sixth saw the Oaks start to the front. With one down, Johnston beat out a bunt to the pitcher, stole second and was wild pitched to third. Ness drew a walk and Gardner's sacrifice fly to right saw the score tied as Johnston crossed over. Boles failed to stop the return throw and Gardner and Ness moved up. Elliott hit to center and Jack came in from third.

And here's the story of one run on three singles and a double. It happened in the seventh inning. Beer rattled the fence boards with a single, but Stow fouled out to Boles and Sammy was doubled out at first. Hosp connected for his second two-bagger of the afternoon and Middleton drove him in with a bounder that dodged the waiting hands of Koerner at first and rolled into right. Johnston singled, but the double steal scheme went wrong and Middleton found himself out at the plate. The score:

Bees Sting Twice.

look to foreign countries for part of our supply, for the fans certainly do eat to beat the band for the last month of the season. In fact, there is reason to suspect that a lot of them go to the park solely to feed their faces.

A MISTAKE.

Not only are the Bees putting a severe crimp in the Tigers, but the way things are going they will soon be hot on the tail of the Angels. On second thought it looks like we made a mistake when we let Salt Lake into the league. They act too rough.

Buddy Ryan had a cruel day with the bat. In the first game he pickled the ball for two singles and a triple, and repeated in the second. He was what might be termed instrumental in winning both games, although it was Joe Gedeon's bat that put the finishing touches on the first affair and Wilhoit's muff of Joe's terrible liner that decided the second issue.

FIRST GAME.

Art Fromme hooked up with Jack Killilay in the frontispiece, and was unfortunate in finding J. K. at his best. Against Killilay, the Tigers could do nothing but wander around in the jungle of batting discontent and not get any place. Four hits, widely separated, showed Jack to be in superb form. Fromme was found for eight, and four of them in the fatal sixth. He was taken out in the eighth to make room for a pinch-hitter. This arrangement suited him, as he had a pressing engagement to hunt doves up in the valley before dark. Rhino worked the last inning, and the human vultures up in the press box sang a song to the effect that he is the best little pitcher in the world. This refrain spread to the bleachers, and Rhino all at once found himself the center of song and admiration.

Ryan flamed forth with a triple in the fourth, only to expire at third. He had previously singled in the second, without getting anywhere much. The real trouble broke out in the sixth. Quinlan opened this noisy and noisome frame with a roaring smash over Kane. Johnny made a noble effort, but could do no more than knock down the drive, which went for a double. Shinn bunted to Rader, and the Wildcat overthrew first, Quinlan scoring from second. Shinn had the play beaten at that. Brief flied to right. Ryan registered his third hit, a single that put Shinn on third, and took second on the heave to that base. Gedeon put both of them across with a safety between third and short. Orr and Hallinan grounded to Purtell. Just that one splash, and it was all over. The Bees ceased to buzz after that, and only once did the Tigers get a runner as far as third. That was Fromme, who doubled, and Art isn't much of a runner at that.

SECOND GAME.

Judge Munsell, the guy with the tangled fingers, was opposed to Charles Chech in the closing combat. Chech's delivery was handled by Dad Meak, the hustling catcher secured from the Texas League. This is the first time that Dad has been seen behind the bat here since joining the Tigers. Dad looks about the same as of yore, having grown no extra hair in the interim, or on his head.

Hits by Rader and Kane placed runners on first and third with one out in the first. All came to naught, when the Wildcat was trapped on a squeeze that missed fire.

Ryan tripled in the fourth with two out, the direction of the drive and the circumstances under which it was made being identical with those in the first game. And, as in the first, he croaked at third. And there was another striking analogy between the two pastimes, Quinlan, as he had done an hour before, opened the sixth with a double. After two men had been retired, he scored on Ryan's single.

In the second section of the sixth, Vernon tied it on Kane's double and a single by Wilhoit. Johnny was also present with two singles in the earlier innings.

The finish came in the eighth. Ryan singled with two down, and stole second. Gedeon, who had made the telling smash in the opening combat, came through with a hard line drive to right. Wilhoit failed to freeze the pill, and Buddy bounced along with the winning ace. Orr grounded out.

After two men had been derailed in the home half of the eighth, Munsell became woozy and passed Bayless and Kane. Wilhoit, up to rectify matters, smote viciously toward right. Brief scooped the pill. Seeing there was only a remote chance to get Wilhoit at first, he whirled and threw to Orr, forcing Kane at second by a short whisker. It is not very often that you see the third out made at second base on an assist by the first sacker, and the play denotes a high degree of intelligence or instinct on the part of Mr. Brief. JUDGE TELLS THE REASON.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PORTLAND (Or.) Sept. 25.—"Probably one of the reasons why the Portland team is at the bottom of the league," remarked Municipal Judge Stevenson today, as he forfeited $5 bail each on William Stumpf, second baseman, and Charles Ward, shortstop, of the Portland Coast League club, when they failed to answer to "after hour" charges.

Stumpf and Ward were found loafing along West Park and Washington streets about 2 o'clock this morning by Patrolman Rekdahl. The policeman asked them their reason for being on the street at that hour, and they replied by getting on either side of Rekdahl and jostling him, according to his statement in court this morning.

Later the policeman said the ball players dared him to bring them to jail and threatened to "get" his job. The officer accepted the chance, and took them to jail, where they were locked up until they furnished bail of $5. Their nonappearance in court forfeited this bail.

CALIFORNIA SPEED WINS.

Bears Show Their Heels to Club Heroes.

Olympics Twice Buck Ball to the Line.

Bear Freshmen Fail to Act as Team.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

BERKELEY, Sept. 25.—A battered, bruised varsity hobbled down to the training quarters after the game today, happy that a 18-2 score had been made against the Olympic Club. However, the glee was of a condensed variety, almost compressed, for during the whole last half of the game the collegians experienced all the sensations of one who tries to stop a steam roller, and fails.

An Englishman would have said that the first half of the game was "bloomin' good rugby," an American would have called the last half a "smear," marked by terrific line bucks.

OPEN STUFF.

All comers should have been satisfied with today's performance, for it was an exhibition of two extreme types of the American game. Open running, rugby passing and an abundance of "forwards," jerked spectators, full of yells and peanuts, to their feet to gasp at the plays. The second half held them down, their stomachs heavy. There was some gasping, too, but it was sympathetic gasping, not spontaneous. It came when the lines smashed, and might vulgarly be termed grunting.

This was a gasp and grunt game, breathless in the first case and breathful in the latter.

But regardless of how the spectators vocalized their feelings, the football displayed was of a higher order than that seen in the first Olympic Club game two weeks ago. Interference on the part of the varsity has improved. The scoring each time resulted from clever interference, which broke a hole in the line for a fast runner. Perhaps faster club players might have caught the fleet California players, for twice the score was the result of a race down the field.

VERY HEAVY.

But if the clubmen could not compare on a basis of speed, they could on the basis of weight. Weight was what brought them to the very 3-yard line, once in each of two periods, after jamming their way a few yards at a time from center. Luck was against the winged "O" players in the third quarter. The gun was fired just as the line formed, which would have brought them a touchdown. In the last quarter, the California defense stopped them on the last down about a yard short of the requirement and the ball changed hands.

No tale of this game would be complete without mention of Snook, the little John of the Olympic Club who cavorts at fullback. His weight is close to 240 pounds and he is an ell around the waist. His length was the measure of Olympic Club gains.

Graf, right half, brought the first touchdown. He received the ball from Maguire on a line buck, tore through the hole which Lockhart and Russell opened, and raced sixty yards for the goal. Gianelli missed the posts and six points were scored. The balance of the quarter passed off without undue excitement, the Olympic Club making gains whenever they could get the ball, and losing on California's fast field work.

ANOTHER.

The shift at second quarter gave the California quarter full time to think up his trick play, which turned to be a fake kick formation, with a Rugby pass, Smith to Gianelli. Here again the interference swept away the red shirt men. Gianelli tumbled through the hole and out-ran his opponents for sixty yards. Hazeltine carried the ball over from the scrimmage. The kick failed. Score, 12-0.

Rugby passing was noticeable in this half. Gianelli and Graf gained twenty yards on a perfect end pass. Another pass came close to bringing the third touchdown, but the quarter ended before a buck could be made.

The second half is notable for the appearance of Snook, heavyweight full. His avoirdupois gave courage to the club and they proceeded to buck the ball from the forty-yard line to within a foot of goal. The gun prevented a score.

SMASHING.

The last quarter saw the same tactics. Line smashes won the way for the club and they at length forced a touch back by the varsity, thus scoring their two points.

A rally by the varsity lost the club their required gain and the ball came from their possession.

During all of the second half, the varsity was on the defensive, being unable to withstand the weight of the club team, but the good work in the first half shows a new grasp of the game that will come out better in matches to come.

The Nationals scored 13 to 0 against the best freshman line-up. Trick plays, coupled with excellent team work, made the deed easy. The Nationals might better have been matched with the varsity, as they have more experience than any of the local teams.

Moses, half-back, and Sappington, quarter, brought most of the freshmen gains. Maguire, full, played steadily, but the individual ability of the first-year men was not of much avail with a team which has played the old game for years.

The freshmen fought, but they were outclassed.

PENN DEFEATS WEST VIRGINIA.

FORWARD PASS RESULTS IN TOUCHDOWN; ONLY SCORE OF DAY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 25.—A touchdown following a forward pass gave the University of Pennsylvania a victory over West Virginia University today in the first football game of the season on Franklin Field by the score of 7 to 0.

The weather was warm and in consequence the game was slow. Neither team tried any new plays.

The Tulsa Automobile Association has been reorganized and made an active auxiliary of the Tulsa Chamber of Commerce. There are 2500 motorcar owners in the county in which Tulsa is located, many of whom are joining the association.

Clubmen are Victors.

est buck through their line was for seven yards.

They threw themselves in the way of interference and spilled. They dumped men that white boys of the same size and age would have run from.

The smashing L.A.A.C. attack was so strong that eight of the Indians went down before it and had to be carried off the field. Yet substitutes went in and seemed to play as well defensively.

CLEAN GAME.

The Indians were only penalized once during the game. That was when a back started before the ball. But they never held once, nor did one trick that was the least off color. Their football was straight, clean and game. They have learned how to play clean football, if they are not on to the fine points of it.

The clubmen played the best football that they have shown since they were organized two years ago. The linemen worked together. The backs ran in bunched interference. When they failed to gain around the ends, they tried piercing the line. When the Indians finally drew in and shut up all the holes, Neighbors heaved the forward passes that won the game. On the defensive, they simply smeared Sherman. The little Braves were shattered and tossed about in confusion.

PROCESSION.

The first quarter the ball was in the Indians' territory most of the time. Once the clubmen started a line-bucking procession that looked like the Pomona team in action. But a holding penalty of fifteen yards stopped it. An attempt was made at a place kick, but it fell short. The Indians did not make yards once that quarter. Two of them were carried off the field.

The second quarter opened with the ball on Sherman's twenty-yard line. An L.A.A.C. touchdown seemed inevitable, but Quarter Traverner twice dropped the ball. Then Sherman made its downs for the first time. Clark, the fullback, got away for a twelve-yard run on a fake on the fourth down. It was a piece of nervy work, for the ball was on Sherman's twenty-yard line.

The Indians tried to repeat the trick again, But Clark failed by half a yard. Then came the forward pass of Neighbors to Tuttle and the first L.A.A.C. score.

IN THE CENTER.

The half ended in the middle of the field. Sid was trying forward passes on every excuse. But the Indians were knocking them down. Once Attache, the sub quarter, intercepted one.

There was nothing remarkable in the third quarter but the long forward pass to Williams that resulted in the last touchdown, except the grit of the Indians. They played more as a team in the second half. They started faster, played faster. Condition was telling on the clubmen and the Indians were getting fresher and had more confidence. The clubmen were beginning to call for time and be carried to the sidelines.

The last quarter was the only one in which Sherman had an advantage. For a time, with forward passes, they threatened the L.A.A.C. goal. Clarke heaved one to Nelson that put the ball on the L.A.A.C. 25-yard line. Clarke tried to place kick, but the clubmen simply sifted through the Indian line and sat down hard on Mr. Clarke before he could get the ball off the ground.

THE OLD PLACE.

The game ended with the ball in Sherman territory again and the club backs piercing the Indian line.

It was simply a case of children trying to hold their own with men, and doing it after a fashion. It was sheer pluck on Sherman's part, hard, low tackling, and fight that held the clubmen at all.

The star of the Indian team is easily Clarke, the fullback. He called the signals, got away his punts in clean, cool style and gained whatever yardage the Indians made. There is another chunky little Indian half by the name of Jones that runs along the ground and will some day be a sensation. He played a great defensive game today.

There were no stars on the club team, unless they were Tuttle and Williams. Williams hits the line all doubled up like a jack-knife. Meadows looked good for the short time he was in, but he hurt his knee.

A Tied Score.

HOLLYWOOD HIGH PLAYS WELL, BUT FAILS TO WIN.

HOLLYWOOD High School opened the prep football season in the South yesterday, playing the Hollywood Alumni team, the contest ending in a tie, 0 to 0.

Due to the fact that it was the first game of the season, the contest was cut down to ten-minute quarters so as not to work the players too hard from the start.

Considering that it was the first American game any of the High School lads ever played, they put up a fairly good showing against heavier and more experienced players.

The work of C. Doyle at full-back and Ralphs at center for the High School was the sensation of the game. Time after time Ralphs broke up the rushes started by the Alumni. Doyle at full-back was the wit and speed of the Hollywood backfield. During the second quarter he got the ball on his 20-yard line and by fast and clever dodging he went through the Alumni team to their 15-yard line before he was downed by Mahoney.

During the first half of play the Alumni had the best of the argument, and, with the exception of the one run by Doyle, they made steady gains on their younger opponents.

During the latter part of the game Coach Moody sent in a number of fresh players and succeeded in rushing the ball to the Alumni 5-yard line. In an attempt by the Alumni full-back to punt to safety, the ball was stopped by Ralphs and bounded back over the Alumni goal line. One of the Alumni fell on it, saving a score. Just before the final whistle blew, the ball was punted to the middle of the field.

STANFORD TOO GOOD FOR 'EM.

FRESHMEN ALSO PUT UP FINE EXHIBITION.

Oakland Club Comes to the Farm with Only Half a Team and Gaps are Made up from the Stanford Substitutes—Los Angeles Boys are Heroes in Freshman Game.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PALO ALTO, Sept. 25.—In a game, uninteresting because of its onesidedness but nevertheless replete with spectacular and clever Rugby, the Stanford varsity put over an 18-0 defeat on the Oakland Titans, who came to "farm" with only half a team, necessitating plugging the holes with Cardinal second-string players.

Coach Brown sprung another surprise on the dopesters when he filled the doubtful second five position by changing Joe Urban from wing.

This produced the speediest backfield yet seen on the Cardinal turf this fall. All 'round ability of extraordinary quality for this time of season was shown by the freshman Rugby aspirants today when they trounced Jimmy Thoburn's speedy little ruggers from Oakland Tech to the tune of 14-0.

The play of the babies is wonderfully improved in teamwork and abounds in fast, accurate dribbling and snappy passing rushes in which fake passes, clever cross-kicks, dodging runs and all the play indicative of skill and Rugby knowledge shows prominently.

Smith and Boydston of Los Angeles do the backfield starring.

THREE HARVARD ELEVENS IN GAME.

COLBY MARCHES THROUGH THIRD TEAM FOR TOUCHDOWN.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CAMBRIDGE (Mass.) Sept. 25.—After the first and second Harvard elevens had beaten Colby decisively in the initial game of the season in the stadium today, the tired Maine players marched fifty-eight yards through the third crimson string for a touchdown. The final score was, Harvard, 39; Colby, 6.

The Colby sweep down the field was at the opening of the fourth period and was accomplished in ten rushes. Harvard reinforcements arrived too late to stop the score.

Mahan easily was the star, both in rushing and kicking, and apparently had no substitute in the latter department.

PRINCETON BEATS GEORGETOWN, 13-0.

TIGERS' OPPONENTS WEAK IN FUNDAMENTALS OF GAME.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PRINCETON (N. J.) Sept. 25.—Princeton's eleven took advantage of Georgetown's weakness in fundamentals this afternoon and defeated the visitors, 13 to 0, in the first football game of the season here. The weather was warm for football.

GRAND CIRCUIT HAS MANY HEATS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

COLUMBUS (O.) Sept. 25.—From the unfinished 2:18 pace of Friday and two overnight races there came this afternoon eleven heats on the sixth program of Columbus' Grand Circuit racing. Goldie C. took the 2:18 pace. Thistle Patch lost two chances by breaks inside the distance mark. Red Mike, a heavily-backed second choice, made a break in today's first heat and was shut out.

Nata Prime took the special trot in straight heats, but the pacing event was prolonged through five heats.

CARS TO SUIT EACH OWNER.

F. E. Moskovics, commercial manager of Nordyke & Marmon Co., has returned to the factory at Indianapolis from an extended visit to the Pacific Coast, during which time he visited the leading cities in California, Oregon, Washington and also made calls at Denver, Salt Lake City, Kansas City and Omaha.

"I was surprised at the details of engineering knowledge of motor-car construction shown by the people of California," said Mr. Moskovics. "This was especially true in Southern California and shows out in Los Angeles very strongly in the form of rebuilt cars. It is remarkable the number of cars that have been built over by Los Angeles automobile enthusiasts into low-hung racing-type cars. One has only to spend a few minutes on any prominent street to see a lot of unfamiliar types, and to learn by close inspection that they are really well-known cars made over to suit the owners' whims."

A Big Car

118-inch Wheelbase

$1195 FULLY EQUIPPED

This Powerful Engine Pays For Itself In Lengthening Its Own Life

Lack of adequate power costs more than just the discomfort to the driver when it fails him on hills and in tight places.

If a motor hasn't the power to do things easily it strains itself every time it is called on for hard duty even if it does just "get by"—like a weak heart on a long flight of steps. This straining is the hardest kind of wear on a motor. It hastens depreciation.

The 1916
MOON
Six-Thirty

has all the power the car's weight and carrying capacity can demand under any normal motoring conditions—and then some.

We could sell the car for less money if the power plant weren't so good, but you'd pay more than the difference in quick depreciation and driving satisfaction. Continental-Moon 30 H. P. six-cylinder motor—3¼ x 4½, cast en bloc with new type removable cylinder heads.

Other Features:

118-inch wheelbase. New convex-side tumble-home body design. Stewart patent vacuum gasoline feed system—tank in rear, with gauge. Genuine tan Spanish leather upholstery. Silk mohair one-man type top.

Fully equipped, including 1916 Delco starting, lighting and ignition system with new switch having ammeter on dash—$1195.

This notable achievement in body design of last season is an EXCLUSIVE Kissel feature, and is offered to you this season with distinctive improvements in models and construction.

The Kissel ALL-YEAR Car met for the first time and satisfied completely the demand for the continuous service of one body. Its interchangeable Top (Sedan or Coupe) can be readily attached or detached by two inexpert men in less than a half-hour.

The ALL-YEAR Car gives you the utmost in versatility and practicability; if it's chilly or dusty, or foggy or blustery, put on the Detachable Top; if it's warm and pleasant and balmy, and breezes on the brow are what you're after, leave it off.

KISSELKAR
"Every Inch a Car"

There are two top models that come with the ALL-YEAR Car—a Coupe Top for the roadster bodies and a Sedan Top for the touring bodies, each a marvel of expert and careful construction.

You can safely dismiss the possible impression that these tops are makeshifts, for they are not set ON, but set IN the bodies, with absolutely no evidence that they are anything but an integral part of the car as a whole.

The ALL-YEAR Car, like all the KisselKar models, is in no sense an "assembled" car, but is built, part for part, right in the Kissel factory. Utility is its outstanding feature; we would welcome a thorough investigation on your part.

The complete Kisselkar line, with a wide range of models, including the new 32-Four at $1050, is now ready for inspection; also the Kissel Trucks, from the 1000-lb. capacity model to the 6-ton capacity.

The ALL-YEAR Car models range in price from the Roadster Coupe of the 32-Four at $1450 to the 7-passenger Sedan of the 42-Six at $2100.
All prices f. o. b. factory.

There were many reasons why Tommy and his friends held Uncle Dick in such high esteem, but the chief one was his versatility.

Now that school was speeding up to high gear, he was smoothing the wrinkles out of wobbly Latin quotations with the same ease he had shown in straightening up a tangled fish line in camp. Then, when Friday afternoon came around, he was ready to talk sport. The boys were still having lots of fun with the rowing machine. At the same time they were in a receptive mood toward any new contrivance that might happen along.

"Wouldn't it be great," said Ed Smith as they slowed up from an exercise spin in the dry land racing shell, "if we could hook up that leg o' mutton sail we had on the dory and go cruising up the avenue?"

"I'm not so sure but what you could do something like that," remarked Uncle Dick as he watched the boys spurting with the oars.

"We had a dry land yacht that would be just the thing for sailing on asphalt pavement. That was one time we got beat at our own game," he added.

"Tommy's Uncle Bob invented the 'scooter,' as we call it, the year they built the first boardwalk along the Cedar Point beach. After the hotel guests had left for the season, we boys used the boardwalk for all sorts of sports, running races and that sort of thing. Well, Uncle Bob had a skate-sail that he had made the winter before, and it occurred to him to use wheels instead of skates, and there you are.

"Here's a drawing showing just how to make it. We didn't have roller skates in those days, so we made the wheels of solid wood and mounted one on each end of a barrel stave. Instead of a roller skate for the right foot we attached similar wheels to another stave and strapped it on the same as a skate.

"Ted Wilkins was the next one to rig up a sail, and he and Uncle Bob had a race on the boardwalk. That started the fun in earnest. The Cedar Pointers copied the idea and after that there were races nearly every day.

"Then they got up a regatta for Saturday afternoon, the first prize being for a five dollar gold piece. A few days before the race Doc Wise drove over to our place and cut out a new sail for Uncle Bob. He was an expert yacht sailor and gave Bob a lot of tips on how to manage the new rig. Then he circulated around town and made a few wagers.

"On Saturday afternoon the whole village turned out to see the race. It was almost like a circus day. There were six entries in the race, among them being Jim Dugan. We kept our eyes on Jim, as there were no tricks in sailing a boat that he didn't know, nor a chance too desperate for him to take. When the entrants got lined up for the start we noticed that Dugan had what looked like a furled topsail in stops attached to his boom. But before we could figure out what it was they were off to a flying start.

"There was a bend in the boardwalk about a hundred yards from the end, then it was a mile and half straight away. As they made the turn Uncle Bob was well in the lead, with Dugan, who was fussing with his sail, bringing up the rear. But as they turned into the straight stretch of boardwalk it was another story. There the wind was right behind them and we saw what Jim's game was. He broke out a spinnaker, which looked like the head sail of a cup defender. I don't think anybody in the race could have managed it but Jim, and he had all he could do to keep hold of the spars. Well, he sailed through the bunch as if they were anchored and won by a half a mile. Although Doc Wise lost several wagers, he was a good sport all right, and was the first to congratulate Jim on his victory."

"I see you didn't show us how to make the spinnaker on your drawing," said Tommy as the story was finished.

"No, it's too dangerous to try in a street. You will find one sail will give you plenty to do if there is any breeze."

The next day, when they got their first sail finished, they found Uncle Dick was right, as it required all their skill to keep on even keel, as they tried it in turn. To tack, or sail on a beam wind takes some knowledge of the art of sailing a catboat, although a land lubber can have a lot of fun running before the wind with the contraption.

COMMON SENSE in the HOME
EDITED by MARION HARLAND

SOUPS SAVORY AND SWEET.

THE old story, which I am sure I have told to you before on several occasions, constantly recurs to me of the Frenchman traveling in Great Britain who lamented: "Thirty-seven religions have I found in England and but one gravy!"

I wonder what he would have said after a tour of the average homes of the United States!

Perhaps we have more sauces than he discovered among the English. Mint sauce most of us take for granted with roast lamb; tomato sauce has its place on many tables; drawn butter is tolerably familiar to the majority. Yet I have known numerous homes in which the only sauce or gravy which ever appeared was that made from the dripping from a roast of meat and thickened with unbrowned flour—a thin, pale compound which some persons of incomprehensible taste chose to use to deluge mashed potatoes.

Of course I am not counting the gravy which is made with fricasseed chicken and other stews. This can hardly be reckoned a sauce, since usually it is only the liquor in which the meat was cooked with such seasoning as this demanded and once in a while a trifle of thickening.

Sauces as they may be compounded by persons who take the pains to learn the few and simple rudiments of their preparation and who appreciate the value of such adjuncts in rendering a plain meal appetizing are not sufficiently familiar to American housekeepers. The general cook or maid of all work shrinks from them as from something mysterious and asserts that they have no place in what she calls plain cooking.

Yet they are easily made and valuable as a means of using left-overs and imparting a tempting flavor to simple foods. Those for which I give directions below are not hard to learn nor are they expensive. Where butter is advocated good dripping may be substituted, and chicken fat is in many cases even better than butter. The dripping from roast beef, veal, etc., should always be saved and clarified and will save many a penny to the woman who has to watch her expenses closely. The cost of "plain roast and broiled" is greater than that of the less choice cuts of meat, and with the addition of a sauce the latter are as savory as the high priced pieces.

In addition to the savory sauces I give a few directions for sauces for puddings and other sweet dishes. Variety is agreeable here also, and a "run" on a hard sauce of sugar and butter, which seems to limit the abilities of many plain cooks, partakes of monotony. A little change will now and then be welcome.

BROWN GRAVY.

If I put brown gravy first it is because of the possibilities of the gravy served with roast and boiled meat and the fact that these are so seldom understood by even good housekeepers.

To make this in the simplest fashion when you have a roast of beef the meat should be transferred to a hot plate and most of the fat left in the pan poured off into a small bowl or dish. Only about a tablespoonful should remain in the pan, and to this must be added a heaping tablespoon of browned flour. Never use the plain white flour; it makes a most unattractive gravy and the taste of it is as unpleasing as the appearance.

To brown the flour several tablespoonfuls should be put in a shallow tin and this set in the oven for a few minutes, stirring the flour up from time to time that it may only brown and not scorch. It should never reach the latter stage or it will be bitter.

Set the baking pan with the fat and the flour on top of the range and stir them until they bubble. Have ready half a pint of boiling water and mix this with the bubbling paste, stirring until the sauce is thick and smooth. Season with salt, pepper, and onion juice or chili sauce or Worcestershire or a little good catsup. Kitchen bouquet is excellent, since it not only seasons the gravy but gives it a brown tone. Should the gravy be pale despite use of the browned flour put in a few drops of caramel.

To prepare the caramel put half a cup of granulated sugar into a small saucepan and let it melt and color until almost black. To this add a couple of tablespoons of boiling water, taking pains not to be scalded with the spattering which will ensue. Stir until the mixture is smooth and take from the fire. Keep in a wide mouthed bottle and add cautiously to the gravy, since you wish only enough to tint and not to flavor.

Always bear in mind that there must be no guesswork in making sauces if you wish to win a good result. The proportions are invariable—one tablespoon each of butter or oil or dripping or other fat and of flour to half a pint of fluid. It will not do to pour your hot water at random from the kettle, as is the way of the inexact cook. Sometimes your result may be good, but you are quite as likely to have failure as success. The only variation from this hard and fixed rule is when you double the quantity of fat for the purpose of making the sauce richer.

PLAIN WHITE SAUCE.

Put together your tablespoon of butter and your rounded tablespoon of flour—as much of it above the brim of the spoon as there is below—in a clean saucepan over the fire. Or you may melt the butter in the saucepan first and then stir in the flour. In any event let them be thoroughly blended and bubbling before you pour in your measured half pint of milk. If you are in a hurry you may have the milk hot, but whether hot or cold, stir the sauce without interruption until it is thick and smooth. The stage when the sauce is heavy enough to coat or mask the back of the bowl of the spoon is quickly reached. When it comes to a boil let it cook for one minute. Longer cookery makes it too thick. It should be about the consistency of double cream and if the mixing and stirring have both been conscientiously done there is no reason why the sauce should be lumpy or pasty.

Should the sauce have to stand for a while before using keep it hot in boiling water and if it happens to thicken too much thin it with a little boiling milk.

CREAM SAUCE.

This is made with precisely the same proportions as the white sauce, but cream is used instead of milk. For a sauce that will stand in richness between a white and a cream sauce the liquid may be half milk and half cream, or an excellent substitute may be managed by doubling the quantity of butter and using milk instead of cream.

It is a safe precaution to put a pinch of baking soda in the milk or cream when cooking it for sauce or for anything else. This reduces the chance of its curdling.

BUTTER SAUCE OR DRAWN BUTTER

For this the regulation proportions of a tablespoon each of butter and flour are cooked together until they bubble and a half pint of boiling water is then poured upon them and the sauce stirred until smooth and thick, and seasoned with pepper, salt, and onion juice, or other desired seasoning.

SAVORY BUTTER SAUCE.

Make as directed in the preceding recipe and add to the sauce ten drops of onion juice, a teaspoon of finely chopped pickles, and a pinch of mustard wet to a paste with a little vinegar. To make the sauce richer a beaten egg may be carefully stirred into the sauce at the last and the vessel taken from the fire after one minute.

CAPER SAUCE.

Make a butter sauce as directed and put with it at the least a tablespoon of capers. This is good to serve with boiled mutton and is also nice for boiled fish.

EGG SAUCE.

Make a pint of white sauce; have ready a hard boiled egg, chopped fine, stir it into the sauce; season to taste with salt and pepper. Good for baked or boiled or broiled fish.

ONION OR SOUBISE SAUCE.

To half a pint of white sauce add two medium sized onions which have been boiled soft and then chopped. Stir well, add salt and pepper to taste.

TOMATO SAUCE.

Drain half a pint of the liquor from stewed tomatoes, either canned or fresh, put it over the fire with a slice of onion and simmer fifteen minutes; take out the onion and pour the liquor upon a tablespoon each of butter and flour which have been cooked together until they bubble. Stir to smooth thickness, season with salt and pepper and serve. This is good to pour over poached or hard boiled or chopped eggs, to serve with fish or veal or lamb or mutton or hamburg steak.

BROWN SAUCE.

Cook together a tablespoon each of butter and of browned flour, letting them cook until the color begins to darken; pour upon them half a pint of clear hot stock or consommé. Stir until thick, and if a darker tint is required add a few drops of caramel or of kitchen bouquet as well as salt and pepper.

MINT SAUCE.

Chop fine three tablespoons of fresh mint; bruise this with three tablespoons of granulated sugar; pour upon them four tablespoons of vinegar, stir until the sugar is dissolved; let all stand together for a few minutes and serve cold.

JELLY SAUCE FOR PUDDINGS.

Heat together in a saucepan a heaping tablespoon of butter, half a glass of currant or other tart jelly, and a tablespoon of sugar and stir until dissolved and blended. When smooth put in a teaspoon of corn starch moistened to a paste with the juice of a lemon. Cook for two minutes and keep hot over boiling water until needed. If wine is used put in a glass of sherry just before serving.

FRUIT JUICE PUDDING SAUCE.

Squeeze the juice from any kind of fruit and set it aside. Cream a tablespoon of butter and a cup of sugar together until they are creamy, beat in the fruit juice and set on ice until needed.

CRUSHED FRUIT SAUCE.

Cream together two tablespoons of butter and one cup of powdered sugar, put the mixture over the fire and stir until it boils, adding to it at this stage a tablespoon of arrowroot wet to a paste in cold water. Cook two minutes longer and stir in a cup of any kind of crushed or chopped fruit, fresh or canned. Leave the sauce on the fire just long enough to become hot through and serve.

MILK PUDDING SAUCE.

Cream a tablespoon of butter and a cup of sugar; add to them two eggs beaten stiff and whip all well. Wet a teaspoon of corn starch in a little cold milk and add this with the sauce along with a flavoring of nutmeg or cinnamon. Beat in four tablespoons of boiling milk, a little at a time, set the vessel containing the sauce in a kettle of boiling water and cook for five minutes, stirring constantly. Do not let the sauce come to a boil.

MARION HARLAND'S HELPING HAND.

For Girl and Boy.

"I HAVE been reading the Helping Hand and I am writing to say that I would appreciate embroidery, small pieces of ribbon suitable for a little girl's hair, and scraps of cloth which would serve for a boy's rompers, as well as any small bits of lace. Now, I don't expect all of these, but maybe some one will have one and not the other. I live out in the country and I do get lonely. Of course, I have my children, but that doesn't take all the time during the long, hot summer days.

"MRS. F. D."

I am sure that not only will the pieces this correspondent asks for be sent her but that also some one will write to her and help to cheer the loneliness, although the long summer days are about over. Even with children one yearns now and then to get in touch with some other women and to exchange a few experiences and sympathies. I shall hold the address of Mrs. F. D. and hope to receive calls for it.

Offers Some Magazines.

"Some time ago I wrote asking you for some of the reading matter offered through the Corner. I have been slow in writing again, but will you allow me to return thanks through the Helping Hand at this late date for your kindness in putting me in touch with the friends who have so generously supplied me with so much good reading? One friend sent me a year of one magazine, and how we have enjoyed it! The giver is a lawyer, and he has bestowed upon my husband some valuable information we needed. Another friend and her daughter have been generous, and I wrote and thanked them some time ago. I was able to call on them also and had a lovely visit. Now we have read most of these magazines, and they are in good clean shape. I want to offer some of them again through the Corner to some one who, like myself, loves good reading and is unable to purchase it. I will gladly furnish these magazines to any one asking for them if you can give me the addresses of such friends. I will also try to pay the express charges, as they were so generously paid for when they were sent to me in the first place. I often see a request for some reading matter which I shall be glad to fill. I have a request of my own to make. Can some of the readers of the Corner supply me with the words to these songs: 'Down Where the Cotton Blossoms grow' and 'Hello, Central! Give me Heaven'? I have forgotten some of the words. The music I know but should be glad to get the words. I enjoy the Helping Hand Corner so much that I wish I were able to do more, but financial conditions prohibit.

"MRS. J. C."

Not all of the best and most acceptable help comes from those of unlimited means. The kindly word, the offer of small aids, often mean more than the gifts which money can buy. The magazines which Mrs. J. C. offers to pass on will undoubtedly bring enjoyment to others, as they have to her, and I shall be glad to give her address. Her generous appreciation of what has been done for her and her eagerness to share with others are an example to all of us. Who can supply the words of the songs Mrs. J. C. wishes? There are sure to be responses to her desire, and I hope they may be prompt. I will send her address on demand.

How Exchanges Are Made.

"Please tell me how one is to comply with various requests for articles asked for in your columns. Should they be sent to you? If you could have a short paragraph at the beginning of every issue of your Corner explaining this clearly, I am sure many persons would offer assistance who now hesitate through lack of understanding of the necessary procedure.

"MRS. G. V. L."

I am afraid this correspondent cannot have read the Corner carefully, or she would have seen that when an article is asked for the statement is nearly always made that the address of the applicant may be procured by writing to me for it, accompanying the inquiry with the signature appended to the letter containing the request.

Wants Reading Matter.

"I saw in a recent issue that J. A. C. offers quilt pieces and magazines, and since I live 100 miles from the city and never get any reading matter, I would love to have her address and the chance to correspond with her. My home is in a small country place. I shall hope to hear from J. A. C. C. L. F."

Unfortunately the articles offered by J. A. C. had been given away before the arrival of this letter. Is there not some one else who will write to this lonely Cornerite and send her some of the magazines she craves? Surely there is plenty of reading matter which might find its way to her. I will hold her address on file and send it on application.

Some of "John's" Favorites.

"You of the Corner cannot guess how dear you have grown to the people here. I wanted to write and reply to the questions of some of the writers, but have felt I could never do it so well as the rest of you do. The question that has worried me the most is why do not more persons give 'My John's favorites'? I think if each mother would make it the rule, no matter how large the family, to prepare each one's favorite once a week, the home would be the place that all the boys and girls would be hunting and honoring, instead of seeking amusements elsewhere, and the mother and father would be the chief attractions. For my own part, I firmly believe that the mothers and fathers are to blame for the disrespect they have shown to them. I have three daughters, and I am glad to say that mother is first always. The father passed away ten years ago and so, of course, I have to be both to the girls. Thank you so much, dear Corner, for all the nice, bright things you have done to cheer me up and for the splendid recipes you have given me. I send two recipes which I put under the head of 'John's Favorites' and that I hope you will find good:

"SPICE CAKE—One cup of sugar, half a cup of butter, one cup of milk, two cups of flour, white of one egg and yolks of two (save the white of the other egg for the icing), half teaspoon of cinnamon, quarter teaspoon of allspice, cloves, and nutmeg, one and a half teaspoons of baking powder. Bake in two layers and ice with the following: One and a half cups of sugar, two tablespoons of cornstarch, one cup of boiling water. Boil these together until they thread and then pour over the well beaten white of the egg.

"CORNBREAD—Two cups of cornmeal, a pinch of salt, and a pinch of soda. Wet the cornmeal with the sour milk until it is of a consistency that you can take the mixture up in the hands and make into little pones. Drop these into a well greased skillet and bake for about twenty minutes. C. J. B."

This is a delightful letter with its warm hearted and sensible advice and it makes me happy to print it. I know it will prove of help and comfort to the readers and the counsel as to the means of making the home attractive is well worth heeding. So is the statement that the parents are usually much to blame for the disrespect shown them by their children. If displays of the kind were checked at the outset there would be no trouble of this nature as the children grow older. I am glad to pass on to the Cornerites the appreciation accorded their letters and recipes.

Way to Use Fruits.

"Before the summer season ends or the fruit I want to contribute the widow's mite in the way of something I learned while stricken with poverty and given left over fruit from groceries and fruit stores. Take all kinds of fruit, rhubarb included, wash thoroughly, leaving skins and seeds intact, and of course cutting away the bad portions; throw into a kettle of cold water and let boil until all is soft. Rub through a colander, add sugar to the mass, and boil again. Make a thickening of flour, stir this in, and pour out into crocks to cool. Eat any old time with milk and sugar. I call this preparation the California fruit compote. Here is another: Beat one or more eggs separately, then beat together, add sugar and lemon or orange juice. Beat again and pour over bananas and walnuts or pecans chopped fine. This mixture I call California angel food. God bless the Helping Hand and long may it prosper! Sometimes I hope to start the sunshine rolling chair fund—members admitted at $1 a year—and let the fund be universal. Chairs are to be furnished free of charge to the afflicted as long as needed and then passed on to another of God's dear children. M. B."

These recipes sound as if they had possibilities, but they would be far more useful if the exact proportions had been given. How much sugar is used to a pound of crushed fruit? I take it that it should be about in the measure put with jam—three-quarters of a pound of sugar to each pound of the fruit—but I am at a loss about the flour. In what proportion is this put in for thickening? So much for the first recipe, and we would like similar elucidation as to the second. What quantity of sugar goes with an egg and how much lemon or orange juice? It does not always do to leave these details to the discretion of the worker, since often there is lack of experience which puts the young housekeeper hopelessly at a loss when she has not had precise measurements supplied to her. I hope these omissions will be remedied by Mrs. M. B.

FOR THE INDUSTRIOUS NEEDLEWOMAN

BY ADELAIDE BYRD

PIERROT EMBROIDERY on SHADE and RUNNER

DESIGNED BY LINNAEA F. BITTLE

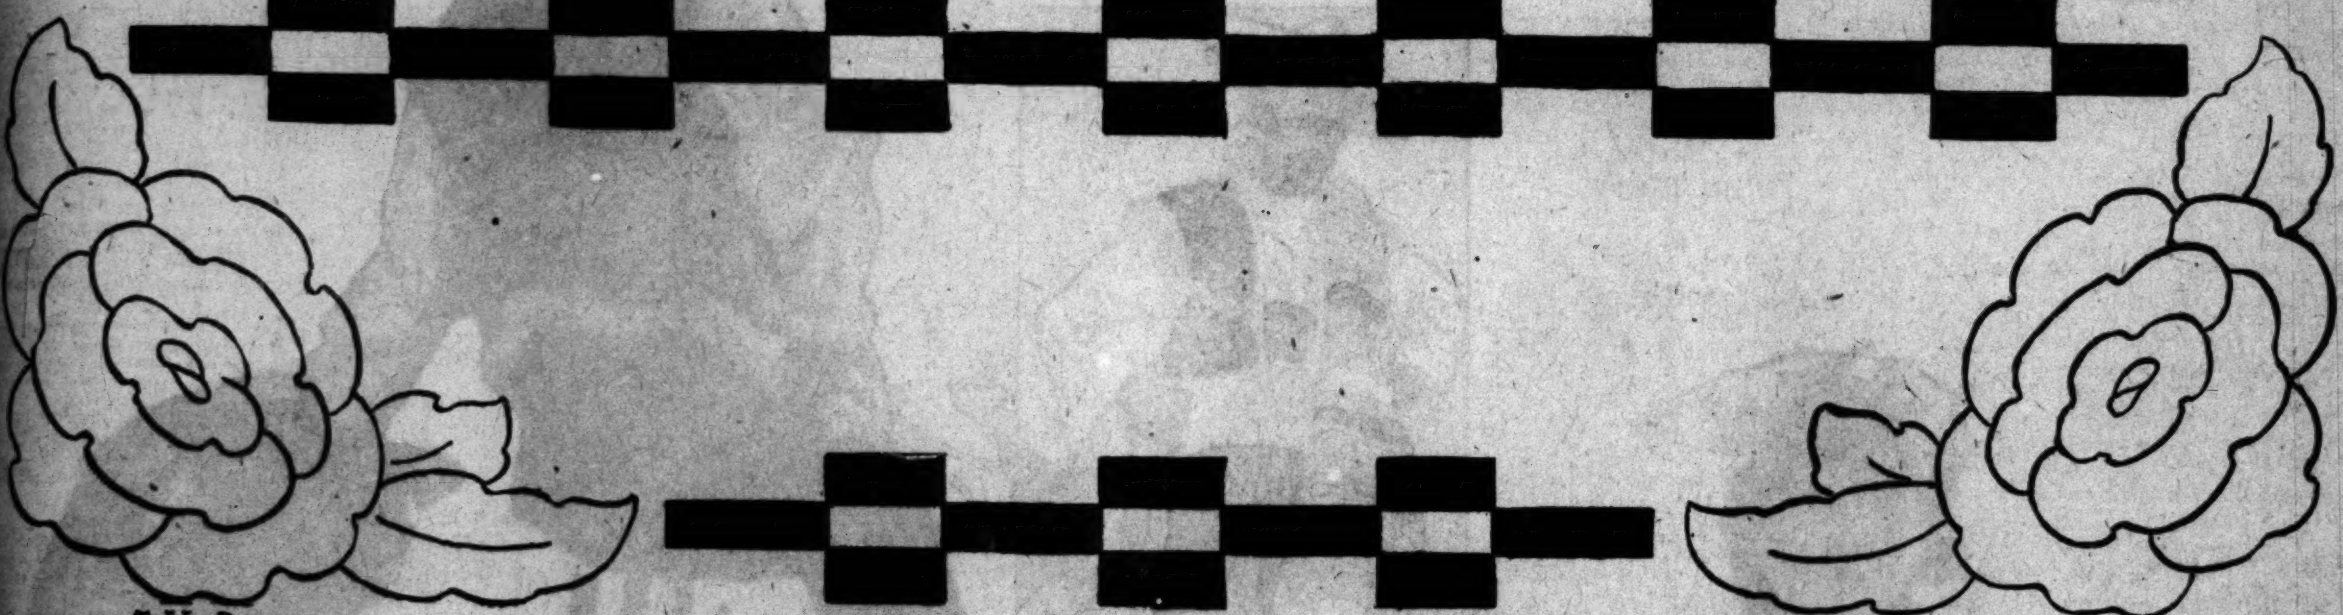

Table Runner

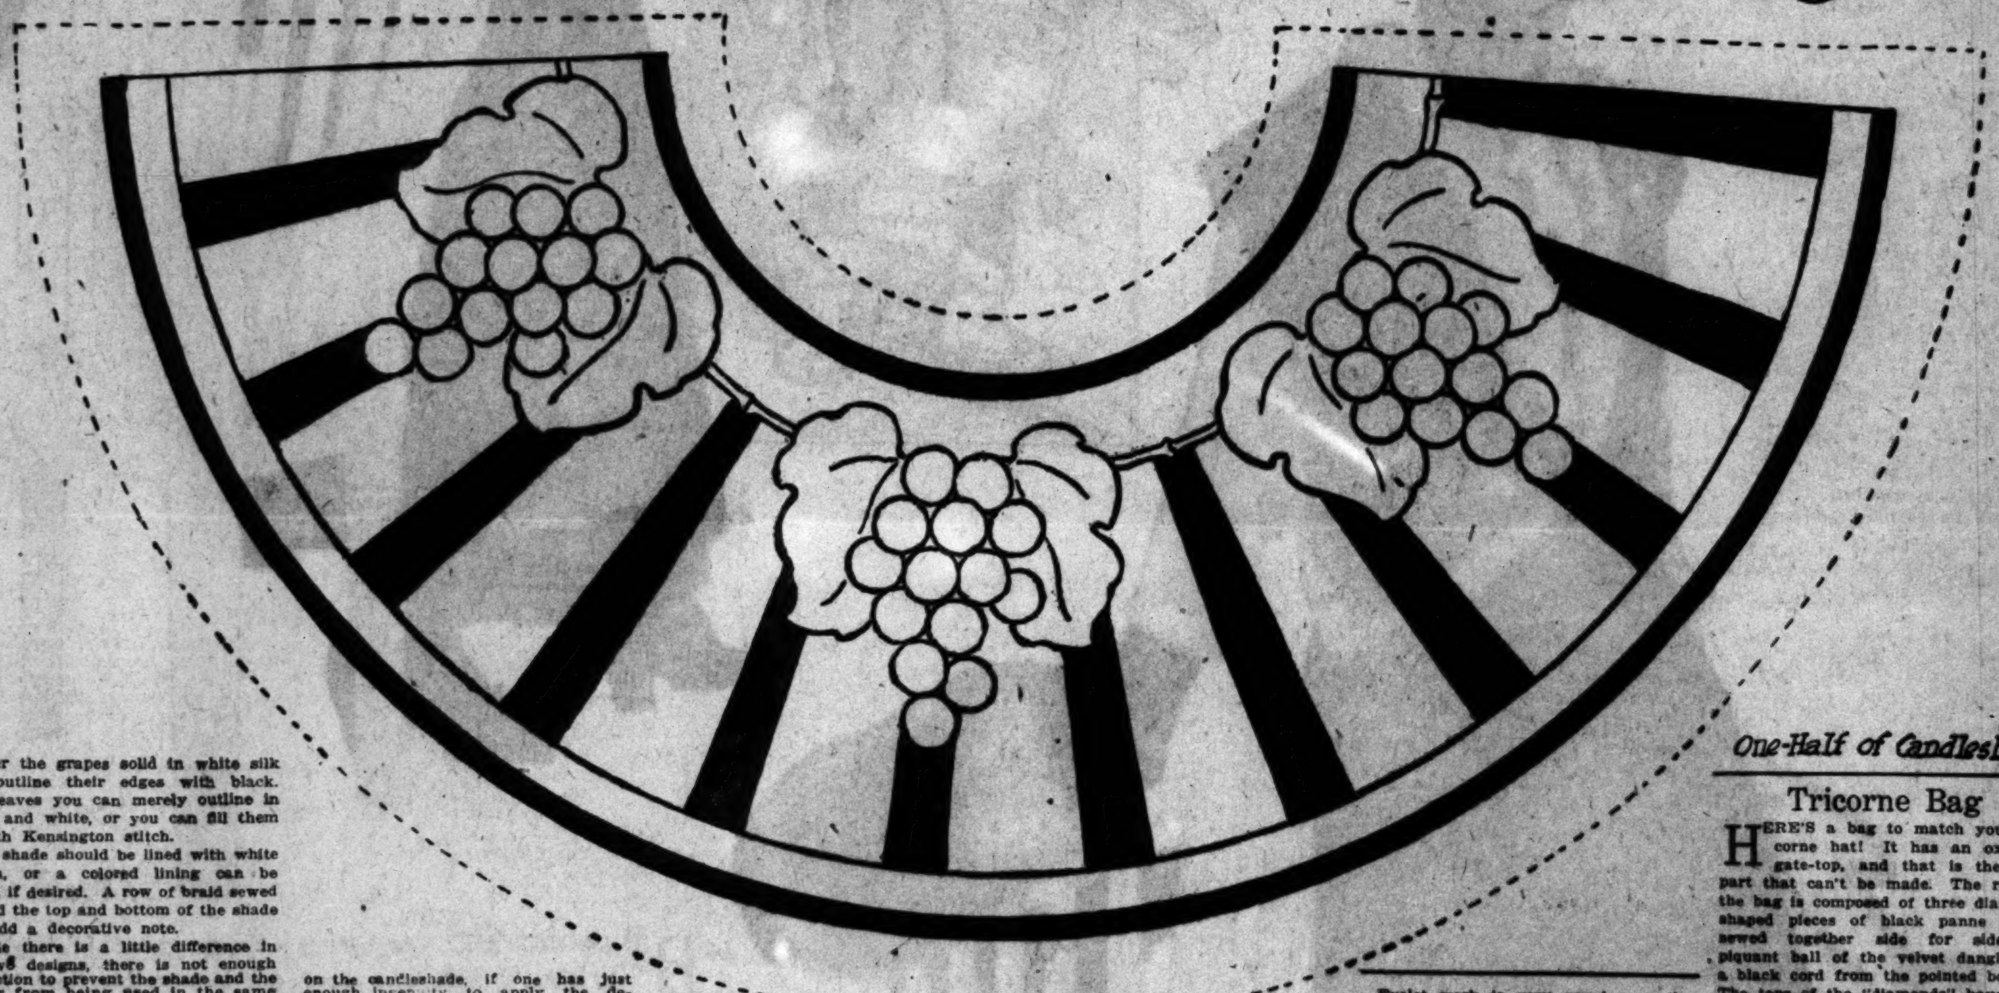

One-Half of Candleshade

NEEDLEWORKERS are always ready to welcome something new in the way of designs or effects in embroidery, so I that the designs offered on the today are going to prove more pleasing. The work is given the Pierrot because of the fact that play of the same name was always in black and white. For that the design should be embroidered combination if the proper effect to be gained.

the design for the table runner ivory white or oyster-white linen. length of the table on which the is to be used will determine the of your runner. I suggest that fill in the solid black portions with straight stitches, working across width rather than the length of the sections, using heavy black silk or for the purpose. Then outline the of the black portions in heavy silk.

flowers and leaves can be outlined with, first, a row of black silk, then a row of white. Or, if one the petals and leaves can be in with black Kensington stitches merely the edges of them outlined white.

is no reason why the design not be embroidered in colors if does not care to carry out the black-and-white idea. A combination and black, green and black or and blue would be very effective or green linen.

will be more than delighted with candleshade, for the design will out boldly when lighted by the of the candle. Stamp the design heavy white or oyster-white linen, the dotted line as a guide for cutting out the material. The space between the solid black line of the candleshade proper and the dotted line allows hem and for a seam where the piece is joined.

in the solid black portions in the manner suggested for the black of the table-runner design. Embroider the grapes solid in white silk and outline their edges with black. The leaves you can merely outline in black and white, or you can fill them in with Kensington stitch.

The shade should be lined with white muslin, or a colored lining can be added, if desired. A row of braid sewed around the top and bottom of the shade will add a decorative note.

While there is a little difference in the two designs, there is not enough distinction to prevent the shade and the runner from being used in the same room. It is possible, however, to use the grapes on the runner or the roses on the candleshade, if one has just enough ingenuity to apply the designs, and thus have the two articles match.

aint Runner Design is a strong evidence of the revival of things quaint in needlework, not only in stitches, but in as well. One expression of this is noticeable in a runner for a table. Conventionalized birds principal motif, and are stamped heavy tan crash. They are embroidered in vivid colorings, heavy wool for the purpose. The rounded of the runner add an unusual effect the scarf. These are finished fringe, which looks just as old- as the birds themselves. The of the scarf are embellished with conventional border formed of solid stitches. displaying the same design complete a very attractive set for 's library.

Fringe for the Luncheon Set

A DAMASK luncheon set very sparingly embroidered in one color, preferably blue or green, may be very neatly finished with a fringed white cotton braid. This new finish to the luncheon set reminds one strongly of the old-fashioned fringed doilies which our mothers and grandmothers used to pass around with the afternoon tea and crackers. Another finish for the luncheon set—in fact, a finish which actually "makes" the set—is of maltese crochet, the kind your mother used to make on a hairpin. Ask her to show you how to do it! It makes beautiful beading for setting into hems of sheets and pillow cases, and in the finer thread for lingerie seams.

Attractive Powder Puff

THERE are powder puffs and powder puffs; but one has been seen which calls forth such adjectives as unique, attractive, dainty, etc., until one hardly knows where to leave off. The puff, which is fairly large, is made of swansdown, and it is attached to a dainty bisque doll. Falling over the puff is a piece of blue tulle, which makes the doll look as though she were wearing a short tunic. The tulle is tied in a large butterfly bow at the back. The puff is supposed to be slipped into a transparent powder jar. As a rule, such bits of daintiness are not practical; but this puff proves the exception to the rule, for the swansdown can be renewed easily as often as necessary.

A Glove Case

IF YOU are one of the many girls who are fond of cases which can be neatly arranged in bureau drawers, you can then anticipate the desire of some girl friend and make for her next anniversary a glove case. Cretonne is a lovely material for the case, or plain silk or linen will do just as well. It may be well to make two cases, one for short gloves and one for long ones. Across the center of each case place a strap of the cretonne, stitching it securely at the ends. This will prevent the gloves from falling out when the case is opened.

On the flap embroider the girl's monogram or a spray of flowers.

Slip-On Kimono

THE usual variety of kimono is all very well for the privacy of one's own boudoir, but when a woman is obliged to do much traveling she will find that a kimono made to slip over the head will be much more convenient. It is also advisable to select a subdued color for a kimono which one intends to use in the sleeping car. This does not mean that the article will be without beauty. One of the most attractive kimonos ever seen was made of dark blue china silk, and was smocked across the front and back to give it fullness. Its full sleeves were shirred into straight cuffs. A kimono nightgown pattern was used for the kimono. The sleeves, however, were set in. The wearer said it was the most comfortable thing she had ever worn.

Patch Pockets

PATCH pockets appear not only on coat suits, but they have forced their way to dainty sewing aprons. A very attractive apron can be fashioned of dotted swiss, fine lawn or handkerchief linen. Near the bottom, at either side, attach oblong pieces of the material to form pockets. Then fill in the space between these upright pockets with one long pocket. Head the three pieces with valenciennes. If you have the time, you might embroider a dainty daisy design on each pocket before stitching it to the apron. Decorate the center pocket with a rosette made of pink or blue ribbon. The pockets will not only ornament the apron, but will prove most practical for holding sewing utensils.

Unique Initialing

INITIALING with a difference is the method of inserting crocheted initials where embroidered initials are expected, but fail to be. In short, a pretty and odd way to initial towels is to crochet a monogram or single initial in medallion form and then whip it into the towel just where the embroidered marking, had there been one, would have appeared. These little medallion inserts of crochet may take many forms—round, square, diamond-shape, maltese cross effect and also appear in the form of a petaled flower. Many pretty designs may be substituted for the initial within the medallion, such as flowers, conventional designs, birds, fruit, etc., if it is desired that the towel, or whatever the linen may be, is not to be definitely marked.

Embroidered Neckwear

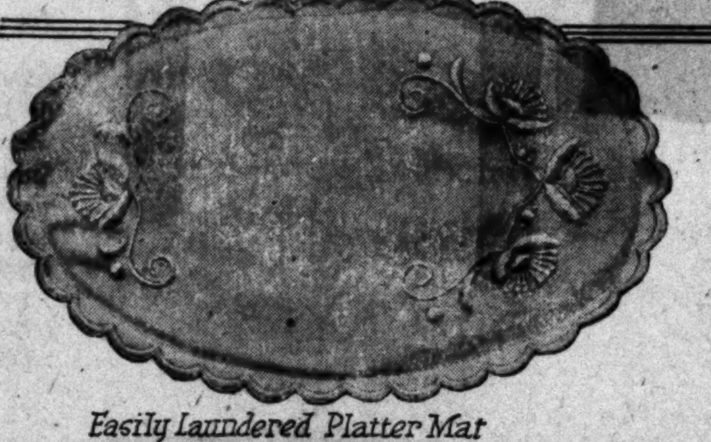
EVERY girl hasn't time to make her own collars, but when purchasing neckwear one should try to select fine material, even if by so doing one has to sacrifice hand ornamentation. The latter can be added at home and without very much trouble. Dainty floral sprays or small squares, diamonds or crescents are the most suitable designs for neckwear. A clever woman can create her own design, but the woman who has not this ability can find in any needlework paper or book a design to suit her purpose. This she can transfer by means of carbon paper.

Eyelet work is very popular on the newest French neckwear. One attractive vestee is made of white organdie. Down either side of the front is a short spray. The petals of the flowers are worked in eyelets, while the leaves are worked solid and the stems are outlined. A high collar is attached to the vestee. This turns over to form tabs in front, and the corner of each tab is embellished with an eyelet flower. Tiny white lingerie buttons fasten the collar and ornament the front of the vestee.

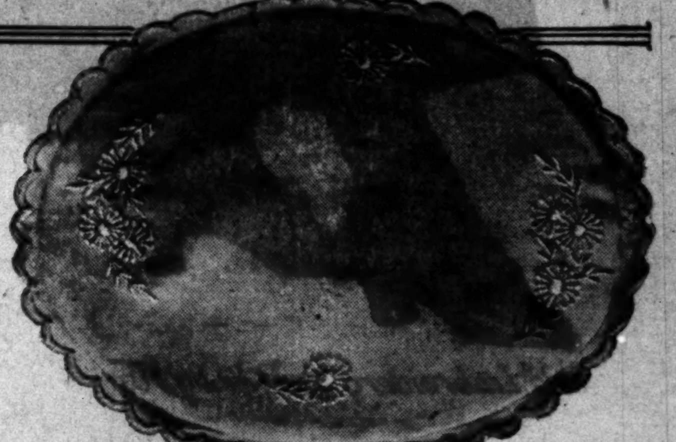
Tricorne Bag

HERE'S a bag to match your tricorne hat! It has an oxidized gate-top, and that is the only part that can't be made. The rest of the bag is composed of three diamond-shaped pieces of black panne velvet sewed together side for side. A piquant ball of the velvet dangles on a black cord from the pointed bottom. The tops of the "diamonds" have been cut off so that when the gate-top is spread open there will be a good-sized opening. This bag should be lined with a bright silk, or a flowered or striped taffeta. If you are unusually industrious and wish an unusual bag, you might add some bead embroidery in the shape of a motif on each of the three sides. The beads may be many colored or they may be of cut steel, a very fashionable touch at present. The pendent tassel might also be of beads.

COVER YOUR HOT-DISH MATS



Easily Laundered Platter Mat



Simple Stitches Make an Effective Covering

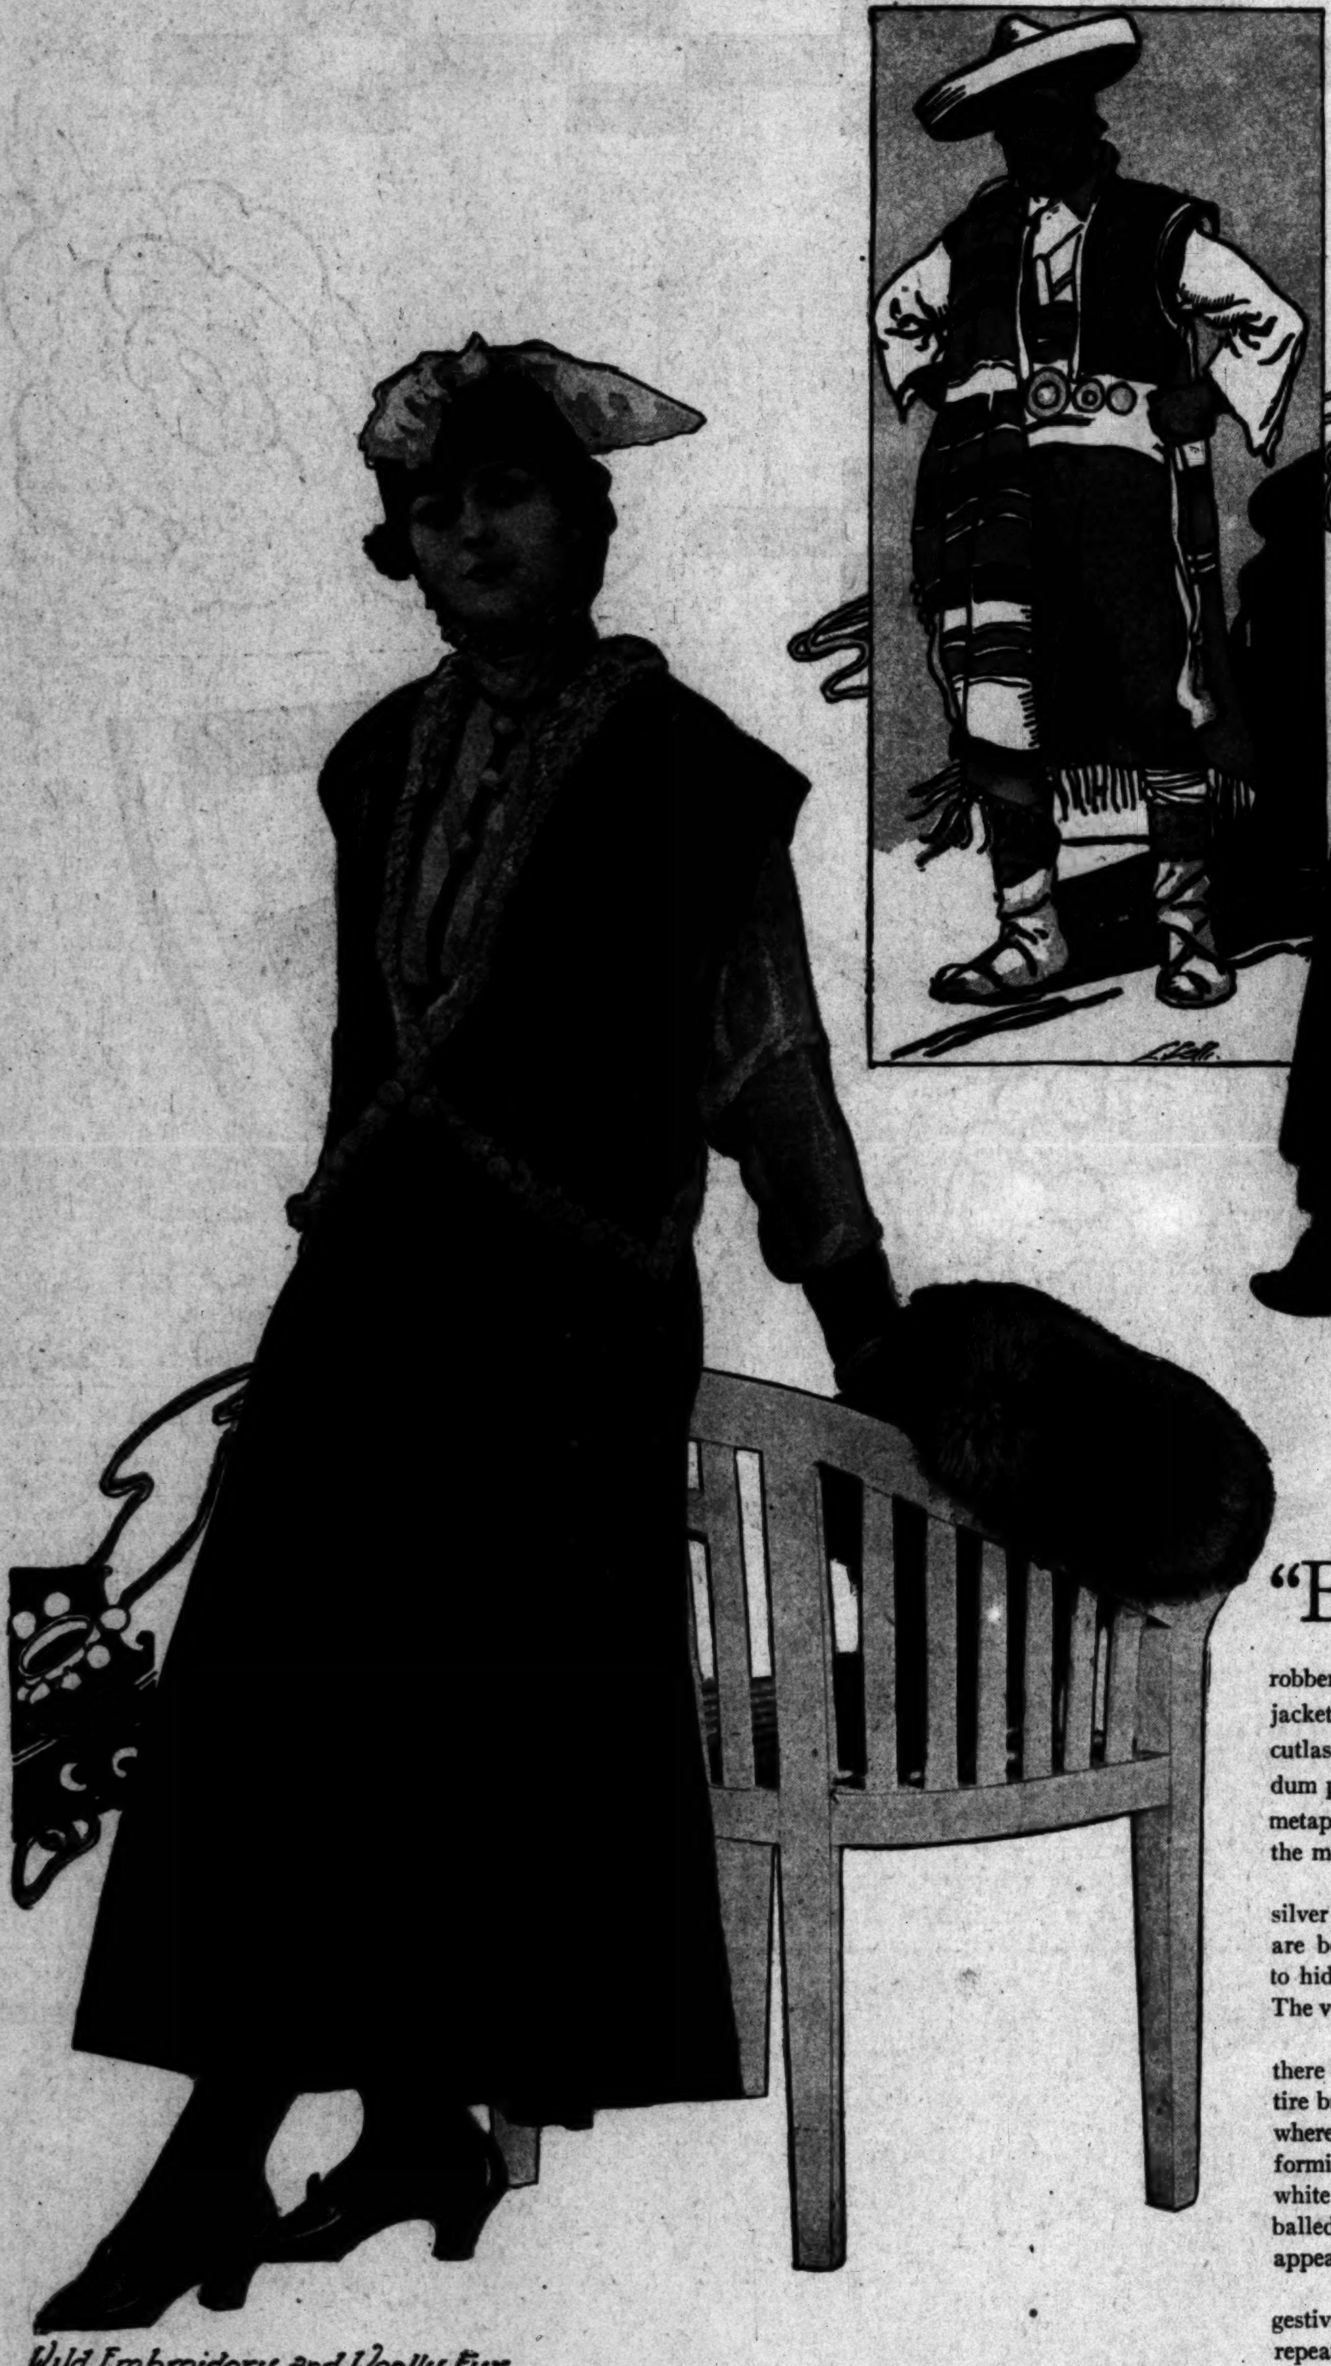
THE day of the polished table and the housekeeper's pride is at hand. Also the day when the careful housekeeper is always in hot water, so to speak, for fear some defacing mark will appear upon her beloved table top. She fills her linen drawers, consequently, with piles of asbestos and other non-heat-conducting materials to prevent the fatal scarring. She is wise who also provides dainty washable covering for these mats, so that they will not prove eyesores on an otherwise beautifully set table. There are numerous ways of covering the mats, but perhaps the most useful and practical in every way are the mats of plain white linen, embroidered in white, which can be slipped off at a moment's notice and plunged into the general wash.

The embroidery on these covers may be as elaborate or as simple as one chooses. A monogram or initial is very often their only ornament. Place a few "thousand flowers" or "lazy daisies" on your cover, and you will have something worth looking at as well as worth using. You will see from the photographs that these linen covers are scalloped. The scalloping is done through two thicknesses of linen, cut to match the size of plate or platter for which they are designed. The embroidery of the front piece is done first, of course, as it could not be very well done after the two thicknesses of linen are scalloped together. The linen is also machine stitched together to relieve the scalloping of strain when the pad is slipped into place. This stitching might also be done before the scalloping, and will hold the two pieces of linen smooth while the buttonholing is being done. The back of these mats are cut entirely across the shortest diameter and halfway down the longer one to allow of easy access for the asbestos mats. The raw edges are braid bound and are fastened with snap fasteners. Tabs of tape are attached to one side of the openings to hold one-half of the snaps, the other half being sewn directly on the braid-bound edge. The flatter the fasteners the better.

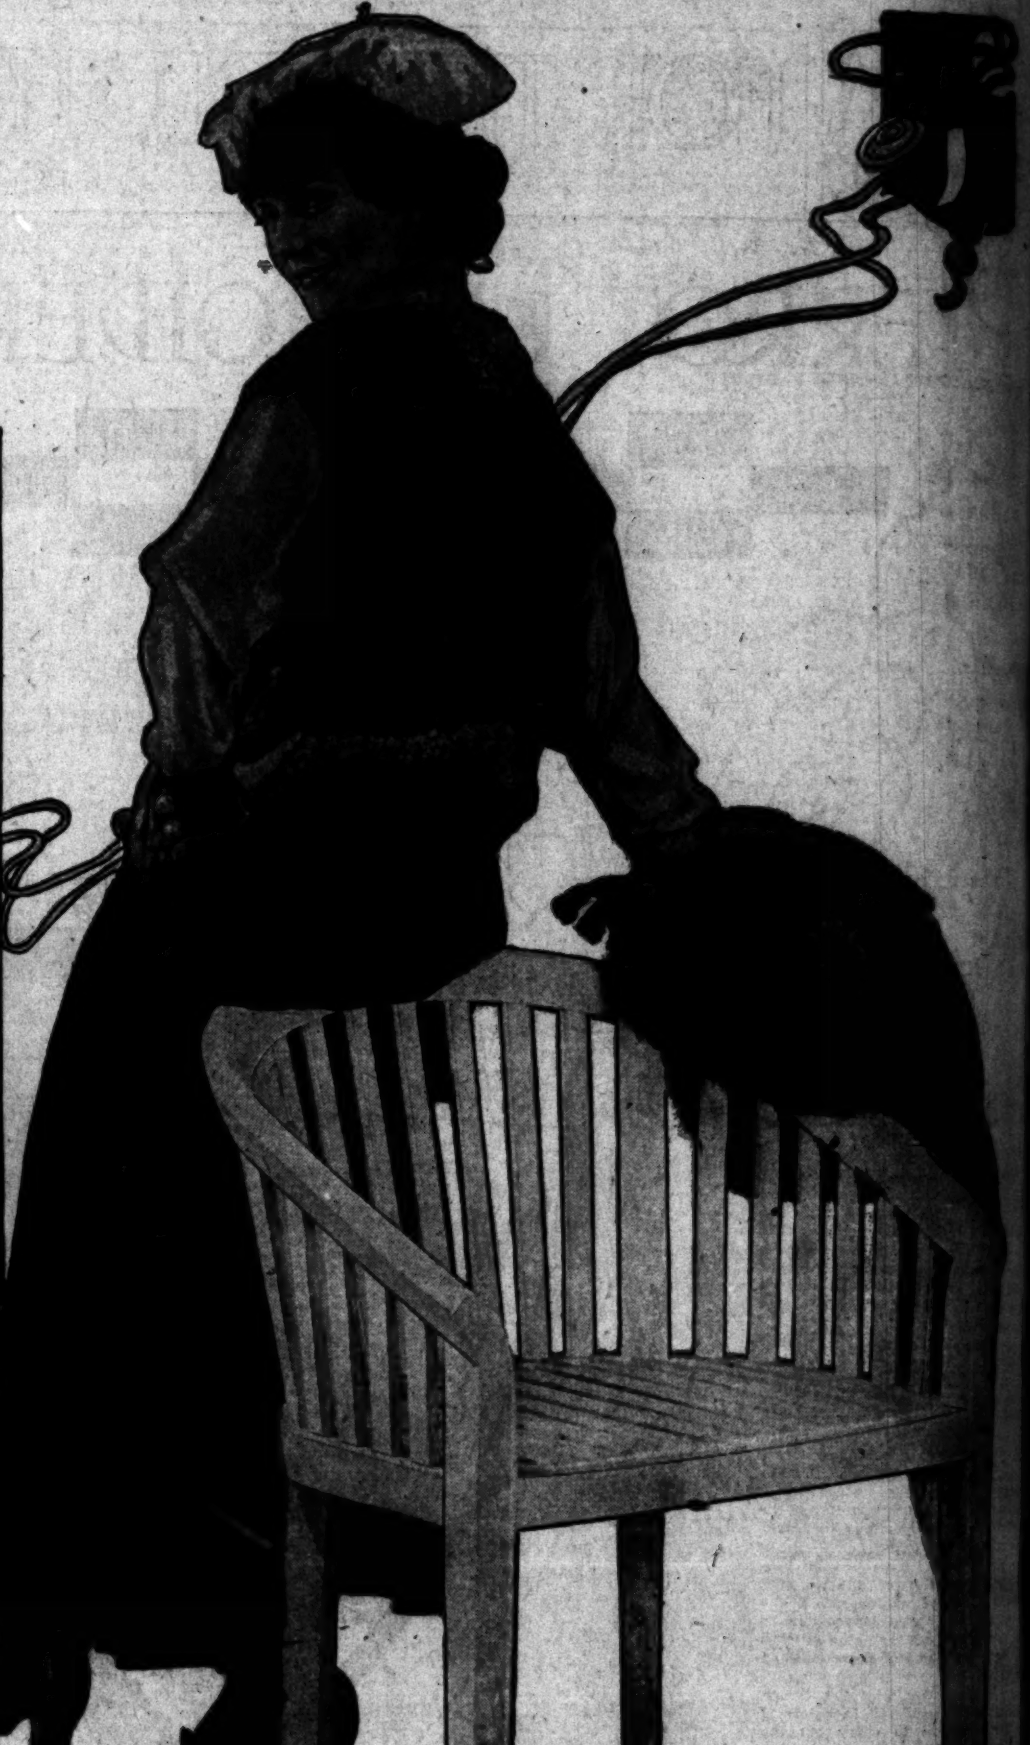
A set of mats and a half dozen covers for each mat would make a truly delightful gift for bride, maid or matron. If a monogram or initial is used, place it directly in the center, so that it will fall under the raised portion of a plate or platter and not cause any unsettling tilting, as would be the case were it placed at one end.

There are crocheted mats that are also quite serviceable, and crocheted coverings for the asbestos mats, which would be a triumph for the woman who is handy with the crochet needle. A new method of weaving a hot-dish mat is worthy of mention. It is done with cotton cord, what is commonly called sugar-bag cord. The weaving is done back and forth on a wooden frame, until the cords are about an inch thick. Then with a needle the cords are caught together where they cross and are tied in a knot. The woven mat is removed from the frame, the edges cut to make a fringe and the mat is complete.

A FROCK IDEA from a BANDIT CHIEF



Wild Embroidery and Woolly Fur



A Macedonian Cut to the Jacket

"BRRRRRR-R-R-R," knock-knees a chorus in one of the lighter operas, "I thought I saw a bandit chief!" That same chorus can do more than think if it has occasion to butt into a fashionable promenade during the present dress season—for Madame has committed highway robbery; she has stolen her latest idea from a bandit chief! Behold it, huge pockets, sleeveless jacket, contrasting sleeves, wild embroidery and woolly edging. Some outfit! Nothing needed but a cutlass or two, a couple of daggers and the usual assortment of six-shooters or whatever kind of dum-dum pumps they use in the hills of Macedonia. There is, too, a dash of Bohemia, both literally and metaphorically speaking, about the whole costume that is irresistible. Surely the frock is as chic as the most ultra-fashionable bit of femininity could wish.

The material used for the frock is blue serge and the wonderfully effective embroidery is in silver thread. The apparently capacious pockets, emphasized by silver embroidery, are deceiving. They are bottomless! Necessary it is, oh, quite necessary, that there be under them a dark blue petticoat to hide Madame's lingerie. It will be observed that the pockets are "cuffed" into conspicuousness. The very full skirt is pleated in soft folds at the back and sides, with a slightly lesser fullness at the front.

There is a "zip" to the jacket that is unmistakable. While it has the usual zouave cut at the back, there is a cleverness of line at the front, almost a rakishness, which is exceedingly attractive. The entire back of the jacket is covered with silver embroidery, continuing over the shoulders to the front, where it ends in points at each side of the jacket, just at the bust line. The embroidery upon the sides forming the bottom edge of the jacket simulates huge patch pockets. Instead of the bandit's usual white cotton shirt, the underblouse of this bandit frock is of gray chiffon, cuffed in the blue serge, and balled (in, not out) with buttons of gray silk braid, three upon each cuff. These ball buttons also appear upon the chiffon underblouse.

The finishing and very appropriate touch to the bandit costume is the gray krimmer, suggestive of the woolly mountain sheep and a fur that is extremely fashionable this year. The fur is repeated upon the high collar of the underblouse.
